Revenue sharing near end

by KURT BAER

Like sand running through the hour glass, federal revenue-sharing is slowly but surely running out for suburban communities.

Revenue sharing is part of the taxes the federal government collects but which Washington gives back to state, city, county and township governments.

Federal revenue-sharing checks have been arriving four times a year since 1972. But unless Uncle Sam steps up to turn the hour glass over, the program will expire at the end of December.

CRITICISM OF the program comes from two sides. On the one hand, opponents like U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane R-12th, say the system is inefficient, that too much money is wasted in the transfer of tax dollars.

Nationwide, the program is expensive, costing $5 billion a year. There would be more money to use locally if Washington never collected it in the first place, Crane says.

Others are against the program because they say to pursue national goals in fields such as education, health and welfare, the federal government should give money to localities only for specific programs, not to use any way they want.

President Ford has asked Congress to extend revenue sharing for 5% years, with $150 million added each year for inflation.

U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House government operations committee in charge of a possible extension of revenue sharing, says the program is fundamentally wrong.

A GOVERNMENT operations subcommittee chaired by U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., is not expected to report to the full committee before Easter.

Although Brooks disagrees with the program, he has said he will not obstruct an extension of revenue sharing, leading some experts to predict the measure will pass before the November election.

Most of the debate centers on proposals to revise the program. The government operations subcommittee currently is looking at 14 proposed amendments.

Some proposals call for:

- Changing distribution formulas to give more money to cities and poor rural areas that have the greatest need.

- Strengthening requirements that funds be used in compliance with civil rights regulations.

- Giving local citizens' groups a greater right to be heard when local governments are deciding how to spend the money.

- Requiring that Congress appropriate revenue sharing one year at a time to exercise closer control.

Northwest suburban governments are virtually unanimous in their support of an extension of revenue sharing. Some village boards have passed resolutions calling for reenactment. And last December, local officials met personally with Crane to try to persuade him to back an extension bill.

THE AMOUNT OF money each town receives is based on a complex formula that includes population, average income and an evaluation of local tax effort. Ironically, communities with high taxes generally receive less money than those with low or no taxes, which frustrates some suburban leaders.

At the December meeting with Crane, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said that municipal leader have become "junkies" over revenue sharing.

While some of her local government colleagues disagreed with Hayter's characterization, no one disputed the fact the federal checks have become an important part of municipal finance.

Federal help sought in lake project funding

by BILL HILL

Arlington Heights officials will meet with federal legislators today to request assistance in obtaining funding for the $10.4 million Lake Arlington flood control project.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan and Village Engineer Aln Sander are scheduled to meet in Washington D.C.

U.S. high court accepts briefs in Viator case

The U.S. Supreme Court has accepted "friend-of-the-court" legal briefs for the upcoming Lincoln Green low-income housing case from the local League of Women Voters and the American Society of Planning Officials.

The briefs support the development proposed by the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. for a 15-acre parcel south of St. Viator High School. The high court's decision was made over objections filed by Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel.

The case which will provide a final verdict on whether the village can block the construction of the 190-unit townhouse proposal, probably will be heard in Washington, D.C., between April 19-28.

The Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect League of Women Voters, in submitting the brief, is joined by its county, state and national organizations, as well as the Arlington Heights Clergy Fellowship, the American Jewish Community and the Minority Industrial Relations Council, Inc.

Forest View band instructor retiring

Forest View High School band instructor Fred O. Elliott will retire at the end of the school year, ending 14 years as band instructor.

Elliott has taught 30 years in Michigan and Illinois before coming to Forest View when the school opened in 1962. He wrote the school alma mater and fight song and organized the instrumental music program. He also directed the Palatine village band for more than five years. The Forest View jazz band has won a number of musical contests under his direction.

Elliott and his wife, Sylvia, plan to Ark. and will spend summers in northern Michigan.

with U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, chief legislative assistants for U.S. Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson, and Joseph Haas, deputy administrator of the soil conservation division of the Dept. of Agriculture.

The village requested the meeting because Lake Arlington is in danger of being left out of the Des Plaines River Watershed Plan, which is a blueprint for state and federally funded flood control work in the area.

Proposed site for the lake is north of Palatine Road and east of Windsor Drive. Extensive recreational uses also are planned for the site if the lake is built.

THE MEETING may be the village's final effort to have the project included, because a final decision on the Des Plaines River Watershed Plan is expected soon from the Soil Conservation Service.

"We hope we can get them to include this project in their plans because we believe it represents a major flood control and recreational effort," Ryan said.

The Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Illinois Water Resources Commission have indicated they support the Lake Arlington project "to an extent," Ryan said.

Nicholson, Pacino wait Oscar's call

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Nicholson and Al Pacino, who failed to win in nine previous tries, come down to the wire as favorites in the tight race for best actor in the 48th annual Academy Awards ceremonies tonight.

Nicholson won this year's nomination for his performance as an asylum inmate in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." Pacino was nominated for playing the wildly inept bank robber in "Dog Day Afternoon."

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" topped all other films in 1975 with nine nominations and may be the first film in 42 years to capture the three top Oscars, best picture, best actor and best actress (Louise Fletcher).

THE LAST MOVIE to make the grand slam was "It Happened One Night" which won for best picture of 1934, and Oscars for its stars, Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.

Other pictures in the running this year are "Dog Day Afternoon," "Barry Lyndon," "Jaws" and "Nashville." Vying with Nicholson and Pacino for best actor of the year are Maximilian Schell ("The Man in the Glass Booth"), Walter Matthau

("The Sunshine Boys") and James Whitmore ("Give 'em Hell Harry!").

Actresses competing with Miss Fletcher for the movies' highest award are Isabelle Adjani ("The Story of Adele H."), Ann-Margret ("Tommy"), Glenda Jackson ("Hedda"), and Carol Kahe ("Hester Street").

The film academy show will present awards in 21 categories on a live telecast (Channel 7, 9 p.m. CST) from the Los Angeles Music Center.

THE TWO-HOUR special will feature Gene Kelly, Walter Matthau, George Segal, Robert Shaw and Goldie Hawn as masters of ceremonies. More than 40 film stars will participate as presenters, performers or merely sitting nervously in the audience awaiting the opening of sealed envelopes.

Among such new faces as Marisa Berenson, Stockard Channing and Margaux Hemingway, will be familiar oldtimers Charlton Heston, Elizabeth Taylor, Audrey Hepburn, Ray Bolger and Charles Bronson.

Highlight of the ceremonies will be a filmed appearance by Mary Pickford accepting a special Oscar for her contributions to the motion picture industry. She won the second Academy Award ever given — for best actress of 1928 in "Coquette." Janet Gaynor in "Seventh Heaven" in 1927 was first actress to win the award.

After move here, life's not shaky

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Jose Nicholas Astacio gets excited when he talks. Like when he discusses the earthquakes of his former home, the tiny Central American country of El Salvador. "The ground start to shake, man," and Jose flutters his hands, making a noise like the rapid rustling of bird wings with his lips, "Brrrrrrrr. All the buildings shake."

"Then it stops for a little while and starts again. Brrrrrrrr. None of the buildings in Salvador are over three, four flats. They don't have the high rises like in America. They all fall down if they did."

"When that brrrrrrrr starts, it's scary, man."

The Jose Nicholas Astacio laughs.

number of acting nominees will attend this year's ceremonies, including Nicholson, Matthau, Whitmore and actresses Adjani, Fletcher and Kane.

Most of the best supporting performance nominees will be on hand, too.

Nominated for best supporting actor of the year are George Burns ("The Sunshine Boys"), Brad Dourif ("One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest"), Burgess Meredith ("Day of the Locust"), Chris Sarandon ("Dog Day Afternoon"), and Jack Warden ("Shampoo").

Lee Grant ("Shampoo"), Sylvia Miles ("Farewell, My Lovely"), Lily Tomlin ("Nashville") and Brenda Vaccaro ("Once Is Not Enough").

Directors nominated for this year's Oscar are Federico Fellini ("Amarcord"), Stanley Kubrick ("Barry Lyndon"), Sidney Lumet ("Dog Day Afternoon"), Robert Altman ("Nashville"), and Milos Forman ("One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest").

Nominated for the best original song for a movie are "How Lucky Can You Get" ("Funny Lady"), "I'm Easy" ("Nashville"), "Now That We're In Love" ("Whiffs"), "Richard's Window" ("The Other Side of the Mountain") and "Do You Know Where You're Going" ("Mahogany").

Armed robbers hit area businesses

Armed bandits robbed a Wheeling supermarket and a Schaumburg theater Sunday night, but police said the two robberies were not connected. Two gunmen, armed with .38 caliber revolvers, entered the National Food Store, Ill. Rte. 83 and Dundee Road, as employees were closing the store at 6:30 p.m. Police said the robbers tied up the four employees, and escaped with an estimated $1,000 in cash. Police said the robbers were unsuccessful in their attempt to open a safe in the store manager's office but grabbed money that had not been locked up. No one was injured and police said the bandits fled in an auto. Schaumburg police said the descriptions of the two robbers matched the ones of a pair of gunmen who held up a store in that village Saturday. Another gunman robbed $832 in cash about 7:35 p.m. Sunday at Woodfield Theatre, Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg. Police said the robber, wearing a "Sherlock-Holmes-type" hat, a waist-length plaid jacket and speaking with an English accent, forced the cashier at gunpoint to give him the money. "Sherlock Holmes' Smarter Brother" is now playing at the theater. Police said the robber fled on foot after placing the money in a plastic bag.

Des Plaines girl, 17, raped

A 17-year-old Des Plaines girl was raped Sunday by an assailant who forced her into bushes near her home, assaulted her and fled. Police said the girl was walking near 2510 Dempster St. about 1:30 a.m. when the attack took place. Police said they are seeking a man, 5 feet 9 inches tall, in his 20s, weighing 140 pounds with short brown hair and a light complexion. He was wearing black trousers and a white dress shirt at the time of the attack.

Woman faces gambling charges

An Arlington Heights woman was arrested Saturday for allegedly operating a sports wire betting service out of an apartment. Sue Reid, 35, of 2804 N. Windsor Dr. was arrested in another apartment in the building by Chicago and Arlington Heights police. She was reportedly taking bets on college basketball games, and had been under investigation by Chicago police before the arrest. Police said while they were in the apartment they answered six telephone calls with persons wanting to place a total of $2,000 bets on basketball games. A woman in unincorporated Maine Township also was arrested Saturday on similar charges but details were unavailable Sunday.

MEG theft probe dropped

A Cook County grand jury because of a lack of evidence and witnesses, has dropped an investigation into possible inside involvement in a $27,000 burglary of cash, narcotics and guns from offices of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group. Investigators suspected the June 16, 1975 burglary at the Rosemont office was an inside job because the thieves used a safe combination known only to a few persons in the undercover agency. More suspicion resulted from reported attempts to cover up the value of the theft.

Schaumburg Mattress Factory

Thoughts on a Mattress

What's in a name? Shakespeare said, "A rose by any other name etc." In the mattress business the magic name is "Orthopedic."

Did you ever try to figure out what an Orthopedic mattress is? The best brains in the U.S. Government apparently couldn't figure it out either. A few years ago the Federal Trade Commission made the mattress manufacturers stop using the term "Orthopedic" on their mattresses and in their advertising.

So the big mattress makes started calling their mattresses "This-A-Pedic," "That-A-Pedic," "Whose-A-Pedic," "What's-A-Pedic" — they had to add another chapter to the dictionary for all the Pedics. I guess the big mattress makers figured a mattress by any other name would smell as sweet.

We think our customers might like to name their own mattress. If they want a glamorous mattress, we'll call it "Cleopatra." If they want a funny glamorous mattress, we'll call it "Bob Cleopatra." If they want it sexy, we'll call it "Marilyn."

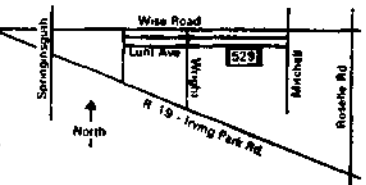

If they want it endorsed by some famous orthopedic surgeon, we'll call it "Doctor Ortho." If they just want a famous name, we'll call it Napoleon, or Joan of Arc or Einstein.

Whatever they call it, we will still make it with the same quality materials and careful workmanship that we put into all of our mattresses and box springs. We still think the first requirement of a mattress, regardless of the fancy name, is to give a comfortable night's sleep.

DRACAENA MARGINATA

JADE PLANT

The Bank of Elk Grove wants your spring to be a little greener! We'll give you your choice of one of six beautiful foliage plants valued at more than $10 each just for qualifying for our Cash Reserve plan or for making a $300 savings deposit. Here are the details:

1. Qualify for Cash Reserve. This is an automatic line of credit on a regular checking account. It lets you write yourself a loan — up to an established limit — simply by drawing a check.

If you are a checking customer now, come in or call for a Cash Reserve application. Or, open a new checking account with $100 or more and apply for Cash Reserve at the same time.

Either way, you'll be notified within a few days whether you're eligible for Cash Reserve. When you are, you can pick up your plant at the bank. (You must apply for Cash Reserve no later than April 24 to be eligible for this plant offer.)

And, later in the year, you'll receive another benefit for being a Cash Reserve customer — a special card that will let you transact banking business and get cash anytime, seven days a week, through "MAC", the Bank of Elk Grove's 24-hour teller to be installed this summer.

2. Save $300. Deposit $300 in a new or existing savings account, and select the plant you want. At the Bank of Elk Grove you'll find all our savings plans earn the highest bank interest rates allowed by law.

Plants may be picked up at the bank during regular lobby hours — this offer good only as long as our supply lasts. Limit one gift per family please.

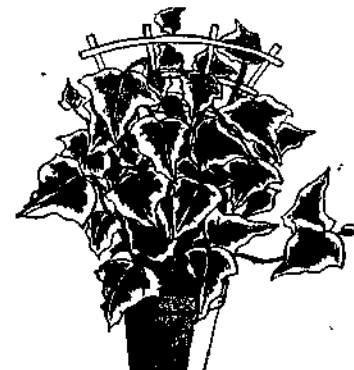

Qualifying deposits must be funds new to the Bank of Elk Grove and remain on deposit for not less than 6 months, or cost of premium will be deducted.

West Coast woman tells of year in Argentine jail

NEW YORK (UPI) — A young California woman said Sunday she spent more than a year in Argentine jails based on a forced confession to phony charges of plotting against the government of Isabel Martinez Peron.

The woman, Olga Talamante, 26, of Gilroy, Calif., arrived at Kennedy Airport from Buenos Aires Sunday morning after being released Saturday night by the junta that overthrew Mrs. Peron.

Miss Talamante flew to San Francisco Sunday afternoon where, after a tearful airport reunion with her parents, Eduardo and Refugio Talamante, three brothers and members of the Olga Talamante Defense Committee, she said that until her departure she had no inkling Mrs. Peron had been overthrown in a bloodless coup.

"I wasn't told what was going on within Argentina until I was on the plane to New York," she told a brief news conference.

"Letters from the states helped me keep my hopes up," she said. "They brought on some verbal harassment, but no additional physical torture," said Miss Talamante, who told of being beaten and tortured in the earlier days of her captivity.

Miss Talamante, who was arrested for subversion on Nov. 11, 1974 — four days after Mrs. Peron had declared a state of siege giving police the power to hold citizens without making formal charges — denied she was involved in plot against the government.

According to Miss Talamante, she and her friends, all members of a Peronist youth movement which had broken with the Peron government "when it became oppressive," were attending a barbecue at a home in Azul at the time of their arrests.

They were taken immediately to the federal police station in Azul, a small town some 170 miles south of Buenos Aires, where Miss Talamante alleges they were beaten and subjected to electric shock.

"I was blindfolded and tortured for two days and the police forced us to sign a confession," she said.

The 5-foot-3 woman wearing blue checked pants and a ski jacket was met at Kennedy by three persons who said they were members of the Olga Talamante Defense Committee, including Ed McCaughan who had flown from California to New York to accompany her as she continued her trip by plane to San Francisco.

Miss Talamante, a 1973 honors graduate in Latin American studies from the University of California, said she went to Azul on a student trip in August 1973 and remained there with friends involved in the youth movement.

After her arrest, Miss Talamante, a naturalized American born in Mexico, said she was held in jail for eight months before formal charges were filed.

She said that after she was held by the federal police for four days, she was transferred to a prison in Azul where the beatings stopped, "but conditions were terrible." She said she shared a 12-by-15-foot room with 16 other women.

Miss Talamante said she had no trial until last September. She was found guilty Sept. 17, and sentenced to three years in prison. "It was a trial

Eight named to post-Peron cabinet

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Argentina's three-man military junta Sunday named two civilians and six generals and admirals to the first post-Peron cabinet.

Army commander Lt. Gen. Jorge Videla, who was named president Friday by the junta that toppled the government of President Isabel Peron in a bloodless coup last Wednesday, will be sworn in Monday to head the eight-man cabinet.

Named to the crucial post of econ-my minister was Jose Martinez de Hoz, a civilian, who once served the same post during the presidency of Jose Maria Guido in 1963.

Martinez will be assigned the Herculean task of grappling with Argentina's economic problems, which included a nearly depleted national treasury, 423 per cent current rate of inflation and huge balance of payments deficits.

The other civilian named to the new cabinet is Ricardo Buera, who will serve as education minister.

Army Brig. Gen. Albano Harguindeguy, Army Brig. Gen. Horacio Tomas Liendo, Air Force Lt. Gen. Julio Gomez, Air Force Maj. Gen. Luis Maria Klix, Rear Adm. Julio Bardi, and Rear Adm. Cesar Augusto Guzzetti.

There is no word regarding Mrs. Peron, who remained detained in a remote mansion in Argentina's Andean lake region.

on paper, not like here," she said. "There were no witnesses and we saw the judge only once."

Argentine officials claimed Miss Talamante and her friends were members of a left-wing terrorist organization that claimed responsibility for the deaths of a U.S. consular official and at least 14 Argentines. They said a small number of guns and subversive literature were seized at the time of the arrests.

Miss Talamante, however, denied there were any guns in the house in Azul and McCaughan charged that the police had planted two .45 caliber pistols there. "As for the literature, in Argentina at that time almost anything not printed by the government was considered subversive," he said.

Miss Talamante said the youth movement taught English, ran a day-care center and presented cultural events for the residents of Azul.

Teamster truckers voting on pact; rejection hinted

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (UPI) — U.S. Labor Secretary William J. Usery was expected to meet for the third time Monday with negotiators for the trucking industry and 400,000 Teamsters, hoping to prevent both a strike and an inflationary contract agreement.

The National Master Freight Agreement covering the industry expires at midnight Wednesday.

Members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters locals across the country voted Saturday and Sunday on whether to accept an initial offer by the employers of a 20 per cent wage hike over 39 months, or reject it and authorize a strike.

The union has demanded a 30 per cent increase over 36 months.

Early returns indicated there was a strong chance the proposal would be rejected. Members of Teamsters Local 600 in St. Louis, one of the largest pure freight locals in the nation, rejected the offer by an 895-105 vote Sunday. The local has 6,200 members.

In Chicago, two activist splinter groups belonging to the union called a news conference and urged a strike if no agreement is reached by midnight Wednesday. The groups, members of "Teamsters for a Decent Contract" and "Upsurge," also called on the union to ignore any government injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act in the event of a strike.

The groups said they represent Teamsters associated with 160 locals across the country and charged that Teamsters president Frank Fitzsimmons "will agree to a sell-out contract as he has in the last three contracts since 1967."

Industry sources speculated that the employers would make a new proposal which comes closer to the Teamsters demands but would extend the contract period to 39 months, thus making it easier for trucking firms to receive Interstate Commerce Commission approval for rate changes.

Usery hoped to ward off an inflationary contract settlement for fear it would trigger similar patterns for auto workers, rubber workers, building tradesmen and electrical workers, all of whom must negotiate new contracts this year.

Clatter of slot machines resumes in Vegas

The clatter of 6,614 slot machines and the drone of croupiers at 596 gambling tables reached a high pitch Sunday with the resumption of 24-hour operation by 15 posh hotel casinos after a crippling labor dispute. Casinos were the first to reopen when picket lines were withdrawn early Sunday. Scores of gourmet restaurants were being placed into service gradually as some 12,100 empty hotel rooms filled again with tourists. Stars such as Dean Martin, Shirley MacLaine, Wayne Newton and Rowan and Martin were standing in the wings for opening nights scheduled this week in major hotel showrooms.

8 U.S. buildings fail energy guidelines

A survey of eight federal buildings in Washington showed seven had temperatures above White House energy saving guidelines, with the Treasury Department and the Food and Drug Administration pleasantly toasting at 76 degrees. The survey, reported Sunday by the National Enquirer, found that with the outside temperature at 35 degrees, only the Commerce Department building had an inside temperature reading of 68, conforming to the White House guideline set 2½ years ago.

Secret Patty trip to L.A. expected

Patricia Hearst was expected to be transported secretly early this week to Los Angeles for arraignment on kidnapping and robbery charges stemming from a shooting incident at a sporting goods store. The 22-year-old newspaper heiress, convicted March 20 of robbing a San Francisco bank, waited in her cell in the San Mateo County Jail for the planned one-day roundtrip to Los Angeles, which officials are trying to keep secret for security reasons.

High cost of drug price restrictions hit

A new consumer study says the public loses hundreds of millions of dollars a year because many states have restrictions, supported and enforced by pharmacists, on the advertising of prescription drug prices. The study by John F. Cady, a University of Arizona faculty member and a consultant to the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection, found average prices were "uniformly higher" in states with the advertising restrictions. Restrictions on price advertising are in force in 34 states. The study estimated the restrictions cost consumers $152 million in 1970 and said it might reach $380 million this year.

150,000 public employees face layoffs

Officials of the U.S. Conference of Mayors say 150,000 public service employees in large metropolitan areas face layoffs this summer unless Congress provides additional funds for the program. Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane, chairman of the Mayors' Human Development Committee, told members of a House Education and Labor subcommittee at a weekend hearing Congress should vote a $300 million emergency appropriation so that public service employees can keep their jobs. Among the cities affected are New York City, Los Angeles, Detroit, New Orleans, Boston, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis, Honolulu and Buffalo, N.Y.

Icelandic gunboat rammed in 'cod war'

One British frigate rammed and seriously damaged an Icelandic gunboat and then another frigate threatened to open fire on the crippled craft as it headed back to port in another serious incident in the "cod war" between Britain and Iceland, the gunboat captain said Sunday. Hoeskuldur Skarhedinnson, captain of the Bakur, said his gunboat was rammed four times by the frigate Diomedes as it headed for a group of British trawlers fishing within the 200 mile fishing limits claimed by Iceland. The gunboat sustained considerable damage on both the port and starboard sides during the ramming.

Egypt asks Arab troops in Lebanon

BEIRUT (UPI) — Leftist Moslem forces Sunday captured the Hilton Hotel — the last major Christian stronghold in uptown Beirut — and launched another fierce offensive on the city center with tanks, artillery and hundreds of troops.

Egypt asked Arab nations to send a token military force to Lebanon to end the "shameful and bloody struggle."

The Egyptian call came as another Syrian attempt to arrange a truce ended in apparent failure when a Lebanese leftist leader abruptly left Damascus in a huff.

At least 100 persons were killed and 210 wounded over the past 48 hours of fighting across Beirut and the countryside, raising the toll for Lebanon's 11-month-long civil war to nearly 15,200 dead and 32,300 wounded.

Newspapers said at least 200 corpses littered the streets of downtown Beirut with no one able to collect them.

Several hundred leftist militiamen backed by rebel army tanks and artillery stormed and captured the seaside Hilton Hotel after gaining access to the basement in a fierce six-hour battle.

Christian Phalangists making a last-stand on the upper floors held off the leftists for another hour before "being wiped out," a leftist spokesman said. A spokesman for the Phalangists confirmed the capture. "The Hilton Hotel has fallen," he said.

Another force of leftists pushed past the Hilton to the main squares of downtown Beirut where they battled Phalangists in a drive to cut across the city center to the Saifi headquarters of the Phalangist Party.

A Phalangist spokesman said the attacks were being repulsed.

A leftist spokesman said his forces "will not stop until we have cleared the Phalangists from the Hilton, from the center, from Saifi itself."

President Anwar Sadat met with his National Security Council in Cairo Sunday and proposed that Arab nations launch a joint mediation effort and send a symbolic force to Lebanon to impose calm.

The Middle East News Agency said the council, comprised of Egypt's highest leaders, felt the deteriorating situation in Lebanon would "lead to dangerous repercussions" throughout the Arab world.

Wallace to end career in '79 if not nominated

George Wallace said Sunday his main concern if he can't win the Democratic presidential nomination is using his delegates to make sure the party represents "the great middle class."

He also said if he is not nominated he will end his political career when his term as Alabama governor expires in January of 1979. On the other side of the political coin, GOP presidential challenger Ronald Reagan is trying to get on national television. His campaign media managers will try Monday to buy time on individual stations after charging three commercial networks refused to sell him 30 minutes of prime time.

Good news and bad in London: The bad news is that Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowden, after eight years of quarrels, found it impossible to maintain the pretense of living together any more. The good news, granting it was impossible to save the marriage, is that Margaret no longer will have domestic problems to worry her and can take her place alongside the Queen, Prince Philip, Prince Charles, the heir to the throne, and the rest in shouldering the ever-growing burden of public engagements.

King Hussein of Jordan, his left arm in a cast because of a karate injury sustained during training Thursday, arrived in Madrid Sunday and was greeted by King Juan Carlos. Hussein, 40, was to spend the night at the Zarzuela Palace before leaving Monday for Washington.

Richard Arlen, a silent screen actor who survived the transition to talkies and starred in the first motion picture to win an Academy Award, died Sunday at 75.

Policemen learn to defuse bombs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty years ago, when urban bombings were rare and the culprit was tagged a "mad bomber," only the largest cities had specialists on the police force trained to dispose of high explosives.

But with "urban guerrilla" bombings increasing, policemen in more than 600 cities in the 50 states are learning to dismantle a bomb before it kills and maims.

The hazards of tinkering with bombs are pointed up by statistics: of 24 persons killed by bombs in 1974, 11 were innocent victims and 13 were perpetrators — killed while making bombs or planting them.

Of 25 killed in the first six months of 1975, five were perpetrators. In both years about one-fifth of the persons injured were bombers rather than innocent victims.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, in a report issued Sunday, said a large number of the newly trained bomb squad experts — more than 1,700 — are graduates of its Hazardous Devices Training School at Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala.

Since organizing the school in 1970, the LEAA has spent $2.4 million training 1,730 graduates and giving refresher courses to 560 of them. Two graduates have been injured but none has died while handling a bomb.

Explosives and fire bombs ranging from primitive "Molotov cocktails" to military style weapons with sophisticated fuses are found in homes, cars, schools, police stations, airports and in the mails, the LEAA said.

Whenever a new device is found it is sent to Huntsville so students can study it, the LEAA said. In addition, the FBI's National Bomb Data System mentions the device in technical information it sends out.

The students — all volunteers — usually are experienced police officers accepted under a state quota basis. Each class of 22 students gets three weeks of training.

They learn which bombs can be safely defused and which will explode if touched. They also learn basics in explosives science, electrical theory and bomb trends.

Sgt. Michael W. Drucquer of the Berkeley, Calif., police department said, "It is by far the finest school I've ever attended. Besides teaching you about bombs it gives you the confidence you need to handle them."

Crockett remembered for dedication and humor

One hundred years ago the people of Weakley County, Tenn. celebrated the United States Centennial on July 4, 1876 in Dresden, Tenn. One of two men giving historical speeches at that celebration was Col. John A. Gardner, the great-grandfather of Louise Arnold of Schaumburg, this week's $5 award winner.

From the Colonel's personal copy of his speech, Mrs. Arnold has come across some fascinating references to Davy Crockett.

Col. Davy Crockett was born Aug. 17, 1786, on the Nolachucky River in east Tennessee. In the early part of 1823, he and his wife settled in the southwest corner of Weakley County, Tenn. His nearest neighbor was seven miles away.

CROCKETT'S POLITICAL career was thrust upon him in this way. In the spring of 1823, he went with his skins to Jackson to buy coffee, sugar, powder, lead and salt. There he met with three candidates for the state legislature, one of whom said, "Crockett, you must offer for the legislature." The Colonel declined, saying he lived 40 miles from any white settlement.

He returned home and in a short time a man came to his house and told him he was a candidate, and pulled out a newspaper in which Crockett was announced. Crockett told his wife this was intended as a burlesque upon him and that he would make it cost for the man who put it there, at least the value of the printing.

He hired a man to work in his place and went into the canvass. The three candidates became alarmed and two retired in favor of the third. At the same time, two other candidates came out. Crockett won by 247 votes.

DAVY CROCKETT subsequently served three separate terms in the United States Congress. Then, in 1835, he was defeated for Congress and this terminated his public career.

Backward Glance

It was in this canvass that Col. Crockett played his celebrated prank on Job Snelling. He bought from Job 10 quarts of whiskey to treat the crowd, and paid for each quart with the same coon skin — it being the price of a single quart.

Job would stick it in the crack of the log cabin and Crockett would steal it out when Job's eyes were turned in another direction, and pay for another quart with it. Crockett afterwards offered to pay Job for his whiskey, but it was so good a joke that Job refused the money.

SOON AFTER his defeat in 1835, he left his family in Weakley County, and joined the brave band of patriots in Texas under General Samuel Houston, struggling against their Mexican oppressors for freedom and independence.

Said Col. John Gardner in his speech of July 4, 1876: "He fell fighting bravely in the bloody conflict of the Alamo . . . He poured out his blood and gave up his life on the altar of human freedom . . . It is an honor to our county to have numbered David Crockett among her citizens for a period of 12 years."

Women's fashions will be modeled by members of the organization and men's fashions by several men administrators from the north suburban area schools.

All proceeds will go toward scholarships for selected high school students to further their education in the field of business services. Tickets are $8 per person and may be obtained by calling Florence Atherton, 537-8270, before March 30.

April 2 is the last day high school students may apply for this year's college level, tuition-free anthropology course at the Field Museum of Natural History. The program is open to 27 high-ability juniors who have the academic ability and interest in an intensive six weeks of anthropology.

Students will be selected on the basis of academic achievement, recommendation of teachers and personal interviews. Application forms are available through high school officials or may be obtained from Harriet Smith, director of the program, 922-9410.

Teachers, Dist. 214 reach impasse in contract talks

Negotiations between teachers and the board of education in High School Dist. 214 have reached an impasse.

Negotiators for teachers and the board began bargaining in January and reached the impasse stage this week. According to Randall Knudsen, president of the Dist. 214 teachers union, salary talks take three forms, negotiations, impasse and fact finding.

Federal help sought in try for lake funds

which must decide whether to add the Lake Arlington project to the plan, has opposed the 113-acre lake because of the high cost.

INSTEAD OF the lake, the Soil Conservation Service and the Army Corps of Engineers have proposed digging a diversionary overflow ditch five-feet deep along a southern branch of McDonald Creek to solve area flooding problems. Estimated cost of the channel is $350,000.

Village engineers say the diversionary ditch will not resolve upstream flooding problems. If that plan is implemented, full development of land west of Windsor Road still will force the village to build a lake, they have argued.

A decision by the Soil Conservation Service to not include Lake Arlington in the Des Plaines River Watershed Plan would not be a "death blow" to the project, Ryan said.

"The project will proceed one way or another, but it makes more sense to be included by SCS," he said.

according to the negotiating agreement in Dist. 214.

Each stage "is more serious than the other" in that the teams have less time to reach an agreement, said Knudsen. He said talks have reached the impasse stage because the two sides were unable to reach an agreement before the end of the 60-day negotiations period in stage one. The impasse stage is 20 days in length.

Both sides have agreed to a news blackout on negotiations. Information on the progress of talks is being released by mutual agreement.

Teachers are now in the third year of a three-year contract which expires in August. The base salary is now $10,140 and beginning teachers earn 97 per cent of the base $9,836, until they are placed on tenure.

Candidates night switched in Dist. 21

The Alcott School PTA has changed its candidates night with Wheeling-Elk Grove Dist. 21 school board candidates from today to Tuesday.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the school, 530 Bernard Dr., Buffalo Grove.

By village planner

New multi-family area proposed

The creation of a new multi-family residential zoning district is being proposed by the Arlington Heights village planner.

The new district is part of a package of revisions in the village zoning codes that Joe Kesler, village planner, will present to the village plan commission at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The other proposed changes include requiring a special use permit for restaurants in all business and manufacturing districts and decreasing the permitted number of commercial operations in research and development districts.

THE PROPOSED residential zone, would have density limits between those for single family areas and areas zoned for larger apartment buildings, Kesler said.

He said the new zone, if approved, could be used for townhouses, duplex and two-flat projects. The new "in-between zone is badly needed," he said.

The new zoning district would allow:

- About eight one- and two-bedroom units per acre. The existing multi-family zoning allows almost 14 units per acre.

- About seven units of three-bedroom apartments per acre. Ten units per acre are permitted with the present zoning classification.

- Six units of four-bedroom apartments per acre. Multi-family zoning now allows almost nine units per acre.

The other changes recommended by Kesler would require restaurants to get special use permits in all business and manufacturing zones. He said the special use requirement would give the village greater control over the types of uses going into those zones.

Kesler said the new restrictions on research and development districts are needed to protect the limited amount of land available for industrial parks in the village.

He said the existing ceiling of 20 per cent of the parks available for commercial businesses should be lowered to 10 per cent.

He said the village is "losing valuable industrial land to restaurants, nursing homes and bowling alleys" that could be built in other areas.

If bids are OKd

April start seen for flood project

Construction of the Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls flood-control project is likely to begin next month if bids opened last week are approved by the Arlington Heights Village Board Monday.

The cost of the project will be less than the original estimate of $675,000 if the low bids are accepted.

The low bids for the project's two contracts were submitted by the DiPaolo Co. of Niles, $175,522, and Rossi Contractors of Northlake, $408,045.

The project involves the construction of a new storm water storage basin between Douglas and Belmont avenues, north of the Evangelical Free Church, a four-court tennis facility, an open-air amphitheatre and mod-fications to the existing storm water reservoir between Hickory and Douglas avenues.

The purpose of the Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls flood-control project is to alleviate flooding in the Hickory Meadows area, the Hampton North subdivision, the Arlington Knolls area and in the 1400 block of North Dunton Avenue, Village Engineer Allen Sander said.

The bids are now being studied by a consultant and the engineering department to determine whether the low bidders should receive the two contracts. A recommendation will be given to the village board Monday.

Woman faces gambling charge

An Arlington Heights woman was arrested Saturday on gambling charges for allegedly operating a sports wire betting service out of her apartment.

Sue Reid, 35, of 2604 N. Windsor Dr., was arrested in the apartment of another resident at the address by Chicago and Arlington Heights police.

The woman reportedly was taking bets over the telephone on college basketball games and other sporting events, police said. Chicago authorities had been investigating the operation prior to the arrest.

Police said the woman dumped a number of betting slips in the toilet when they entered the apartment and identified themselves.

While they were in the apartment, police said about 14 calls were received. Six of the callers wanted to place bets totaling $2,000 on basketball games, police said.

No charges were placed Saturday against the resident who lived in the apartment, police said.

Another woman was arrested Saturday on similar charges in unincorporated Maine Township, but details were unavailable Sunday.

Dancer showcase this weekend

The High School Dist. 214 Dance Teachers Assn. will present the district's top dancers and dance selections this weekend in the district-wide show "Two One Four Dance Festival '76."

The festival will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

The festival features the two best dancers from each of the district's eight high school orchestras shows, a new modern dance number choreographed and performed by dancers from each school and a specialty toe dance with ballet performers.

A jazz dance choreographed by Vicki Jacobs of Hersey High School will be performed by district dance teachers. The show will offer modern jazz and classical numbers.

The goal of the dance teachers is to achieve consistently high standards in dance technique and performance, while furthering dance as an art form in the district.

Ticket information is available through Sue Nelson, Prospect High School, 255-9700, ext. 242.

The way we see it

Omnibus appropriations could speed legislature

The Illinois General Assembly goes back to work next week facing many important decisions regarding the state's financial condition.

That preview has a familiar ring to it. It seems like every time the lawmakers start their trek toward Springfield lately, they have to tighten their money belts another notch.

The legislature now faces a double-barrelled money problem. First they must review more than two dozen supplemental appropriation bills. Then they must turn to the fiscal 1977 budget. Both projects are critical to the state's financial future.

State Rep. Gerald Shea, D-Berwyn, has brought an interesting twist to the legislature's budget deliberations. He has taken the initiative to introduce a series of omnibus appropriations bills. The bills will allow the legislature to begin its work sooner. In the past the General Assembly was at the mercy of the governor as to when it received appropriations bills, because he presented the bills at his own pace.

It appears Shea has taken the lead from the governor this year. The move will give lawmakers some additional time to study and act on the budget.

Some legislators are questioning Shea's intent. He is leaving the General Assembly at the end of the year. While he is a powerful friend of Mayor Richard J. Daley, the party refused to slate him for Cook County state's attorney. Some observers believe Shea was displeased with the mayor over this.

But if politics are put aside for a moment, Shea's action seems to have merit. He has put the state's spending picture into a larger frame. In the past, the legislature has been forced to consider each department's budget separately, and the lawmakers complained they were not able to assess the impact of one budget on other state agencies. This will no longer be the case. The concept of omnibus appropriations legislation is a step in the right direction.

But even Shea's move will not eliminate the need for caution that must be shown by the lawmakers in this session.

The supplemental appropriations bills seek to restore the funds vetoed last fall. The money was not there then, and it certainly is not available now.

Illinois House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville, has warned that the state does not have the money sought by educational interests. However, the pressure will be intense for approval of these funds.

Reports of proposed teacher lay-offs in the suburbs, coupled with the recent announcement of early Chicago public school closings and reduced teacher salaries, should be viewed by the legislature as a foretaste of major battles ahead.

It would be nice to fill all those requests, but the members of the General Assembly must move with caution.

This is really more sensible!

Lighter side

Shirtsleeves going to pot?

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stubby-armed men of the world, en garde!

By next fall, by some estimates, only 50 per cent of the dress shirts sold by department stores will have specific sleeve lengths.

The others will have "average," or one-size-fits-all, sleeves.

Which means that some of us will be going around with our bare wrists hanging out, and some will have only our fingertips visible.

"Average" shirt lengths will be based on neck size. If, for example, you wear a 15-inch collar, the manufacturer might arbitrarily calculate that you need a 32-inch sleeve.

The trouble is that shirt makers are accustomed to dealing with those evenly proportioned dudes you see in their advertisements.

A manufacturer undoubtedly can measure a few of their necks and arms and come up with an average correlation between the two. There is, however, a great deal of difference between what is "average" and what is "normal."

Or, perhaps I should say, what is "typical."

In the normal, or typical, man, the circumference of the neck bears absolutely no relation to armspan.

Logically, it might be assumed that the bigger the neck, the longer the arm. But typically, it doesn't work out that way.

Your typical, thick-necked individual is likely to have such stumpy arms he has to stand on a footstool to tie his necktie.

Contrawise, a chap with a typically scrawny neck may be able to tie his shoes without bending over.

Furthermore, under normal conditions, a man will have one arm that is longer than the other.

Some anatomists argue that the arms actually are the same length, but vary in extension owing to the fact that one shoulder is higher than the other.

Either way, it makes for poorly fitted shirts.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Monday, March 29, the 89th day of 1976 with 277 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aries.

John Tyler, 10th president of the United States, was born March 29, 1790.

On this day in history:
In 1812, the first wedding was performed in the White House. Mrs. Lucy Payne Washington, sister-in-law of President James Madison, was married to Supreme Court Justice Thomas Dodd.
In 1971, Army Lt. William Calley was found guilty of the murder of 22 civilians in Vietnam.
In 1973, the last U.S. troops left South Vietnam and the last American prisoners of war were freed by North Vietnam.
In 1975, President Ford signed a $22.8 billion tax reduction bill enacted by Congress.

(by United Press International)

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., March 29 — Gen. Charles Lee arrived in the Virginia capital and took up quarters in the mansion of refugee Royal Gov. Lord Dunmore while awaiting any moves by British Gen. Clinton. He upbraided several local officials as indolent and inept.

Prospect Heights has many issues

Now that the dust has about settled on the number of candidates to be voted upon for the new village of Prospect Heights, many of us wish you would open your pages to foster debate.

As I see it at this time, there are not too many issues to discuss.

The main one that bothers me is government by cronyism. That is, all the electees might be the same, all PHIA members. You see the same clubs, the same church or the same parties which is where most decisions are made here. For the PHIA is nothing but a club run by a clique. As you can tell, I oppose the PHIA and would prefer someone to vote for who has never joined. Even if a person voted for incorporation does not necessarily mean that the person supports this group or the people who run it.

Then, of course, we voters would like to know where our candidates stand on spending our way into trouble, as so many other communities have with grandiose schemes.

Also, it would be helpful to know what credentials a person has for public office. The budgets made for the other functions here such as sewer construction. Park districts are a joke. It would be encouraging to know the person you elected at least understands how to estimate costs and can say no to fly-by-night estimates.

If you would only assign your reporters to these projects and let them dig you would be of great service to all of us here.

Prospect Heights is a unique place and many of us want to keep it that way.

In other matters, we have devoted much more time to smaller interest groups. School districts frequently propose similar referendums more than once. I hope I do not see the day when we are not willing to listen to what our residents want to say.

THIS IS A complex issue with many facets. We are trying to determine if the situation has changed significantly since July, 1975. The Herald, in both of its editorials on the subject, appears to be trying to steamroller the voters and the board.

Park should be a 'mark of pride'

Buffalo Grove will lose a valuable asset if the uncreative, unimaginative plan for Willow Stream Park recently announced by the Jaycees and the park board develops.

The decision for this plan was formulated and arrived at by the Jaycees and the park board more than a year ago. In spite of subsequent meetings of the citizens with these two groups and citizen recommendations to them for a higher and better use for that resource, their original plan remains unchanged with respect to all essential citizen recommendations.

The area in danger is a limited resource. It currently has the potential to become an outstanding village attraction. If this natural resource must succumb to development as these groups tell us, then progressive thinking and careful planning could make it a mark of pride and distinction for the entire community of Buffalo Grove. A wholly balanced plan for this land would emphasize its existing natural condition. It would also include natural attractions for all age groups for all seasons of the year.

The Jaycees and the park board intend to place on this site playground equipment, some of which their member personnel describe as grotesque in appearance. This questionable equipment is to be installed in an area which they admit is not desirably accessible. Its possible use, therefore, is highly in doubt. They are undertaking this $25,000 unfunded venture a few hundred yards from similar type equipment at the pool site which is also not really being used and is often standing in mud, broken and in disrepair.

Park boards throughout the suburbs and the nation are achieving creative things. New constructive, imaginative areas are being developed. Park boards are applying visionary, creative thinking to sound goals and objectives for the limited land resources entrusted to their care. They are improving things and moving forward. Why should Buffalo Grove accede to mediocrity? Willow Stream Park presents a tangible opportunity to achieve park excellence. Why throw this opportunity away?

The parks of Buffalo Grove are an essential part of the community. We

Herald steamrolling board?

In an editorial in the March 23 Palatine Herald, it is implied that the Palatine Park District Board has devoted an excessive amount of time to discussing the Ice Spectrum.

Although The Herald has had articles on the subject since October, the board did not have sufficient information to begin reconsidering the subject until Feb. 24, 1976. It has been reconsidered, therefore, at two board meetings and two committee meetings.

The board has a policy of listening to anyone who has something to say; a group that has secured 2,700 signatures certainly deserves more than a cursory hearing.

It's sad that fancy uniforms, the best in fields and equipment (the president informed me they have to compete with neighboring towns) necessary to please adults keeps kids from enjoying a game that is supposed to be for them.

Having had a child in last summer's Wheeling Park District baseball program (at a cost of $8) where every child, skilled or unskilled at the sport, played and had a great time in a T-shirt and hat (which they keep and treasure), makes me wish the park district would offer the game for all age groups. If this is not possible perhaps the W.A.A. should reconsider their program and remember that baseball is for all kids — not only those whose parents can pay the $30.

'Baseball fee high, park program needed

Spring — once again the thoughts of boys (and girls) turn to baseball.

Unfortunately, many of Wheeling's children will not be playing with the Wheeling Athletic Association teams because of the $30 fee. I spoke to the president of the organization about this. However, he didn't feel there was anyone in the village who couldn't afford the $30. I advised him three parents had told me this was the case. His attitude was — if a boy wants to play ball badly enough he

Vivian Cosby

Memorial services for Vivian Cosby, 80, of Palatine, and a retired employee of the American Medical Assn., will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 1 at the Palatine Presbyterian Church.

Miss Cosby died in her home Saturday.

A native of Kentucky, she studied at McLain College, and in early life, was a piano teacher. During the early days of radio, she played piano and sang over WGES radio, in the old Guyon's Paradise Ballroom, and was piano-vocal entertainer at the Knickerbocker Hotel, Chicago.

For more than 27 years, she worked for the AMA, in the public relations, press relations and communications division. At the time of her retirement, at age 72, she was a research librarian.

Miss Cosby was an organizing member and officer of the Community Club of Palatine Park subdivision of Palatine. She was co-ordinator and writer with her sister of the Palatine Park News column in the Palatine Enterprise (Herald) in the mid-1940s. An organizing member of the Palatine Park Garden Club, she was a charter member of the Presbyterian Church of Palatine and served on its first board of deacons.

Survivors include her sister, Geraldine Cosby, with whom she lived, a niece, grand nephew and three grand nieces.

Her body was donated to the Northwestern University School of Medicine. Memorials may be made to the University of Kentucky School of Medicine, for research, or to the organ fund of the Palatine Presbyterian Church.

Leonard C. Stenberg

Services for Leonard C. Stenberg, 78, of Des Plaines, will be held at 10 a.m. today at the Des Plaines Funeral Home, 1717 Rand Rd., Des Plaines. Burial will be in Mount Emblem Cemetery.

He died Friday at the Brookwood Nursing Home, Des Plaines.

Survivors include his sister, Alma Grabbie, Chicago; brothers, Walter and Charles, both of Chicago; and sister-in-law, Virginia Noe, Des Plaines.

Louise Taylor

Services for Louise Taylor, 84, of Palatine, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Ahlgrim Funeral Home, 201 W. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery, Des Plaines.

She died Sunday in the Eden View Nursing Home, Northbrook.

Survivors include her husband, Wilburn; sons, Lawrence and Leslie; daughter, Marge; 12 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, brothers James and Daniel Ingraham and sisters, Viola Whitkamp, Esther Bierman and Betty Ingraham.

Visitation will be from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. today at the funeral home.

TV magician buys into restaurant

Marshall Brodien, a television magician personality and Schaumburg business owner, recently purchased a 50 per cent interest in The Lancer Steak House restaurant, Schaumburg.

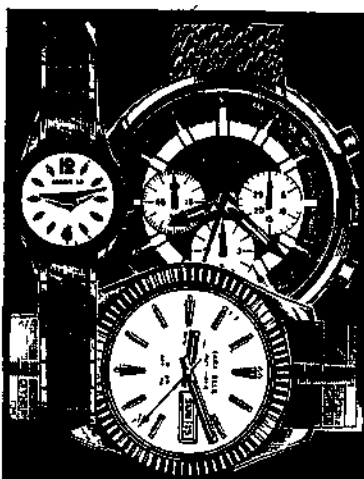

Brodien and Perry Kapos are co-owners of the restaurant and ballroom complex, 50 E. Algonquin Rd. No changes other than a major remodeling project are slated, Brodien said. He purchased half-interest in Lancer from Nick Tselos.

Shopping at Neiman-Marcus?

Make sure your wallet's fat

by MARIANNE SCOTT

If you set out to buy a new Easter outfit for under $100 you'll be pretty hard-pressed to find one at Neiman-Marcus, the posh Dallas-based chain which opened a branch store in Northbrook earlier this month. But then you'd be hard-pressed at many quality stores.

Obvious to the browser at N-M are the three and four-figure price tags and it's easy to get the zeros and decimal points mixed. Couture and designer fashions are the rule rather than the exception at N-M which aims to serve upper income customers, primarily.

With your $100, and excluding outer and under garments, you can outfit yourself in a wrap skirt and tee shirt for around $50. Espadrilles would be another $30 plus — dress shoes at N-M are priced around $68, some at $100.

YOU CAN ADD a $5 scarf, a ticking tote for $10, a $5 wooden bangle bracelet and a $5 hat, except that the $5 items will likely be sold out.

And there's a whole rack of casual cotton dresses priced at $58 and $66.

Not exactly what you would wear in the Easter parade? Well, if you already have a nice blouse, you could blow all your wad on a fake suede (Ultimate, not Ultrasuede) jumper for $90, plus tax, and have a few dollars left over. An Ultrasuede jacket will run you $198; matching street-length skirt, $150, the same as in other stores.

If you wish to spend more, it's easy. A sweater from Italy for $220; a knitted vest, $130; a handbag for $190 to match your $68 shoes.

N-M, KNOWN throughout the world for its quality items and the unusual, is expecting to do a whopping business in Northbrook Court which is located on Lake Cook Road just east of Waukegan Road.

Salespersons expect to build up clientele through their friendly and helpful manner. All are pleasant and courteous to browsers and shoppers alike, and all speak well of their employers. "Mr. Marcus is so very warm and I think this has rubbed off on the employees," commented one of the sales force.

As in the case of all new stores, there are hundreds of "tourists" and most of them are chucking and taking over the high prices, but the clerks (called sales consultants) will gladly help you meet any budget.

IN THE BOUTIQUE, where prices start at $5, you can buy soapstone bracelets from India for $13. Here you can also purchase a scarf for $250, a hat for $95 or a handbag for $2,500. (The zeros are correct.) Embroidered, fringed shawls range from $350 to $700. A belt fashioned from horse blinders with silver trappings and old coins is tagged at $2,500; a silver necklace, $4,600.

The better jewelry, with a security guard just in case, is displayed under lock and key, and price tags are not visible. If you're shopping there, you shouldn't have to ask the prices. A diamond ring for the man in your life is priced at $21,000. Other jewelry tops $100,000.

Least expensive item in the better jewelry is a $70 golden house key (you pay extra to have it cut to fit your lock). There is a costume jewelry department with prices matching that of other fine stores, but there's no bargain basement.

IN THE GIFT department you can purchase an 18th century Oriental screen with rosewood frame and hand-carved ivory figurines for $9,500, or an antique chocolate mold for $55; a wooden salad bowl for $150, matching servers for $25.

The linens department includes a handmade tablecloth in seashell pattern at $3,000.

Price tags in the children's and menswear departments are in keeping with the rest of the store. Men's socks cost $2.50 to $6.50 per pair. A shave towel with giant pocket is $25; the matching robe, $50.

Prices in the candy department don't have much of a range. It's $7.50 per pound for boxed candy; $8 per pound if you pick out your own. Cooking chocolate is $6 per pound. Fancy cheese and caviar are sold in the gourmet department.

DEPARTMENTS ARE laid out around a skylight atrium and mirrored octagons highlight some of the department ceilings.

Decor does not overshadow the merchandise but is soothing as in most fine stores. And, as in other stores, tropical, potted plants and live trees add to the surroundings.

To the average shopper the outstanding difference between N-M and other "fancy" stores is that while N-M claims it has merchandise in all price ranges and "something for everyone," it definitely has more for the rich pocket book than the average one that must watch the zeros and decimals.

Beauty business pays off for the Vidal Sassoons

by ELLIE GROSSMAN

Watch it. There goes another gibe camouflaged as a pleasantry. It's aimed by the young, darkly exquisite but unaccomplished American wife towards her older, much accomplished English husband. He, in turn, is protective and retaliatory.

When she says, "Sometimes I help promote a new salon or the company asks my opinion about something, not that my opinion means much," he jumps in with, "She has inherent good taste."

But later, when she's discussing life goals — "When you were a child, didn't you just know you'd end up looking a certain way . . .", he laughs and teases, "You like the way you look, do you? Come on, you know you do." And she's flustered.

IT'S THE SASSOONS, Beverly and Vidal. At 40, lean and charming, he's the proprietor of a worldwide web of hair salons that keeps him pinballing from America to Europe. In one period of 17 days, for instance, he city-hopped through England before landing in New York to meet Beverly and start promoting their book, "A Year of Health and Beauty."

Beverly, meanwhile, taller and lankier, her short hair smoothed across her forehead to frame her dark, lemur eyes, had been at home in Beverly Hills, taking care of their four children. "There's a tremendous amount of pressure at home, much more than you get on a plane," she says laughing.

And two days a week, she trekked to Santa Monica Junior College where she's enrolled in a liberal arts program.

"I'M IN MY second year there. I dropped out of college when I went under contract to Columbia Pictures, and then I met Vidal and became a wife and mother. School is totally away from fashion and beauty — not that I don't love them, but in school you're quite anonymous. It's a treat to do something on my own and not be judged as anybody."

They're both tired. It's mid-afternoon and they've already done two television shows and a couple of press interviews before this one, which is to be followed immediately with another.

Well, then, what of the book? "Simon and Schuster asked us to write it," Vidal says, "because we've been in the middle of so many related fields: hair, fashion, beauty and I've been going to health farms for 25 years." He's curled on the couch in their poorly heated Park Avenue hotel suite. "I introduced Beverly to health foods. In fact, I proposed to her on an English health farm. Is one in a health farm or on one?" he quips.

THE SALIENT MESSAGE in the book, he says, is "energy level. We all have juices that we don't use because of lack of energy. That's why we play up exercise and eating in the book; it's fuel for the body."

And that regimen of vitamins, vegetables, meditation and exercise, he says, "kept me away from the psychiatrist's couch all these years."

He grew up in London's East End. And for Jews in this slum ghetto, while Hitler festered across the Channel, "life was tough. You hated back. I'm convinced that roots are important because my background gave me a very strong determination."

BEVERLY AND VIDAL SASSOON

At 14, to learn a trade, he became a shampoo boy. "But I couldn't get a job in the West End because of my Cockney accent, so I took speech lessons to cure it."

AT 20, THE WAR just over, he joined a commando group in the Israeli underground in the Negev Desert. "It was quite illegal," he says, "so we went in twos and threes by way of Paris and Marseilles where we'd wait in a displaced persons' camp for a ship or a plane. That year in Israel was the best of my life because it was something I volunteered for and it gave me a great deal of pride which I'd never had before."

Beverly has left the room and returned with an American history book, part of her college reading. He turns to her. "What are you reading? You're in this interview, too, you know."

She looks up. "I wasn't around in the war," she says.

"Yes," he muses, "you were two years old."

LET'S SEE. It says in the book she practices yoga. How often? "I'll be honest," she says, smiling, "Vidal is the disciplined one in the family. Sometimes I'll do an hour and a half of yoga a day and then go two weeks without doing any. And occasionally I go crazy and have junk food with my kids."

No, she doesn't feel being married to Sassoon is a burden. "I'm much more secure now," she says clutching her history book. "I don't feel like an accessory or an appendage to him."

"Did you know," he says, "I meditated at 4:30 this morning because I couldn't sleep? And then I did half an hour of exercise."

"I DIDN'T KNOW much of anything at 4:30," she says, then adds, laughing, "Yes, I heard you huffing and puffing."

The phone rings. It's the next interviewer. Later, when the note-takers are gone and the chilly hotel suite is quiet, what will they say to each other, the lovely young wife and the successful older husband? One wonders.

Atypical uterus cells need study

Please help me with a medical problem we are having with a close relative. She is in her mid-50s and she has been on a hormone medication for three to four years. She began having abnormal bleeding from the uterus.

She consulted her family doctor who sent her to a gynecologist. He advised her to have a D and C (dilation and curettage) which she did. The pathologist report came back "focal atypical adenomatous hyperplasia."

The gynecologist did not say that this abnormal tissue in the uterus was a cancer, but he did say it could become malignant. He left it up to her to decide whether or not she should have a hysterectomy. He hesitated because she had a heart attack three years ago and has occasional spells of angina. What is your opinion? Her cardiologist thinks she can take the major surgery and anesthesia.

The female hormones in medicines given to women after the menopause do stimulate the growth of the lining of the uterus (womb). This is because such preparations contain estrogen. During the normal menstrual cycle the natural female estrogen hormones stimulate the uterus to have an overgrowth of cells or hyperplasia. Then when menstruation comes they are shed. It is not surprising then that the overgrowth of cells was observed when a tissue specimen was taken from the lining of the uterus. The gynecologist is not upset because he realizes this, and he knows that increased cell growth occurs in response to such medicines.

Recent reports indicate that women who are taking female hormones after the menopause are four to 15 times more likely to develop cancer of the uterus. In the past many gynecologists have felt the one major danger from taking female hormones after the menopause was the possibility that the artificially stimulated growth of the lining of the uterus could lead to cancer.

One possible solution is to interrupt the hormones once a month and induce artificial bleeding by giving the other female hormone, progesterone. Answers to these and many other questions surrounding this problem have not yet been answered.

THE TERMS in the diagnosis that you include in your letter mean that the cells were not cancerous, but they were atypical, meaning they weren't quite normal either. If she wishes to continue taking female hormones and her cardiologist feels that she can undergo the surgery, it might be advisable for her to elect to have a hysterectomy. Otherwise it might be a good idea if she were put on a sequential type program which induced artificial shedding of the excess cell growth once a month.

There is literally no way to predict which patients will do well during surgery except to say that those who have had a recent heart attack or are in heart failure do poorly. Surgery within three to six months after a heart attack does increase the risk. The fact that your relative had the heart attack three years ago should mean that she is out of this group, and if her condition is as her cardiologist apparently thinks, she should be able to undergo the surgery without difficulty from her heart.

For information on the effect of female hormones send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 5-12, Menopause. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Scrub brush a must to clean fireplace

Dear Dorothy: I have a limestone wall at one end of the living room. This wall contains the fireplace of rough limestone, which is almost impossible to clean. The area above the fireplace is smoky, and I am wondering if you could tell me what to use to clean it and what method. — Mrs. Charles D. Stewart Jr.

There are several methods. All employ scrub brushes. The old FHA books recommended a solution of naphtha soap and hot water to which was added a small amount of powdered pumice and a small amount of household ammonia.

Another recommendation is to mix one cup of dishwasher detergent with half a bucket of very hot water and rinse with warm water that has a little bleach in it.

Others say to use soapy, steel wool pads and rinse with clear water.

Still another way is to use one of the popular wall cleaners (Spic-and-Span or Soliax) in solution. Whichever method you choose, the soot has to be removed first with a stiff brush — and, of course, the area around the fireplace has to be well covered.

Dear Dorothy: When I see butter on sale, I'm always tempted to buy more than we need so I can freeze some. But does it freeze, how well, and if it does, how long? — Midge Greenstein Butter made from pasteurized sweet cream freezes fine — for five to six months. However, it needs to be wrapped carefully in moisture-vaporproof material as it can pick up odors fast.

(Mrs. Rita welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 230, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60005.)

Ask Andy

Pomegranates—fruity, seedy treat

Andy sends the Encyclopedia Britannica's Yearbook of Science and the Future to Mary Kay Helsel, 11, of Poland, Ohio, for her question: HOW AND WHERE DO POMEGRANATES GROW?

The delicious fruits we enjoy come in a variety of shapes, sizes, colors and flavors. Some, like the plum and the grape, are ready to eat right from the tree or vine. Others, such as the banana and the orange, are covered with a skin that must be peeled before we eat them. The pomegranate really makes us work to get through its leathery hide, but the tasty treat inside is worth the effort.

The pomegranate is very much at home in western Asia and southern Europe. Although it grows in many climates, it does best in an area where high temperatures and a dry spell accompany its ripening period. This is when it produces its finest fruits.

Pomegranates found their way to the Americas with a little help from the early Spanish colonists. The warmer parts of the United States, Central and South America were to its liking, and there they flourished. Even though pomegranates are grown commercially in some states, they can still be found growing wild or in clumps, like a tall hedge.

The pomegranate plant is a bushy shrub. When growing wild it reaches 10 feet or so in height. When cultivated, however, it is pruned to look more like a tree and then may reach a height of 20 feet. Its shiny dark-green leaves are oblong with pointed tips and grow to be about three inches long. Trumpet-shaped flowers of bright red or orange with yellow centers round out its handsome appearance.

The fruit, which grows below the attractive flower, is about as large as an orange and varies in color from brownish-red to golden-red. Enclosed inside a tough leathery skin are hundreds of tiny seeds, and each seed is covered with its own casing of red pulp. When we eat a pomegranate or drink a glass of pomegranate juice, we enjoy the pulp surrounding the tiny seeds.

Pomegranates grow best in soil that is rich in loam. They can be grown from seeds or from cuttings. Seeds are easily started, but the best plants come from hardwood cuttings 10 to 12 inches long. The three leading varieties of commercially grown pomegranates in the United States are named Wonderful, Paper-Shell and Spanish Ruby. Some dwarf forms of the pomegranate bush are cultivated solely for their beautiful flowers.

Although tasty and refreshing, pomegranates are rather low in nutritional value. They do, however, contain some calcium and iron. The bark of the pomegranate bush yields a drug, pelletierine, which is useful in treating internal parasites.

Andy sends a student globe to Kristina Pope, 8, of Franklin, N.C., for her question:

HOW DOES A VENTRILOQUIST THROW HIS VOICE?

The talented ventriloquist projects or "throws" his voice by expert use of throat and palate muscles, the tongue and the lips. He is an extremely capable and convincing entertainer, too. If he uses a dummy, he maneuvers the dummy's lips to match his words. Because the ventriloquist holds the dummy on his knee or otherwise close to him, we willingly accept the deception. If no dummy is used, the ventriloquist will skillfully direct our attention to the person or object where he desires the voice to be.

Ventriloquism is a very old art, practiced by the ancient Greeks, Egyptians and Hebrews. The artist practices a long time before he is able to conjure up the variations of tones and inflections he needs to be convincing. To do this, he forms the words in the normal manner of talking, but the breath is allowed to escape slowly while the mouth is opened as little as possible. The tongue is pulled back and only its tip moves. The pressure on the vocal cords creates the illusion of distance between the ventriloquist and his subject.

Marj Everett pushes 'Little Triple'

It's like watching your ugly sister walk off with the rich handsome bachelor after you've put on your best gown and jewelry and most fetching hairdo.

Marj Everett of Hollywood Park is one who has chafed at the spectacle of Louisville dominating a spring and summer racing scene so thoroughly. Public interest heightens as contenders, like candidates in a primary contest, meet each stepping-stone to the big race — including the Kentucky race called just that, The Stepping Stone.

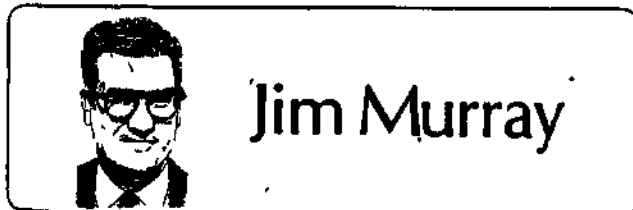

When Hollywood Park traditionally opened in the past, the Kentucky Derby was all over. The flower of the 3-year-old field was depleted in the exhausting march to Louisville, leaving the local tracks only the losers in that march.

A few years ago, in a juggling of dates, Hollywood Park got an early April opening. Still, the stock had gone East by that time. The eyes of the country were on the Triple Crown. Nobody got up an office pool on the fifth at Hollywood Park or the eighth at Los Alamitos. But people who have never seen a horse race were glued to the TV that first Saturday in May to see how the number they drew in the office would do.

THIS YEAR, MARJ in concert with Santa Anita and Golden Gate, in Northern California, hit upon an audacious plan: Instead of having the Santa Anita Derby as the only major stepping stone in the West to the Kentucky Derby, she would propose a Little Triple Crown.

First order of business was to change the date of the Golden Gate Derby (The California Derby) from late April to early March, and beef up the purse to $150,000. Heretofore it had been a kind of last-chance contest for horses who either didn't get to the Santa Anita Derby — or didn't get to the winner in it.

If there's one race horsemen fear and loath more than any other, it's the eighth at Churchill Downs in Kentucky the first Saturday in May. It puts them on a spot they don't care for. It's too early in the year, the horses are too young, the straightaway too long. The whole country is looking on. The public thinks it's for the world heavyweight championship of racing, but there are a few dogs in there that don't belong in the fifth race.

You see, racing is not a "sport." It's a complicated crapshoot. And horse trainers, like any gamblers, are always looking for an edge. A horseman's idea of a great race is an overnight with a hefty purse where he's got the only dead fit animal, whom he has carefully brought along to suit conditions which insure nobody else in the field can even warm him up.

There's pressure from the owner, the press, his own family, and society in general in the Kentucky Derby. Guys have been forced to enter "short" horses (short on conditioning, not stature), horses who really should be turned out, and horses who haven't reached their full growth.

The race is a rodeo. The jockeys can do everything but pull guns. They have never taken a whimper down in the Kentucky Derby, although they have had some whip fights between jockeys down the stretch. Anywhere else, they would get a year. On the street, they might get life.

Among those who hate the Kentucky Derby are other track owners. They sink fortunes into palatial clubhouses, import the finest nursery stock for their infield, plant artificial lakes, install escalators, put up mink-and-orchid turf clubs — and then watch a broken-down clubhouse which is 90 per cent attic, and looks like something that needs a termite inspection, draw 200,000 people who bet $6 or $7 million in a day, drink up pipelines of booze with grass in it, pay outrageous prices for hotel rooms, meals and taxicabs.

The new chips in the game were put on the table by Hollywood Park — a $200,000 Hollywood Derby for April 17.

It is now possible for a horseman to contest for the lion's share of a half a million dollars in a 'Little Triple' in a little over a month — without ever ferrying his animal across the mountains, or braving the mint julep brigade of Kentucky.

It is also possible for a stable to ship the winner of any or all of these races back to Kentucky for the Derby. If he's running for the history books and not the bank books, he'll do it. But it will take an iron horse. You have to put a "bottom" in a horse to fit him for the real Triple Crown, but this may be overdoing it.

The defection of the California contingent may take an edge off the Run For The Roses, and make Kentuckians term ours The Run For The Sour Grapes. It is considered an axiom of racing that no horse can win at Churchill without a run over its track — or some Kentucky track.

An owner entering the Hollywood Derby will now have 14 days to ship and work his horse in the blue grass. You can bet it will be an owner's decision. Trainers, who have been looking for a way to duck My Old Kentucky Home for generations, now have it.

Indiana, Michigan battle tonight for NCAA crown

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Michigan Wolverines, who have come the closest to beating Big Ten rival Indiana this season, are the only obstacle left between the Hoosiers and the national championship that has eluded them so far during their two-year domination of college basketball.

"Fortunately, here we are," Michigan coach Johnny Orr said Sunday in anticipation of the (7 p.m. Channel 5) Monday title game. "Although I don't know what's so fortunate about playing Indiana three times."

Michigan has lost six games this season, including the pair to Indiana, but gained a berth in the nationally-televised championship game with an 86-70 victory over Rutgers in Saturday's semifinals.

When the Hoosiers later made defending national champion UCLA their 31st consecutive victim of the season, 65-51, the NCAA had its first championship pairing between two teams from the same conference.

Only the 1958 Kentucky Wildcats, 23-6, have won the national title with as many as six losses. And Michigan, 25-6, is not ranked as high as the Alabama, Marquette and UCLA teams the Hoosiers already have beaten en route to the NCAA final.

But Indiana coach Bobby Knight had a great deal of praise for the Big Ten runnerup.

"I think Michigan is the best team we've played this year," Knight said.

Much of that respect was earned when Michigan almost upset the Hoosiers on their home court in Bloomington. Indiana's All-America center Kent Benson just beat the buzzer with a tap-in to send the game into overtime and Indiana pulled out a 72-67 victory.

Orr, who delivers his homespun humor with a flat Midwestern twang, said he was asked if he was glad to be playing Indiana one more time.

"Gosh, you think I'm nuts," he replied.

"I think we can win. I don't know how, but I think we can win."

"Defensively, we played everything at Bloomington. At one point, Bobby asked me what we were playing and I told him 'Damned if I know, but I'm not changing.'"

The Indiana roster looks as if Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes, one of the Knight's idols, does the recruiting. Benson, 6-11 and 245-pounds has enough muscle for an entire team but the Hoosiers provide plenty of support.

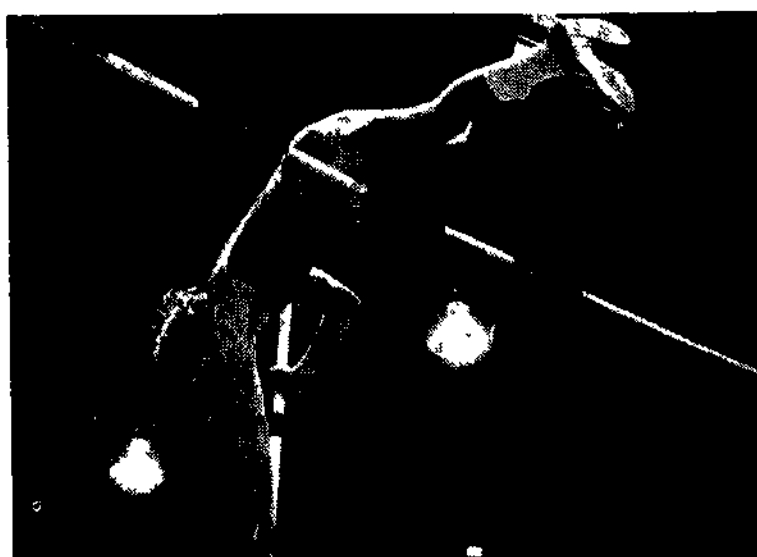

Scott May, UPI's Player of the Year, is a solidly built 6-7 forward with outstanding quickness and the best outside shot on the Indiana team.

Tom Abernethy, another 6-7 forward, has labored anonymously most of the season, but grabbed the spotlight Saturday with 14 points and a terrific defensive job on UCLA All-America Richard Washington. Abernethy suffered a severe bruise above his left knee in that game but probably will be able to play Monday night.

Quinn Buckner, who had one of his best games of the season against the Bruins, and Bobby Wilkerson are the starting guards.

Michigan will counter with speed. Freshman center Phil Hubbard, a slender 6-7, is the Wolverines' tallest starter.

"Out of necessity, Hubbard's going to have to guard Benson," Orr said.

Hoffman Estates' Dave Paape, Oak Park champion.

Paape wins at Oak Park

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

For confidence-builders, there's nothing like winning at the Oak Park Relays. But Hoffman Estates pole vaulter Dave Paape may not have needed the boost.

The Hawk senior already had the state's second-best vault, so his winning 14-3 effort at Oak Park late Saturday night just added to his growing list of accomplishments.

Paape, who tied for second at Oak Park last year, joins a respectable roster of pole-vault champions at this largest of indoor meets, a list that includes former state champion Tim Johnson and Illinois co-record-holder Bruce Mahlig of Schaumburg.

Second place at Oak Park isn't too bad either, especially if the first-place finisher is national record-setter Greg Foster of Proviso East. Foster ran a :07.0 in the 60-yard high hurdles, tying his own state mark before breaking a national prep record with a :06.7 in the 60-lows.

Right behind Foster in second place in the highs was Forest View senior Jim Vartanian, who clocked :07.3 in the finals.

Vartanian and Fremd long jumper Lawson England were the Mid-Suburban League's only individual second-place finishers. Schaumburg's eight-lap relay team, made up of Steve Knudsen, Dave Hall, Steve Pace, and (Continued on next page) made another trip out of his country, to Mexico City in 1968, as a sprinter with the El Salvador Olympic Team.

"I've always been fast," Jose said, smiling.

He had put his speed to work playing basketball with the National Institute, the equivalent of an American high school. But he got out of that when a coach saw him cover 100 meters very quickly.

"My coach," Jose said, "he tell me he going to stand at the end of the track with a watch.

"Then he tell me to run and he'll see how fast I make it. I think he was surprised, because he said I should quit basketball and be a sprinter."

It was not a hard decision for Jose to make.

"IN BASKETBALL you play as a team. You throw the ball around and somebody take a shot. If it goes in, that player is happy, but he is still part of a team."

"If I do something good in running, that is all mine, man." And he laughs.

"After I became a sprinter, I was always running everywhere. I work out two times a day, every day, for four years."

"But I try other things. After I get done running I run over and be in long jump. Then I run over and be in the high jump."

Then he points to a cluster of gold, silver and bronze medals spread neatly over the pool table in his apartment.

THERE IS a bright light over the table, and sitting in the middle is a cage with two arguing parakeets, named Carlos and Mario, after his two sons, and scrapbooks of yellowed press clippings in Spanish.

Yet, there is no Olympic medal. Jose laughs and slaps the side of his thigh.

"Oh, man, they too FAST for me."

Jose ran the 100 and 200 meter sprints for his country. In his 100 meter heat, he ran seventh in the eight-man field despite turning in his best time ever at the distance, 10.4 seconds.

He finished last in his 200-meter heat.

"In my first heat, at 100 meters," Jose said, "I hold back because I save something for the other races."

"BUT I FOUND out I was too slow to hold back. I get down and they say, 'On your marks, get set, GO!' and I look up and everybody, they all ahead of me, man."

He smiles and shakes his head, "I beat one guy from the Republica Dominicana."

In his 200-meter heat Jose decided not to hold back.

"I thought," he remembered, "if I run as hard as I can I might last longer. In the 100-meter, that race is so fast once it start, BOOM, it's over."

"With the 200, you got more time."

"I was really nervous, man. I kept telling myself, 'You got to run like you never run before, Jose.'"

HE WAS TOO anxious to get going.

"We all get down in the block, man," he said, "and the starter he says, 'On your mark, get set, and I'm already running."

"He's got a gun, you know, to start the race, and when he sees me he fires it, 'Bang-bang.' A false start, man."

Jose laughs at the memory.

"When I come back to the starting line the other guys, they really mad at me, man. They all say, 'Why you do that, man?'"

"But I was really loose then. I just get down in the block and I waiting, man. I'm not going to run too soon again because I would be disqualified."

"EVERYBODY ELSE, though, they really tight. Five guys had false starts before we got going."

And once the race began, "I was doing really good, man. I run like crazy and I got a good start. Then about halfway through I get tired, my legs feel like iron and I can't breathe, man."

"I'm even with all these guys, running like crazy, and they just start to pull away."

"They too FAST for me, man."

Then he laughs. "It was fun, though."

That was eight years ago, and since then Jose, who is 29, has moved from El Salvador to the United States. He had a friend in Chicago.

"My compadre, he say anytime I want I should come to Chicago. I was married and Maria was pregnant, so we came to the United States."

"THERE'S NO place like it in the world, man."

"When I went to the movies in San Salvador we'd see American movies. I tell my friends, 'I'm going there, man.'"

"And I did."

After working in a factory in Chicago for a time and being turned down for a college scholarship because of a language problem, Jose became a janitor for the Greens apartment complex in Des Plaines.

"I like it," he said. "I didn't like being inside all day. Here I'm outdoors, moving around all the time. The money is good, too. I like it here."

JOSE PLAYS soccer with his friends to keep in shape. He has taken up photography. The two portraits of Maria that hang on the wall of his apartment are frequently mistaken for studio productions.

He wants to go to college now that he has mastered English, and he wants to protect his family.

"I pretty lucky, man," Jose said. "I'm in a janitors' union, and they take care of me. The insurance is really nice. My kids get sick, the insurance takes care of it."

"These are things you got to do, man. My family comes first."

This summer, Jose and his family are visiting El Salvador.

"IT'S 2,000 MILES," he said. "We can drive in three days. People think Salvador is all jungle," and he laughs and smacks his forehead, "nothing but mosquitoes, man."

"But it's just like here. The cities in Salvador, they just as dirty as America."

"We're only going to stay a month, though," Jose said. "I like it here, man."

Because, among a hundred other reasons, the United States is "the greatest country in the world" and the ground doesn't shake in Des Plaines, Ill.

Hubie wins third straight

Red-hot Hubert Green blazed his way to a third straight tournament victory Sunday, winning the Heritage Golf Classic by a runaway five strokes and setting a PGA tour record by earning $118,000 in three weeks.

The 29-year-old Birmingham, Ala., pro picked up $43,000 to go with the $35,000 he earned by winning last week's Greater Jacksonville Open and the $40,000 he got the previous week for winning the Doral Open at Miami.

Green coasted to victory with a two-over-par 73 in the final round, for a four-day total of 10-under 274.

Jerry McGee, the winner of last year's Pensacola Open for his only tour victory in almost a decade, slipped into second place by shooting a three-under-par 68 for a five-under 279. That was worth $24,500 to McGee, less than $500 less than he got for winning at Pensacola.

Green started Sunday's play with a four-stroke lead over then-runnerup Bob Murphy, who quickly fell out of contention with a triple bogey on the second hole. Green was never seriously challenged during the sunny final round of the $215,000 tournament.

Hale Irwin, the two-time Heritage champion and leading money winner until Green passed him, was tied for third with Don January and Gibby Gilbert.

Green played the last three tournaments in a total of 40 under par, having set a record at Doral when he was 18 under and going 12 under last week at Jacksonville.

Bart has birthday best

Niles West high school student Bart Conner of Chicago upset the world's top gymnasts on his birthday Sunday to win the over-all men's competition at the Inaugural American Gymnastics Cup competition.

Conner was first in two of the six categories, winning the pommel horse with a score of 9.35 and tying for the men's vault with Andrezej Szajna of Poland on a score of 9.45. Conner's aggregate was 56.45 of a possible 60.00. An average of 9.43.

Sox (White and Red) tie

The Chicago White Sox and the Boston Red Sox played to a 1-1 15-inning tie Sunday that was called because Boston ran out of pitchers.

The White Sox scored in the first inning on successive singles by Ralph Garr, Jorge Orta and Cleon Jones. Jones had four hits in the game.

The Red Sox scored an unearned run in the seventh on singles by Rico Petrocelli and Doug Griffin plus a throwing error by pitcher Chris Knapp.

Cubs blast A's, 12-6

The Chicago Cubs jumped on Oakland's Leon Hooten for six runs in the eighth inning and added two more in the ninth to send the A's to their fourth straight Cactus League defeat, 12-6, Sunday.

A triple by Mick Kellher and a double by Joe Wallis, coupled with four singles, accounted for the uprising in the eighth and Jim Rosello drove in the two in the ninth with a double to center.

The A's took an early 3-0 lead on a solo home run by Gene Tenace in the second inning and a two-run shot by Billy North in the third.

Ken Holtzman, making his spring debut, turned in an impressive three innings for the A's, setting the Cubs down on one hit and striking out three.

Hawks down Stars, 5-3

The Hawks nearly fell out of contention in the second period when the North Stars hit for two straight goals to take a 3-1 lead.

But goals by Bobby Sheehan, his 11th of the season, and Cliff Koroll, his 23rd, tied the score at 3-3 as the period ended.

Chicago outshot Minnesota through the first two periods 21-13 but the inspired goaltending of the North Stars' Paul Harrison kept them at bay until the final minutes of the period.

Pit Martin drilled home a shorthanded breakthrough goal midway through the third period and Dennis Hull popped one into an empty net with 29 seconds left to power the Chicago Black Hawks over the Minnesota North Stars 5-3.

The win pushed the Hawks back into first place in the Smythe Division of the NHL, a point ahead of the Vancouver Canucks.

Monroe 'genuine prospect'

"He's a genuine prospect"

That was the report this weekend from Chicago White Sox manager Paul Richards after he got a chance to watch Forest View High School product Larry Monroe pitch against Boston.

"Some guys when they come up are pretty good pitchers who you figure are OK, but probably career minor leaguers," said Richards. "I would say Monroe is definitely not that."

The 6-foot-4 210-pound Monroe, first draft choice of the White Sox in 1974, pitched two strong innings against the Red Sox, striking out two and allowing one hit.

"I know I'm not ready," said the 19-year-old Monroe. "I came to spring training thinking that there would be no chance for me to go above Triple A ball this spring. I only hope I impress somebody here enough so that if they need a pitcher sometime maybe in July, they'd think of me."

Feet of Clay wins US West

Switzerland's Clay Regazzoni pulled a wire-to-wire victory over factory Ferrari driver Niki Lauda Sunday in a two-man show in the first U.S. Grand Prix Drive through the streets of downtown Long Beach.

Regazzoni, who did not finish in the South African Grand Prix and was seventh in Brazil — the first two Formula One races this year, started on the pole, took the lead going into turn one and never looked back.

Names in the news...

Veteran quarterback Charley Johnson, who recently announced his retirement, has been named a coach and scout for the NFL's Denver Broncos club. Johnson, 38, played 15 years in the league, mostly with the St. Louis Cardinals. Nine of the Oakland A's best players remained unsigned Sunday with none of them planning to put their signature on a contract in the near future. The nine are Reggie Jackson, Joe Rudi, Sal Bando, Vida Blue, Ken Holtzman, Gene Tenace, Reggie Fingers, Bert Campaneris and Bill North. One major league star who did sign his 1976 pact was defending American League batting champion Red Carew. The Minnesota Twins superstar signed a three-year contract Sunday after hitting .369 in 1975. First year man David Thompson pumped in 36 points in Denver's 124-113 overtime win over Virginia Saturday night to become the first rookie in the past four ABA seasons to score 2,000 points in a single year.

Girls' gym season opens; Hoffman, Arlington vie

by PAUL LOGAN

The two Mid-Suburban League teams that battled for the girls' gymnastics championship last year will open against each other in the season opener tonight.

Defending champion Hoffman Estates will be at league runner-up Arlington's gym. The dual meet will begin at 6:30 p.m.

The rest of the MSL teams will begin their seasons on Tuesday, also starting at 6:30. The schedule has Rolling Meadows at Schaumburg, Forest View at Palatine, Conant at Buffalo Grove, Wheeling at Elk Grove and Prospect at Hersey. Fremd has a bye.

Last year Hoffman Estates surprised a few people by winning the title in only its second year of existence. The Hawks were coached by Trude Smith. This year they're under the guiding hands of Coach Mary Shevlin.

Shevlin, who is a graduate of DePaul University, isn't too familiar with the conference talent. But she's sure of one thing — Hoffman has several talented gymnasts.

Three Hoffman girls are all-around competitors — Linda Buddenbaum, Lorrie O'Toole and Karen Ewert. Buddenbaum, a senior, won a medal in last year's league meet with her first-place performance in intermediate floor exercise (8.40).

O'Toole, a sophomore, won both beginning floor exercise (8.60) and beginning vaulting (8.93). But O'Toole and Buddenbaum won't be defending those titles.

When the girls compete in their events (side horse vaulting, uneven exercise) it will be on a higher level — compulsory and optional routines.

In beginning compulsory, the younger girls will receive experience, good discipline and technique. (Each school will be using a recording of the modern jazz version of "Spinning Wheel.") Each competitor must perform required moves.

The more experienced gymnasts will handle the optional routines. The optionals will give these athletes more incentive to work on more difficult skills. It will allow them to be more of an individual.

This creativity should also add to the fans' enjoyment. Gymnasts can use any music they want for the floor exercise event as long as just one instrument is used.

There will be a time limit for two of the four optional events — balance beam and floor exercise. Girls must complete their routines on the beam between 1:15 and 1:35 and in floor exercise between 1:00 and 1:30. Deductions will be made for time over.

Track

Jeff Waas, was also second.

Schaumburg made the best team showing of any MSL school, finishing seventh in Class B with 14 points. The Saxons were fourth in the 16-lap relay and fifth in the sprint medley to account for the rest of their points.

King High School won the Class B division and LaGrange-Lyons took Class A honors.

Palatine's Bill Finlay ran :07.2 to take a fifth spot in the low hurdles and Pirate teammate Mark Barnes high jumped 6-2 for sixth.

For Paape, the pole-vault victory should make him the clear favorite — if he wasn't already — going into Wednesday's MSL indoor championships. His 14-3 came on the heels of a 14-4 performance earlier last week.

"Dave did a nice job," said Hoffman coach Jim Swift. "and he was really close to 14-6. He had a long day and I think he would have made it if he wasn't so tired."

Paape needed to make 14-3 to claim the first-place ribbon after missing his first attempt at 14-0. A vaulter from Proviso West had cleared 14-0 on his first try, but failed three times at 14-3.

"Dave is looking good — he's been consistent at 14," Swift said.

The MSL indoor conference record in the pole vault is 14-5 1/2, set by Mahlig last year.

Vartanian's performance in the high hurdles finals equalled the old field-house record of :07.3, which had been broken by Foster in the prelims.

"Jimmy's looking super," said Forest View coach Bill Mohrmann. "He had one bad start and that's what kept him out of the low hurdles final."

Conant's Tony Stompanato was sixth in the lows.

England waited until his final jump to move into second place with a 21-3/4 long jump. It was the third time this year the Viking senior reached the 21-foot mark.

"I like Lawson's competitive edge," said Fremd Coach Pat Bregan. "He always seems to improve his let on his last jump."

England will be one of the favorites in the long jump at the MSL meet Wednesday at Buffalo Grove.

Lorrie O'Toole

Linda Buddenbaum

Mary Tompkins

ties will be made in their final scores if they fail to meet the time requirements.

The MSL also has received permission to experiment with open scoring. Instead of just the averaged score being flashed, each individual score will be flashed as is done in boys' competition.

One senior gymnast who is expected to earn plenty of high marks throughout the season is Conant's Mary Tompkins, last season's all-around champion. Tompkins severely cut the last two fingers on her right hand with a meat slicer recently. She hopes to be competing again soon.

Tompkins also won the intermediate uneven bar title in 1975 with an 8.30.

She is the only other returning champion besides O'Toole and Buddenbaum.

Following an eight-week dual meet season, the MSL will hold its conference meet at Rolling Meadows on Saturday, May 22.

Marie Shafren, Elk Grove's head coach and the league's gymnastics coordinator, spoke for the MSL when she commented on the changes in her sport:

"Our sport has progressed so much in three years, and yet I can only see constant improvement. Coming from beginning compulsory to optional competition in three years is quite a feat."

"I think as a spectator sport the optionals will make gymnastics a lot more interesting and exciting to watch."

Besides Hoffman Estates, former past team champs were Hersey and Wheeling.

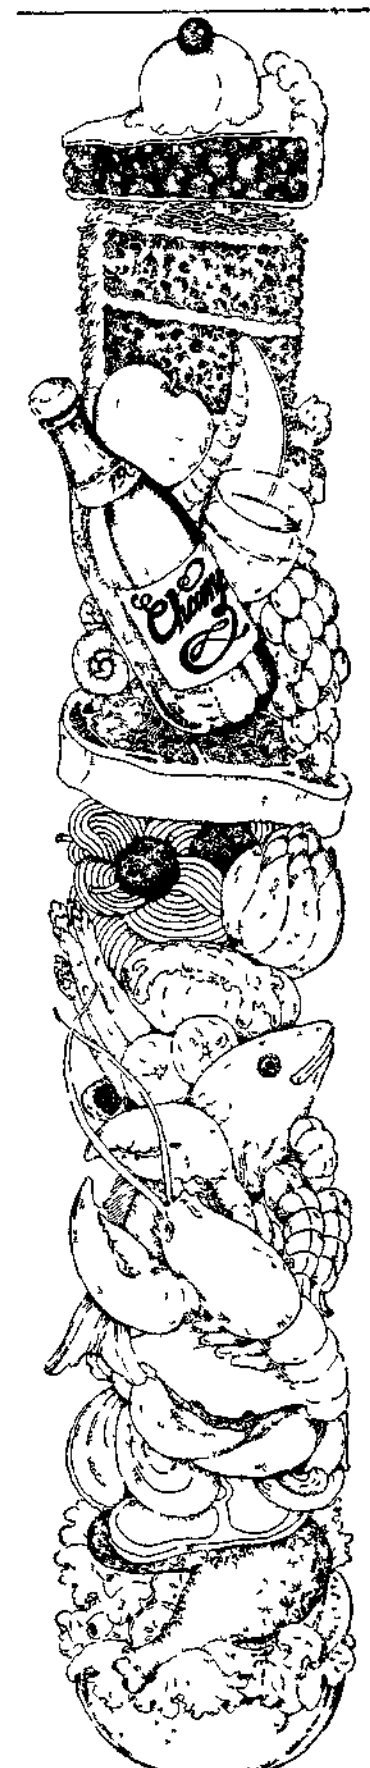

Last year's final team standings looked like this: (1) Hoffman Estates, (2) Arlington, (3) Elk Grove, (4) Wheeling, (5) Conant, (6) Buffalo Grove, (7) Hersey, (8) Rolling Meadows, (9) Prospect, (10) Forest View, (11) Fremd, (12) Palatine, (13) Schaumburg.

Yankees feature jet age look in battle for flag

(This is the 5th in a series of baseball spring training camp sizeups)

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The New York Yankees will be sporting a new look this year that goes perfectly with the jet age.

Gone completely is the Bronx Bomber image when home runs rocketed off Yankee bats and brought fear into the hearts of enemy pitchers. In its place is a sleek and streamlined "go go" type of club that befits the former playing style of the manager, Billy Martin.

The Yankees made several key deals during the off-season, all of them designed to take advantage of the spacious confines of their newly refurbished Yankee Stadium. They have sacrificed home runs for speed and they remain confident this type of attack will produce results.

"We've got a lot of guys who can pick up the feet and lay 'em down and we're gonna take advantage of it," says Martin, who will be starting his first full season as Yankee manager. "I think with pitching, good defense and speed you can win a lot of ball games."

STRENGTHS — Solid front line pitching with Jim Hunter, Ed Figueroa, Rudy May, Dock Ellis and Ken Brett, excellent team speed; all-star catcher in Thurman Munson; plenty of bench depth.

WEAKNESSES — Very little power; questionable defense; shaky bullpen unless Sparky Lyle makes a comeback.

NEW FACES — A busy trading period produced seven newcomers who figure prominently in Martin's plans. Pitchers Ed Figueroa, Ken Brett and Dock Ellis add considerable depth to pitching staff; Tommy Davis, despite age (37), could land job as designated hitter; Mickey Rivers will be regular center fielder; Oscar Gamble provides capable outfield depth and also could be used as left-handed dh; rookie Willie Randolph is ticketed to start at second base.

OUTLOOK — Without a fence buster, the Yankees are going to have to scratch hard for runs. It's difficult to see them overhauling either Boston or Baltimore in the American League East.

NOW RETIRED from home run hitting, Mickey Mantle is serving as a batting coach during the New York Yankees' spring training period in Florida.

Suburbs seek extension

Revenue sharing near end

by KURT BAER

Like sand running through the hour glass, federal revenue-sharing is slowly but surely running out for suburban communities.

Revenue sharing is part of the taxes the federal government collects but which Washington gives back to state, city, county and township governments.

Federal revenue-sharing checks have been arriving four times a year since 1972. But unless Uncle Sam steps up to turn the hour glass over, the program will expire at the end of December.

CRITICISM OF the program comes from two sides. On the one hand, opponents like U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane R-12th, say the system is inefficient, that too much money is wasted in the transfer of tax dollars.

Nationwide, the program is expensive, costing $5 billion a year. There would be more money to use locally if Washington never collected

it in the first place, Crane says.

Others are against the program because they say to pursue national goals in fields such as education, health and welfare, the federal government should give money to localities only for specific programs, not to use any way they want.

President Ford has asked Congress to extend revenue sharing for 5 1/2 years, with $150 million added each year for inflation.

U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House government operations committee in charge of a possible extension of revenue sharing, says the program is fundamentally wrong.

A GOVERNMENT operations subcommittee chaired by U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., is not expected to report to the full committee before Easter.

Although Brooks disagrees with the program, he has said he will not obstruct an extension of revenue sharing, leading some experts to predict the measure will pass before the November election.

Most of the debate centers on proposals to revise the program. The government operations subcommittee currently is looking at 14 proposed amendments.

Some proposals call for:

- Changing distribution formulas to give more money to cities and poor rural areas that have the greatest need.

- Strengthening requirements that funds be used in compliance with civil rights regulations.

- Giving local citizens' groups a greater right to be heard when local governments are deciding how to spend the money.

- Requiring that Congress appropriate revenue sharing one year at a time to exercise closer control.

Northwest suburban governments are virtually unanimous in their support of an extension of revenue sharing. Some village boards have passed resolutions calling for reenactment. And last December, local officials met personally with Crane to try to persuade him to back an extension bill.

THE AMOUNT OF money each town receives is based on a complex formula that includes population, average income and an evaluation of local tax effort. Ironically, communities with high taxes generally receive less money than those with low or no taxes, which frustrates some suburban leaders.

At the December meeting with Crane, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said that municipal leader have become "junkies" over revenue sharing.

While some of her local government colleagues disagreed with Hayter's characterization, no one disputed the fact the federal checks have become an important part of municipal finance.

Women voters urge speed-up of city master plan

The Des Plaines League of Women Voters has urged city officials to hasten efforts to devise a master land use plan to prevent further traffic, parking and open space problems.

The league has presented several general recommendations on land use in the first report of its two-year study on the city's development and zoning.

"A comprehensive plan is needed, without a doubt, and we believe the city council should begin moving on it and encourage citizen involvement in preparing it," said Carroll Salzman, chairman of the league's land-use study committee.

LEAGUE OFFICIALS suggested that a citizens' commission be formed to work with planning and zoning officials on devising a master plan.

League members contend that there are traffic, parking and open space problems existing in the city that could have been prevented had a master land-use plan been in effect.

League officials specifically cited a lack of open space and park areas downtown and the lack of municipal parking lots in business areas like those along Oakton Street and between Ellinwood and Prairie streets.

Members of the league recently took a bus tour of the city as part of its land use study, to pinpoint trouble spots in existing development and zoning.

"WE FOUND THAT on-street parking along Oakton Street is just adding to the traffic congestion there. That is one of the fastest developing areas in Des Plaines, and there is no comprehensive plan that assures enough off-street parking or open space there," said Fran Lapides, a committee member.

The league is suggesting that the city urge or require developers to provide off-street parking and landscaped open space with the construction of businesses.

The group also suggested that the city attempt to acquire river front rights-of-way for public open space.

The league said it had no concrete suggestions for funding of such projects, but that it will continue to study possible revenue sources along with the city's land use.

"Our next big effort will be to testify during public hearings on the new land-use map that the city is working on and encourage residents to do the same," Ms. Salzman said.

Michael Richardson, city director of planning and zoning, is conducting meetings with the aldermen of the city's eight wards to discuss the elements that should be included in a new land use map.

The proposed land use map, which will replace the map that was adopted in 1966, will go to the plan commission this spring. The commission is required to conduct public hearings on the proposed map before it gives its approval.

The new map, which would require adoption by the city council, would be a step toward developing a master plan for the city.

League officials are concerned, however, that the city fathers would not pursue a complete master plan once the new land use map is adopted.

Girl, 17, raped; attacker sought

A 17-year-old Des Plaines girl was raped early Sunday by a man who forced her into some bushes near her home, assaulted her, then fled.

Police said the girl was walking near 2510 Dempster St., about 1:30 a.m. when she was attacked.

The man was described as 5 feet 9 inches tall, in his 20s, weighing 140 pounds and having a light complexion with short brown hair.

He wore black trousers and a white dress shirt. He ran northbound from the scene, police said.

Nicholson, Pacino wait Oscar's call

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Nicholson and Al Pacino, who failed to win in nine previous tries, come down to the wire as favorites in the tight race for best actor in the 48th annual Academy Awards ceremonies tonight.

Nicholson won this year's nomination for his performance as an asylum inmate in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." Pacino was nominated for playing the wildly inept bank robber in "Dog Day Afternoon."

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" topped all other films in 1975 with nine nominations and may be the first film in 42 years to capture the three top Oscars, best picture, best actor and best actress (Louise Fletcher).

THE LAST MOVIE to make the grand slam was "It Happened One Night" which won for best picture of 1934, and Oscars for its stars, Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.

Other pictures in the running this year are "Dog Day Afternoon," "Barry Lyndon," "Jaws" and "Nashville."

Vying with Nicholson and Pacino for best actor of the year are Maximilian Schell ("The Man in the Glass Booth"), Walter Matthau

Actresses competing with Miss Fletcher for the movies' highest award are Isabelle Adjani ("The Story of Adele H."), Ann-Margret ("Tommy"), Glenda Jackson ("Hedda"), and Carol Kane ("Hester Street").

The film academy show will present awards in 21 categories on a live telecast (Channel 7, 9 p.m. CST) from the Los Angeles Music Center.

THE TWO-HOUR special will feature Gene Kelly, Walter Matthau, George Segal, Robert Shaw and Goldie Hawn as masters of ceremonies. More than 40 film stars will participate as presenters, performers or merely sitting nervously in the audience awaiting the opening of sealed envelopes.

Among such new faces as Maria Berenson, Stockard Channing and Margaux Hemingway, will be familiar oldtimers Charlton Heston, Elizabeth Taylor, Audrey Hepburn, Ray Bolger and Charles Bronson.

Highlight of the ceremonies will be a filmed appearance by Mary Pickford accepting a special Oscar for her contributions to the motion picture industry. She won the second Academy Award ever given — for best actress of 1928 in "Coquette." Janet Gaynor in "Seventh Heaven" in 1927 was first actress to win the award.

After move here, life's not shaky

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Jose Nicholas Astacio gets excited when he talks. Like when he discusses the earthquakes of his former home, the tiny Central American country of El Salvador.

"The ground start to shake, man," and Jose flutters his hands, making a noise like the rapid rustling of bird wings with his lips, "Brrrrrrrr. All the buildings shake."

"Then it stops for a little while and starts again. Brrrrrrrr. None of the buildings in Salvador are over three, four flats. They don't have the high rises like in America. They all fall down if they did. "When that brrrrrrrr starts, it's scary, man."

The Jose Nicholas Astacio laughs.

Today

(Mike Klein is on vacation)

He laughs because all around him, everywhere he goes, he sees things that make him happy. And he laughs because he is in the United States, "the greatest country in the world," Jose says. And the ground never shakes in Des Plaines, Ill.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25

Buffalo Grove High School's hand bell choir will perform at 1:30 and 2 p.m. Tuesday for students at Ivy Hill School, 2211 N. Burke Dr., Arlington Heights.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54

A book fair will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Lusk School. The fair will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the school gymnasium, 900 W. Glenn Tr., Elk Grove Village. Books range in price from 35 cents to $5.95.

Winners in the book fair poster contest each received a certificate toward the purchase of books at the fair. Winners were Bill Kugelberg, second grade and Mary Bey, fifth grade.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

Dick Rosberg will present a display of Indian artifacts to primary grade students at 10 a.m. today at Frost School, 1306 Cypress Dr., Mount Prospect. Rosberg, who is the owner of Books 'n Briers book store in Des Plaines, is a member of the Volunteer Services Bureau. The program is sponsored by the school PTA cultural arts program.

High School Dist. 214

College Night is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at Rolling Meadows High School, 1901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows, and for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Arlington High School, 502 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights. Junior level students, and interested seniors and sophomores, and their parents are invited to attend either session. The Rolling Meadows High School session is planned for persons from Rolling Meadows, Forest View, Elk Grove and Prospect high schools. The Arlington High School evening is for students and parents from Arlington, Hersey, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

More than 150 colleges from throughout the country will be represented each evening. Many of the representatives will give half-hour presentations about their school, followed by a question and answer session. All college representatives will be available to parents and students to answer any questions and distribute college literature.

St. Raymond's School

Fifth and sixth graders of St. Raymond's School Tuesday will visit the Schwinn Bicycle Co. in Chicago. Buses will leave the school, 300 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect at 9 a.m. and return at 2:30 p.m.

St. Paul Lutheran School

Kindergarten registration and orientation has been scheduled for 1 p.m. Tuesday in the library at St. Paul Lutheran School, 16 S. School St., Mount Prospect. For information, call 253-6733.

In general...

The North Suburban Assn. of Educational Secretaries will hold a fashion show dinner at the Lancer Steak House restaurant, 50 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, Friday, April 9. Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Women's fashions will be modeled by members of the organization and men's fashions by several men administrators from the north suburban area schools.

All proceeds will go toward scholarships for selected high school students to further their education in the field of business services. Tickets are $8 per person and may be obtained by calling Florence Atherton, 537-8270, before March 30.

April 2 is the last day high school students may apply for this year's college level, tuition-free anthropology course at the Field Museum of Natural History. The program is open to 27 high-ability juniors who have the academic ability and interest in an intensive six weeks of anthropology.

Students will be selected on the basis of academic achievement, recommendation of teachers and personal interviews. Application forms are available through high school officials or may be obtained from Harriet Smith, director of the program, 922-9410.

City readies another try to get 'drop' on pigeons

Des Plaines apparently will wage one more attack against the messy pigeons on the city's south side before calling in an outside expert.

Joseph Schwab, commissioner of public works, said he will recommend the city council authorize him to spend between $1,200 and $1,400 for Roost-No-More, a chemical that will encourage the unwanted birds to go elsewhere.

He said he met with officials from National Bird Control Laboratories, Skokie, but has decided the city should try the chemical before paying the firm $3,000 to rid the 1600 and 1700 blocks of Lunt and Greenleaf avenues of the pigeons.

"I would imagine the city council and the mayor would want us to try the cheaper way first," he said. "It should work because it's the same stuff they (National Bird Laboratories) would use."

THE PASTE-LIKE chemical is applied to the surfaces on which the pigeons roost, he said. It is non-toxic and is approved by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

City officials last October said the large flocks of pigeons that roost on a bridge in the area pose a health hazard, and ordered steps to remove them "humanely."

Since the city council ordered the removal of the pigeons the public works department has captured about 50 of the birds in cages, or at night with nets. They also have used another chemical in an attempt to rid the area of the birds.

Despite the city's efforts, as many as 150 pigeons can be found at the location at certain times each day, Schwab said. He said city efforts have been ineffective because some residents continue to feed the pigeons.

Pigeons captured by the city are being kept in cages behind the city's public works garage, 1111 Campground Rd. Schwab said as soon as the city captures 100 pigeons they will be turned over to the Lincoln Park Zoo, Chicago.

Dancer showcase this weekend

The High School Dist. 214 Dance Teachers Assn. will present the district's top dancers and dance selections this weekend in the district-wide show "Two One Four Dance Festival '76."

The festival will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

The festival features the two best dancers from each of the district's eight high school orchestras shows, a new modern dance number choreographed and performed by dancers from each school and a specialty toe dance with ballet performers.

A jazz dance choreographed by Vicki Jacobs of Hersey High School will be performed by district dance teachers. The show will offer modern jazz and classical numbers.

The goal of the dance teachers is to achieve consistently high standards in dance technique and performance, while furthering dance as an art form in the district.

Ticket information is available through Sue Nelson, Prospect High School, 255-9700, ext. 242.

From Illinois Supreme Court

O'Hare water plant ruling today

The Illinois Supreme Court today is expected to make public a ruling whether the Metropolitan Sanitary District must abide by Des Plaines health ordinances in the construction of the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant.

James Murray, attorney for the MSD, said the high court has reached a decision but will not release it until today.

"That's what they've told us," said Murray. "We should have it today, but I wouldn't be surprised if they delayed it again."

The MSD and Des Plaines have been expecting the ruling for several weeks. The court indicated it would render its decision March 12, but postponed it for further consideration.

DES PLAINEs has been challenging the MSD in court to block construction of the sewage treatment plant, to be located on the southwest corner of Oak Street and Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines. The city is attempting to force the MSD to follow strict local health ordinances for sewage emissions. Des Plaines standards are more stringent than those generally followed by the sanitary district.

Should the Supreme Court rule in favor of the MSD, most obstacles to construction of the plant will be removed. Des Plaines still is fighting MSD plans in federal court, objecting to U. S. Environmental Protection Agency standards for plant construction.

THE PLANT, which will process about 72 million gallons of sewage a day when completed, has been plagued with legal and procedural problems for months.

The EPA ruled March 23 that the district must seek new bids for plant construction. The agency said a low bid of $118 million submitted last fall by Blount Bros. Corp., Chicago, does not meet engineering specifications.

The MSD is expected to award contracts for the project in May.

Fire district services granted improved rating

The North Maine Fire Protection District has received an improved fire rating that is expected to reduce fire insurance rates for commercial establishments in the district.

Fire Chief Dale Moore said the Insurance Services Office of Illinois changed the district's rating from a Class 8 to Class 5 following its latest evaluation of fire protection facilities. The lower the rating, the better the fire service.

He said although insurance rates for commercial property are expected to go down, the dates when the new rates will take effect will be determined by the individual insurance companies.

The better fire rating will not affect rates for homeowners, he said.

The North Maine Fire District was established Dec. 16, 1969, and was given a Class 8 rating. Fire departments are graded on water supply, communications systems and fire safety control.

"Since the department went into operation, the North Maine Fire Dept. has been constantly striving to improve the fire protection facilities of the district," Moore said. "Intensive training and effort has gone into improving the many programs of the department."

The chief commended the Domestic Utility Services Co., Glenview, the firm that supplies water to the fire district.

'Philadelphia Story' to open at Forest View

Love plays strange tricks in the Forest View High School presentation of "The Philadelphia Story," a play to be performed by students Thursday through Saturday in the theater of the school, 2121 Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights.

The play, originally produced on Broadway in 1939, starred Katharine Hepburn, Van Heflin, Joseph Cotton and Shirley Booth. The movie, made in 1940, starred Hepburn, Cary Grant, James Stewart and Ruth Hussey.

The play tells the romantic story of Tracy Lord, a wealthy Philadelphia divorcee who is about to remarry. Complications arise in her wedding plans as plot unfolds.

Tickets for the performance Thursday at 7:30 p.m. are 75 cents for students and $1.50 for adults. Tickets for performances at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday are $1 for students and $2 for adults. Tickets may be purchased at the box office or from members of the cast.

Charles B. Wilde is play director and is assisted by technical director Robert Stelk.

Suburbs seek extension

Revenue sharing near end

by KURT BAER

Like sand running through the hour glass, federal revenue-sharing is slowly but surely running out for suburban communities.

Revenue sharing is part of the taxes the federal government collects but which Washington gives back to state, city, county and township governments.

Federal revenue-sharing checks have been arriving four times a year since 1972. But unless Uncle Sam steps up to turn the hour glass over, the program will expire at the end of December.

CRITICISM OF the program comes from two sides. On the one hand, opponents like U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane R-12th, say the system is inefficient, that too much money is wasted in the transfer of tax dollars.

Nationwide, the program is expensive, costing $5 billion a year. There would be more money to use locally if Washington never collected

it in the first place, Crane says.

Others are against the program because they say to pursue national goals in fields such as education, health and welfare, the federal government should give money to localities only for specific programs, not to use any way they want.

President Ford has asked Congress to extend revenue sharing for 5 1/2 years, with $150 million added each year for inflation.

U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House government operations committee in charge of a possible extension of revenue sharing, says the program is fundamentally wrong.

A GOVERNMENT operations subcommittee chaired by U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., is not expected to report to the full committee before Easter.

Although Brooks disagrees with the program, he has said he will not obstruct an extension of revenue sharing, leading some experts to predict the measure will pass before the November election.

Most of the debate centers on proposals to revise the program. The government operations subcommittee currently is looking at 14 proposed amendments.

Some proposals call for:

- Changing distribution formulas to give more money to cities and poor rural areas that have the greatest need.

- Strengthening requirements that funds be used in compliance with civil rights regulations.

- Giving local citizens' groups a greater right to be heard when local governments are deciding how to spend the money.

- Requiring that Congress appropriate revenue sharing one year at a time to exercise closer control.

Northwest suburban governments are virtually unanimous in their support of an extension of revenue sharing. Some village boards have passed resolutions calling for reenactment. And last December, local officials met personally with Crane to try to persuade him to back an extension bill.

THE AMOUNT OF money each town receives is based on a complex formula that includes population, average income and an evaluation of local tax effort. Ironically, communities with high taxes generally receive less money than those with low or no taxes, which frustrates some suburban leaders.

At the December meeting with Crane, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said that municipal leaders have become "junkies" over revenue sharing.

While some of her local government colleagues disagreed with Hayter's characterization, no one disputed the fact the federal checks have become an important part of municipal finance.

CD area leader, village to debate local program

Village officials Tuesday will meet with the Chicago-area coordinator for Civil Defense to discuss the future of the program in Wheeling.

Trustee Charles Kerr said the board will meet with John Sascia, Civil Defense regional coordinator, "to see what we have to do to get back in the groove." The meeting is at 7 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Village officials have said they support the program, but have called for stronger leadership within the organization. Trustees also said they want to clarify the Civil Defense program's role in emergencies.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS last month suggested appointing a full-time village employee to serve as director of the program. Trustees have interviewed four candidates for the director's position, but Trustee Otis L. Heclund said "there is apparently no applicant that a majority of the board feels is desirable to put in charge."

Wheeling officials have been seeking a director for the program since the October resignation of former director Robert Buerger. The program has lost state and federal accreditation, and the new director would be responsible for bringing the organization into compliance with guidelines. Several trustees have said the program may face dissolution because of a lack of qualified leadership.

Charles Kerr, chairman of the village fire and police committee, has said the Civil Defense group has "operated more as an auxiliary police force," assisting police and firemen in emergency situations. He said village officials will have to decide whether "we want a Civil Defense unit, an auxiliary police force or nothing at all."

THOMAS LORENZ, acting director of the organization, has charged village officials with indifference to the program. He said the program lost accreditation for failing to file a disaster preparedness plan.

Pat Tufano, a former Civil Defense official, has denied the charges, saying village officials "always gave us all the cooperation we needed." Tufano, who this year was turned down for the director's position, said village officials have worked "hand-in-hand" with Civil Defense personnel.

J. L. Wilson, a former deputy director of the organization, has called on the village to hire a full-time director. He said Wheeling's population justifies the hiring of a full-time director and a part-time secretary.

Prospect Hts. candidates night slated April 9

There will be candidates' night April 9 for Prospect Heights residents to meet 31 candidates running in the city's first municipal election.

The candidates' night will be 7:30 to 10 p.m. at Eisenhower Elementary School, Schoenbeck and Camp McDonald roads, Prospect Heights.

Candidates for mayor, treasurer, clerk and the city council in the May 22 election have been notified of the meeting, and a drawing will be held to determine the order in which the 31 candidates speak, said Joe Lesniak, coordinator of the evening.

Each of the candidates will present his qualifications and reasons for running in a five-minute speech. Questions from the audience will not be allowed during the presentations, although an informal coffee will be conducted after the meeting so that residents can talk to the candidates, he said.

Edward Bryant, aldermanic candidate, said he and mayoral candidate Richard E. Wolf originally planned the event and are paying postage costs to have the meeting announcements sent to each candidate.

"We just wanted to have all of the candidates join together to introduce themselves to the public," he said.

There are three candidates for mayor, two for clerk, two for treasurer, and 24 for eight council seats in the election.

Nicholson, Pacino wait Oscar's call

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Nicholson and Al Pacino, who failed to win in nine previous tries, come down to the wire as favorites in the tight race for best actor in the 48th annual Academy Awards ceremonies tonight.

Nicholson won this year's nomination for his performance as an asylum inmate in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." Pacino was nominated for playing the wildly inept bank robber in "Dog Day Afternoon."

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" topped all other films in 1975 with nine nominations and may be the first film in 42 years to capture the three top Oscars, best picture, best actor and best actress (Louise Fletcher).

THE LAST MOVIE to make the grand slam was "It Happened One Night" which won for best picture of 1934, and Oscars for its stars, Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.

Other pictures in the running this year are "Dog Day Afternoon," "Barry Lyndon," "Jaws" and "Nashville."

Vying with Nicholson and Pacino for best actor of the year are Maximilian Schell ("The Man in the Glass Booth"), Walter Matthau

Actresses competing with Miss Fletcher for the movies' highest award are Isabelle Adjani ("The Story of Adele H."), Ann-Margret ("Tommy"), Glenda Jackson ("Hedda"), and Carol Kane ("Hester Street").

The film academy show will present awards in 21 categories on a live telecast (Channel 7, 9 p.m. CST) from the Los Angeles Music Center.

THE TWO-HOUR special will feature Gene Kelly, Walter Matthau, George Segal, Robert Shaw and Goldie Hawn as masters of ceremonies. More than 40 film stars will participate as presenters, performers or merely sitting nervously in the audience awaiting the opening of sealed envelopes.

Among such new faces as Marisa Berenson, Stockard Channing and Margaux Hemingway, will be familiar oldtimers Charlton Heston, Elizabeth Taylor, Audrey Hepburn, Ray Bolger and Charles Bronson.

Highlight of the ceremonies will be a filmed appearance by Mary Pickford accepting a special Oscar for her contributions to the motion picture industry. She won the second Academy Award ever given — for best actress of 1928 in "Coquette." Janet Gaynor in "Seventh Heaven" in 1927 was first actress to win the award.

After move here, life's not shaky

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Jose Nicholas Astacio gets excited when he talks. Like when he discusses the earthquakes of his former home, the tiny Central American country of El Salvador.

"The ground start to shake, man," and Jose flutters his hands, making a noise like the rapid rustling of bird wings with his lips. "Brrrrrrrr. All the buildings shake."

"Then it stops for a little while and starts again. Brrrrrrrr. None of the buildings in Salvador are over three, four flats. They don't have the high rises like in America. They all fall down if they did."

"When that brrrrrrrr starts, it's scary, man."

The Jose Nicholas Astacio laughs.

Today

He laughs because all around him, everywhere he goes, he sees things that make him happy. And he laughs because he is in the United States, "the greatest country in the world," Jose says. And the ground never shakes in Des Plaines, Ill.

PHIA plans meet on new council setup

The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. tonight will conduct a special board meeting to determine the format in which recommendations will be presented to the new city council, to be elected May 22.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights.

PHIA has formed 10 citizens committees to study services the new city must provide. Recommendations will be presented to the city council based on the studies.

One of the committees, which includes residents who are not PHIA members, is studying alternatives to PHIA proposals. Some members are candidates in the election.

Several members of the alternatives committee last week said they do not want their recommendations to be overshadowed by PHIA proposals, and asked how the recommendations will be presented to the city council for review.

Richard Wolf, PHIA president, said the matter is a "policy decision" which the association board must make. He said he wants to avoid a "rift" between candidates who belong to PHIA and those who do not by "resolving the issue as fairly as we can."

Prospect Heights '76 panel to meet

The Prospect Heights Bicentennial Committee will conduct a planning session Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Prospect Heights Community Church, 400 W. Elmhurst Rd.

The meeting will be with representatives of civic organizations who are interested in contributing to the city's celebration of the Bicentennial scheduled for the weekend of June 4.

Belly dance, guitar classes at parks

The Prospect Heights Park District next month will offer belly dancing classes for women and guitar instruction for children.

Beginning belly dancing will be held from 7 to 8 p.m. and intermediate belly dancing will be from 8 to 9 p.m. Mondays at Hershey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights. The fee is $12 for the course which begins April 5.

A guitar instruction course for children ages nine and older will be held from 5 to 6 p.m. on Mondays, beginning April 5, at the park district service center behind the Prospect Heights Public Library at Camp McDonald Road and Elm Street. The fee is $10.

Additional information on these eight-week classes is available by calling 394-2848.

City dinner-dance tickets available

Tickets are available for the Prospect Heights incorporation dinner-dance scheduled for May 14 at the Arlington Park Hilton.

The tickets, $25 per couple, are available by calling 253-1350 or 255-9678, or from any of the candidates running in the city's May 22 municipal election.

The dinner-dance proceeds will be used to help pay for the recent incorporation referendum approved by residents in January.

Tickets are also being sold at $1 each or six for $5 for the raffling of prizes during the event which include a color television, basket of liquor, weekend for two at the Arlington Park Hilton, a tape deck unit and dinners.

Suburbs seek extension

Revenue sharing near end

by KURT BAER
Like sand running through the hour glass, federal revenue-sharing is slowly but surely running out for suburban communities.
Revenue sharing is part of the taxes the federal government collects but which Washington gives back to state, city, county and township governments.
Federal revenue-sharing checks have been arriving four times a year since 1972. But unless Uncle Sam steps up to turn the hour glass over, the program will expire at the end of December.
CRITICISM OF the program comes from two sides. On the one hand, opponents like U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane R-12th, say the system is inefficient, that too much money is wasted in the transfer of tax dollars.
Nationwide, the program is expensive, costing $5 billion a year. There would be more money to use locally if Washington never collected

it in the first place, Crane says.
Others are against the program because they say to pursue national goals in fields such as education, health and welfare, the federal government should give money to localities only for specific programs, not to use any way they want.
President Ford has asked Congress to extend revenue sharing for 5 1/2 years, with $150 million added each year for inflation.
U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House government operations committee in charge of a possible extension of revenue sharing, says the program is fundamentally wrong.
A GOVERNMENT operations subcommittee chaired by U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., is not expected to report to the full committee before Easter.
Although Brooks disagrees with the program, he has said he will not obstruct an extension of revenue sharing, leading some experts to predict the measure will pass before the November election.

Most of the debate centers on proposals to revise the program. The government operations subcommittee currently is looking at 14 proposed amendments.
Some proposals call for:
• Changing distribution formulas to give more money to cities and poor rural areas that have the greatest need.
• Strengthening requirements that funds be used in compliance with civil rights regulations.
• Giving local citizens' groups a greater right to be heard when local governments are deciding how to spend the money.
• Requiring that Congress appropriate revenue sharing one year at a time to exercise closer control.
Northwest suburban governments are virtually unanimous in their support of an extension of revenue sharing. Some village boards have passed resolutions calling for reenactment. And last December, local officials met personally with Crane to try to persuade him to back an extension bill.

THE AMOUNT OF money each town receives is based on a complex formula that includes population, average income and an evaluation of local tax effort. Ironically, communities with high taxes generally receive less money than those with low or no taxes, which frustrates some suburban leaders.
At the December meeting with Crane, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said that municipal leader have become "junkies" over revenue sharing.
While some of her local government colleagues disagreed with Hayter's characterization, no one disputed the fact the federal checks have become an important part of municipal finance.

Officials meet tonight on land gift restrictions

Restrictions on the type of land a developer may donate for schools or parks in Buffalo Grove will be discussed at a special workshop meeting of the village board tonight.
Representatives of the village, park district and school districts 21, 96, 105 and 214 will meet at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.
The meeting was suggested by Village Trustee Robert Bogart, who said Buffalo Grove needs a "legal, official definition" to work from when requiring developers to donate a percentage of land for school and park sites. Under a current village resolution, developers must either donate a percentage of land or pay a flat fee of $25,000 per acre for lands slated for schools or parks use.

Officials will review the current land donation resolution and establish a policy on the definition of "usable" land for park and school purposes.
THE OFFICIALS also will discuss the future maintenance liability of land areas offered by developers, but not desired by park and school districts. Trustee Clarice Rech said earlier this month the village is "dealing with some loaded questions . . . if the village winds up maintaining these areas, it will be very expensive — especially in Lake County, where you're dealing with a lot of poor soil conditions."
Also under discussion will be a proposal by Park District Comr. William Kiddle for a roundtable discussion among school, park and village officials when a developer comes into the village.
Kiddle said the current procedure, which calls for a developer to present preliminary plans to the plan commission before a village board public hearing, is ineffective. He said the interim negotiations between the developer, park district and school district are done on a "piecemeal" basis, and said a joint meeting would eliminate paperwork and confusion.

For the elderly, a class to help cope with aging

by LAURA SCHMALBACH
For a young affluent couple with two children, Buffalo Grove with its tot lots and station wagons may represent a slice of the good life.
But for many of the village's senior citizens, "the good life" means searching for a familiar face in church, watching younger neighbors move in and out with increasing regularity, and facing the fact that suburbia has left them behind.
To combat these problems, the Buffalo Grove Park District and the head of the adulthood program at Northwestern University are making plans for a series of mini-lectures that will focus on the aging process.
DAN KUZUHARA, a Long Grove resident and director of the Northwestern program, wants to utilize graduate students next fall in a six-week program that will try to eliminate "the feeling that the young people are pushing older people out."
"There is a definite emphasis on the young in Buffalo Grove," says Kuzuhara, a 52-year-old who says he became interested in the problems of older people partly because his father is 90 years old.
"The community is changing so much that the older residents have a hard time keeping old friends and not feeling that the younger residents are pushing them out," he says. "The classes would help show older people what they can do with their retirement time and how to relate to younger generations."
Kuzuhara said the classes would be taught by graduate students in Northwestern's human development program, and he also plans a series of

by VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Nicholson and Al Pacino, who failed to win in nine previous tries, come down to the wire as favorites in the tight race for best actor in the 48th annual Academy Awards ceremonies tonight.
Nicholson won this year's nomination for his performance as an asylum inmate in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." Pacino was nominated for playing the wildly inept bank robber in "Dog Day Afternoon."
"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" topped all other films in 1975 with nine nominations and may be the first film in 42 years to capture the three top Oscars, best picture, best actor and best actress (Louise Fletcher).
THE LAST MOVIE to make the grand slam was "It Happened One Night" which won for best picture of 1934, and Oscars for its stars, Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.
Other pictures in the running this year are "Dog Day Afternoon," "Barry Lyndon," "Jaws" and "Nashville."
Vying with Nicholson and Pacino for best actor of the year are Maximilian Schell ("The Man in the Glass Booth"), Walter Matthau

Actresses competing with Miss Fletcher for the movies' highest award are Isabelle Adjani ("The Story of Adele H."), Ann-Margret ("Tommy"), Glenda Jackson ("Hedda"), and Carol Kane ("Hester Street").
The film academy show will present awards in 21 categories on a live telecast (Channel 7, 9 p.m. CST) from the Los Angeles Music Center.
THE TWO-HOUR special will feature Gene Kelly, Walter Matthau, George Segal, Robert Shaw and Goldie Hawn as masters of ceremonies. More than 40 film stars will participate as presenters, performers or merely sitting nervously in the audience awaiting the opening of sealed envelopes.
Among such new faces as Marisa Berenson, Stockard Channing and Margaux Hemingway, will be familiar oldtimers Charlton Heston, Elizabeth Taylor, Audrey Hepburn, Ray Bolger and Charles Bronson.
Highlight of the ceremonies will be a filmed appearance by Mary Pickford accepting a special Oscar for her contributions to the motion picture industry. She won the second Academy Award ever given — for best actress of 1928 in "Coquette." Janet Gaynor in "Seventh Heaven" in 1927 was first actress to win the award.

A spokesman for the academy estimated a world-wide audience of a

After move here, life's not shaky

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Jose Nicholas Astacio gets excited when he talks. Like when he discusses the earthquakes of his former home, the tiny Central American country of El Salvador.
"The ground start to shake, man," and Jose flutters his hands, making a noise like the rapid rustling of bird wings with his lips, "Brrrrrrrr. All the buildings shake."
"Then it stops for a little while and starts again. Brrrrrrrr. None of the buildings in Salvador are over three, four flats. They don't have the high rises like in America. They all fall down if they did."
"When that brrrrrrrr starts, it's scary, man."
The Jose Nicholas Astacio laughs.

Today

He laughs because all around him, everywhere he goes, he sees things that make him happy. And he laughs because he is in the United States, "the greatest country in the world," Jose says. And the ground never shakes in Des Plaines, Ill.

In general...

April 2 is the last day high school students may apply for this year's college level, tuition-free anthropology course at the Field Museum of Natural History. The program is open to 27 high-ability juniors who have the academic ability and interest in an intensive six weeks of anthropology.

Students will be selected on the basis of academic achievement, recommendation of teachers and personal interviews. Application forms are available through high school officials or may be obtained from Harriet Smith, director of the program, 922-9410.

What does multimillionaire read?

by JUDIE BLACK

Maybe you can't tell a book by its cover, but you surely can tell a lot about people by the books they read.

Test yourself. What prominent Illinois resident would pick as his favorite book "Think and Grow Rich" by Napoleon Hill? Who might choose Adam Smith's "The Wealth of Nations," first published in 1776? And who would select "The Hockey Handbook" by Lloyd Percival?

If you answered (in order) multimillionaire W. Clement Stone, economist Milton Friedman and Chicago Black Hawk defenseman Keith Magnuson, you were right. And if you're interested in knowing what other well-known Illinois residents are reading, head for the Elk Grove Village Public Library and see the results of a most fascinating survey.

THE LIBRARY STAFF spent three weeks compiling a list of 234 prominent Illinois residents and Elk Grove residents, including politicians, professional athletes, media personalities, religious leaders and successful businessmen.

Librarian Janet Steiner then mailed letters asking the personalities to list their all-time favorite book or one they're enjoying now. Their responses, some scrawled in the corner or on the back of the original letter, and others on carefully typed pages, will be displayed at the library during April, in honor of National Library Week April 4-10.

The replies were as varied as the respondents, and ranged from childhood memories to promotions for their own books.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan wrote he was particularly fond of libraries because he worked his way through school as a library assistant. His favorite book is Carl Sandburg's "Abraham Lincoln: Prairie Years and War Years."

W. CLEMENT STONE wrote that his favorite books are those he had authored, but also admitted enjoying "Think and Grow Rich" (he sent along three copies to the library), and the Bible.

Cardinal Cody admitted he liked the Bible best, too.

Jim Hill, WMAQ Channel 5 weatherman, wrote his favorite book is Lincoln Barnett's "The Universe and Dr.

Einstein." (And added "Here's to more books and less TV!")

Stu Collins, WIND radio disc jockey from 2 to 6 p.m., wrote his favorite is "Write When You Get Work" by Bob Elliot and Ray Goulding ("It's about radio, natch!")

Bob Sirott, WLS disc jockey, said his No. 1 book is the dictionary because "all the other books are in it!" And Larry Lujack of WCFL said his favorite book is "Superjock" by Larry Lujack.

JOE WEISMAN, WTTW Channel 11 political reporter, chose Timothy Crouse's "Boys on the Bus," an inside glimpse at reporting a presidential campaign.

Frazier Thomas, WGN Channel 9 host of "Family Classics," wrote that as a child growing up in a small Indiana town some of his best friends were "the librarians." His favorite book is James Herriot's "All Creatures Great and Small."

"Hamilton Fish: Inner History of the Grant Administration" is the favorite of Chicago Library Board president Ralph G. Newman, who was fined $10,000 for falsifying documents which helped former President Richard Nixon claim tax deductions on his presidential papers. Fish was one of the more corrupt presidential administrators.

In a barely legible scrawl across the bottom right corner of his letter, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., wrote his favorite is "The Adams Chronicle," edited by Jack Shepherd. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., has not replied to Ms. Steiner's letter.

BILL VEECK, owner of the Chicago White Sox, wrote his favorite reading had matured from Mark Twain to Shakespeare to contemporary writers. "I never started a book I didn't finish and never read one from which I didn't learn, even if only how not to select reading material," he wrote.

Philip K. Wrigley, head of the chewing gum empire, wrote in a curt reply that he "couldn't" remember ever having had a favorite book because in the last half century I have just about all I can do to wade through the correspondence which has left me no time at all for reading books."

Louis Szathmari of the Chicago family restaurant The Bakery, said his favorite reading is "Food of the Western World" by Theodora Fitzgibbon and his own new book "The Chef's New Secret Cook Book." His signature is distinctive, complete with chef's hat drawn atop two letters.

Elk Grove Village trustee Michael A. Tosto likes best Alistair Cooke's "America;" Edward W. Kenna likes most of Allen Drury's works including "Advise and Consent," "A Shade of Difference," "Capable of Honor" and "Preserve and Protect." Trustee Nanci Vanderweel likes "Fear Strikes Out," the story of baseball player Jim Piersall who suffered a nervous breakdown.

THE FAVORITE OF Jan Erickson, president of the Elk Grove Village Newcomers Club, is Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind." Donald M. Fyfe, assistant principal of Elk Grove High School, likes Herman Melville's "Moby Dick" and Marilyn Ruben, president of the Poplar Creek unit of the National Council of Jewish Women, chose "My Name is Asher Lev," by Chaim Potok, the story of a young Jew and his struggle to be an artist without destroying his religious parents.

Some of the most widely known Illinois residents have not answered Ms. Steiner's letter. She should be hearing soon from Mayor Richard Daley, author Saul Bellow, cartoonist Bill Mauldin, reporter Len O'Connor, conductor Sir George Solti, Chicago Police Chief James Rockford, columnist Irv Kupcinet, Blackhawk restaurateur Don Roth, Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Gov. Dan Walker.

Dancer showcase this weekend

show "Two One Four Dance Festival '76."

The festival will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

The festival features the two best dancers from each of the district's eight high school orchestras shows, a new modern dance modern choreographed and performed by dancers from each school and a specialty toe dance with ballet performers.

A jazz dance choreographed by Vicki Jacobs of Hersey High School will be performed by district dance teachers. The show will offer modern jazz and classical numbers.

The goal of the dance teachers is to achieve consistently high standards in dance technique and performance, while furthering dance as an art form in the district.

Ticket information is available through Sue Nelson, Prospect High School, 255-9700, ext. 242.

films and concerts to accompany the classes.

"We're on a shoestring budget right now, but by charging a small fee, we could start it up by this coming fall," he says.

THE BUFFALO GROVE Park District is now sponsoring a senior citizens club that meets twice a month, and organizer Denny DeLance says he is encouraged by the turnout since the program started in February.

"We've been getting about 10 to 15 people at each meeting, and we hope to get more once the word gets around," DeLance says. "There hasn't been any communitywide program until now, and we want to provide some place where older people can get together and talk or play cards and meet friends."

DeLance says the biggest problem is a lack of transportation in Buffalo Grove — a situation that is especially acute for senior citizens. He said there is limited bus service through Wheeling Township, but said he is considering purchasing a van after the September park district referendum.

Current club activities include monthly outings to Chicago and nearby cities, DeLance says. The club also is planning to plant flowers this spring around the Raupp Memorial Building on Dunham Lane.

"We're just trying to get older people involved in the community," DeLance says. "Loneliness is one of the biggest problems for the senior citizens... we're trying to help."

Suburbs seek extension

Revenue sharing near end

by KURT BAER

Like sand running through the hour glass, federal revenue-sharing is slowly but surely running out for suburban communities.

Revenue sharing is part of the taxes the federal government collects but which Washington gives back to state, city, county and township governments.

Federal revenue-sharing checks have been arriving four times a year since 1972. But unless Uncle Sam steps up to turn the hour glass over, the program will expire at the end of December.

CRITICISM OF the program comes from two sides. On the one hand, opponents like U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane R-12th, say the system is inefficient, that too much money is wasted in the transfer of tax dollars.

Nationwide, the program is expensive, costing $5 billion a year. There would be more money to use locally if Washington never collected

it in the first place, Crane says.

Others are against the program because they say to pursue national goals in fields such as education, health and welfare, the federal government should give money to localities only for specific programs, not to use any way they want.

President Ford has asked Congress to extend revenue sharing for 5 1/2 years, with $180 million added each year for inflation.

U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House government operations committee in charge of a possible extension of revenue sharing, says the program is fundamentally wrong.

A GOVERNMENT operations subcommittee chaired by U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., is not expected to report to the full committee before Easter.

Although Brooks disagrees with the program, he has said he will not obstruct an extension of revenue sharing, leading some experts to predict the measure will pass before the November election.

Most of the debate centers on proposals to revise the program. The government operations subcommittee currently is looking at 14 proposed amendments.

Some proposals call for:

- Changing distribution formulas to give more money to cities and poor rural areas that have the greatest need.

- Strengthening requirements that funds be used in compliance with civil rights regulations.

- Giving local citizens' groups a greater right to be heard when local governments are deciding how to spend the money.

- Requiring that Congress appropriate revenue sharing one year at a time to exercise closer control.

Northwest suburban governments are virtually unanimous in their support of an extension of revenue sharing. Some village boards have passed resolutions calling for reenactment. And last December, local officials met personally with Crane to try to persuade him to back an extension bill.

THE AMOUNT OF money each town receives is based on a complex formula that includes population, average income and an evaluation of local tax effort. Ironically, communities with high taxes generally receive less money than those with low or no taxes, which frustrates some suburban leaders.

At the December meeting with Crane, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said that municipal leader have become "junkies" over revenue sharing.

While some of her local government colleagues disagreed with Hayter's characterization, no one disputed the fact the federal checks have become an important part of municipal finance.

High court rules today on O'Hare water plant tiff

The Illinois Supreme Court today is expected to make public a ruling whether the Metropolitan Sanitary District must abide by Des Plaines health ordinances in the construction of the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant.

James Murray, attorney for the MSD, said the high court has reached a decision but will not release it until today.

"That's what they've told us," said Murray. "We should have it today, but I wouldn't be surprised if they delayed it again."

The MSD and Des Plaines have been expecting the ruling for several weeks. The court indicated it would render its decision March 12, but postponed it for further consideration.

DES PLAINES has been challenging the MSD in court to block construction of the sewage treatment plant, to be located on the southwest corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines. The city is attempting to force the MSD to follow strict local health ordinances for sewage emissions. Des Plaines standards are more stringent than those generally followed by the sanitary district.

Should the Supreme Court rule in favor of the MSD, most obstacles to construction of the plant will be removed. Des Plaines still is fighting MSD plans in federal court, objecting to U. S. Environmental Protection Agency standards for plant construction.

THE PLANT, which will process about 72 million gallons of sewage a day when completed, has been plagued with legal and procedural problems for months.

The EPA ruled March 23 that the district must seek new bids for plant construction. The agency said a low bid of $118 million submitted last fall by Blount Bros. Corp., Chicago, does not meet engineering specifications.

The MSD is expected to award contracts for the project in May.

What does a millionaire like to read?

by JUDIE BLACK

Maybe you can't tell a book by its cover, but you surely can tell a lot about people by the books they read.

Test yourself. What prominent Illinois resident would pick as his favorite book "Think and Grow Rich" by Napoleon Hill? Who might choose Adam Smith's "The Wealth of Nations," first published in 1776? And who would select "The Hockey Handbook" by Lloyd Percival?

If you answered (in order) multi-millionaire W. Clement Stone, economist Milton Friedman and Chicago Black Hawk defenseman Keith Magnuson, you were right. And if you're interested in knowing what other well-known Illinois residents are reading, head for the Elk Grove Village Public Library and see the results of a most fascinating survey.

THE LIBRARY STAFF spent three weeks compiling a list of 234 prominent Illinois residents and Elk Grove residents, including politicians, professional athletes, media personalities, religious leaders and successful businessmen.

Librarian Janet Steiner then mailed letters asking the personalities to list their all-time favorite book or one they're enjoying now. Their responses, some scrawled in the corner or on the back of the original letter, and others on carefully typed pages, will be displayed at the library during April, in honor of National Library Week April 4-10.

The replies were as varied as the respondents, and ranged from childhood memories to promotions for their own books.

Nicholson, Pacino wait Oscar's call

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Nicholson and Al Pacino, who failed to win in nine previous tries, come down to the wire as favorites in the tight race for best actor in the 48th annual Academy Awards ceremonies tonight.

Nicholson won this year's nomination for his performance as an asylum inmate in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." Pacino was nominated for playing the wildly inept bank robber in "Dog Day Afternoon."

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" topped all other films in 1975 with nine nominations and may be the first film in 42 years to capture the three top Oscars, best picture, best actor and best actress (Louise Fletcher).

THE LAST MOVIE to make the grand slam was "It Happened One Night" which won for best picture of 1934, and Oscars for its stars, Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.

Other pictures in the running this year are "Dog Day Afternoon," "Barry Lyndon," "Jaws" and "Nashville."

Vying with Nicholson and Pacino for best actor of the year are Maximilian Schell ("The Man in the Glass Booth"), Walter Matthau

Actresses competing with Miss Fletcher for the movies' highest award are Isabelle Adjani ("The Story of Adele H."), Ann-Margret ("Tommy"), Glenda Jackson ("Hedda"), and Carol Kane ("Hester Street").

The film academy show will present awards in 21 categories on a live telecast (Channel 7, 9 p.m. CST) from the Los Angeles Music Center.

THE TWO-HOUR special will feature Gene Kelly, Walter Matthau, George Segal, Robert Shaw and Goldie Hawn as masters of ceremonies. More than 40 film stars will participate as presenters, performers or merely sitting nervously in the audience awaiting the opening of sealed envelopes.

Among such new faces as Marisa Berenson, Stockard Channing and Margaux Hemingway, will be familiar oldtimers Charlton Heston, Elizabeth Taylor, Audrey Hepburn, Ray Bolger and Charles Bronson.

Highlight of the ceremonies will be a filmed appearance by Mary Pickford accepting a special Oscar for her contributions to the motion picture industry. She won the second Academy Award ever given — for best actress of 1928 in "Coquette." Janet Gaynor in "Seventh Heaven" in 1927 was first actress to win the award.

A spokesman for the academy estimated a world-wide audience of a

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Jose Nicholas Astacio gets excited when he talks. Like when he discusses the earthquakes of his former home, the tiny Central American country of El Salvador.

"The ground start to shake, man," and Jose flutters his hands, making a noise like the rapid rustling of bird wings with his lips. "Brrrrrrrr. All the buildings shake."

"Then it stops for a little while and starts again. Brrrrrrrr. None of the buildings in Salvador are over three, four flats. They don't have the high rises like in America. They all fall down if they did."

"When that brrrrrrrr starts, it's scary, man."

The Jose Nicholas Astacio laughs.

Today

He laughs because all around him, everywhere he goes, he sees things that make him happy. And he laughs because he is in the United States, "the greatest country in the world," Jose says. And the ground never shakes in Des Plaines, Ill.

BEFORE JOSE moved from El Salvador to the United States, he

Schools

Arlington Heights Dist. 25

Buffalo Grove High School's hand bell choir will perform at 1:30 and 2 p.m. Tuesday for students at Ivy Hill School, 2211 N. Burke Dr., Arlington Heights.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54

A book fair will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Oak School. The fair will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the school gymnasium, 900 W. Glenn Tr., Elk Grove Village. Books range in price from 35 cents to $5.95.

Winners in the book fair poster contest each received a certificate toward the purchase of books at the fair. Winners were Bill Kulgelberg, second grade and Mary Bey, fifth grade.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59

Dick Rosberg will present a display of Indian artifacts to primary grade students at 10 a.m. today at Frost School, 1306 Cypress Dr., Mount Prospect. Rosberg, who is the owner of Books 'n Briers book store in Des Plaines, is a member of the Volunteer Services Bureau. The program is sponsored by the school PTA cultural arts program.

High School Dist. 214

College Night is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at Rolling Meadows High School, 1901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows, and for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Arlington High School, 502 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

Junior level students, and interested seniors and sophomores, and their parents are invited to attend either session. The Rolling Meadows High School session is planned for persons from Rolling Meadows, Forest View, Elk Grove and Prospect high schools. The Arlington High School evening is for students and parents from Arlington, Hersey, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

More than 150 colleges from throughout the country will be represented each evening. Many of the representatives will give half-hour presentations about their school, followed by a question and answer session. All college representatives will be available to parents and students to answer any questions and distribute college literature.

St. Raymond's School

Fifth and sixth graders of St. Raymond's School Tuesday will visit the Schwinn Bicycle Co. in Chicago. Buses will leave the school, 300 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect at 9 a.m. and return at 2:30 p.m.

St. Paul Lutheran School

Kindergarten registration and orientation has been scheduled for 1 p.m. Tuesday in the library at St. Paul Lutheran School, 18 S. School St., Mount Prospect. For information, call 255-6733.

In general...

The North Suburban Assn. of Educational Secretaries will hold a fashion show dinner at the Lancer Steak House restaurant, 50 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, Friday, April 9. Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Women's fashions will be modeled by members of the organization and men's fashions by several men administrators from the north suburban area schools.

All proceeds will go toward scholarships for selected high school students to further their education in the field of business services.

Tickets are $8 per person and may be obtained by calling Florence Atherton, 537-8270, before March 30.

April 2 is the last day high school students may apply for this year's college level, tuition-free anthropology course at the Field Museum of Natural History. The program is open to 27 high-ability juniors who have the academic ability and interest in an intensive six weeks of anthropology.

Students will be selected on the basis of academic achievement, recommendation of teachers and personal interviews. Application forms are available through high school officials or may be obtained from Harriet Smith, director of the program, 922-9410.

What does a millionaire, hockey player like to read?

particularly fond of libraries because he worked his way through school as a library assistant. His favorite book is Carl Sandburg's "Abraham Lincoln: Prairie Years and War Years."

W. CLEMENT STONE wrote that his favorite books are those he had authored, but also admitted enjoying "Think and Grow Rich" (he sent along three copies to the library), and the Bible.

Cardinal Cody admitted he liked the Bible best, too.

Jim Hill, WMAQ Channel 5 weatherman, wrote his favorite book is Lincoln Barnett's "The Universe and Dr. Einstein." (And added "Here's to more books and less TV!")

Stu Collins, WIND radio disc jockey from 2 to 6 p.m., wrote his favorite is "Write When You Get Work" by Bob Elliot and Ray Goulding ("It's about radio, natch!")

Bob Sirott, WLS disc jockey, said his No. 1 book is the dictionary because "all the other books are in it!" And Larry Lujack of WCFL said his favorite book is "Superjock" by Larry Lujack.

JOE WEISMAN, WTTW Channel 11 political reporter, chose Timothy Crouse's "Boys on the Bus," an inside glimpse at reporting a presidential campaign.

Frazier Thomas, WGN Channel 9 host of "Family Classics," wrote that as a child growing up in a small Indiana town some of his best friends were "the librarians." His favorite book is James Herriot's "All Creatures Great and Small."

"Hamilton Fish: Inner History of the Grant Administration" is the favorite of Chicago Library Board president Ralph G. Newman, who was fined $10,000 for falsifying documents which helped former President Richard Nixon claim tax deductions on his presidential papers. Fish was one of the more corrupt presidential administrators.

In a barely legible scrawl across the bottom right corner of his letter, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., wrote his favorite is "The Adams Chronicle," edited by Jack Shepherd. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., has not replied to Ms. Steiner's letter.

BILL VEECK, owner of the Chicago White Sox, wrote his favorite reading had matured from Mark Twain to Shakespeare to contemporary writers. "I never started a book I didn't finish and never read one from which I didn't learn, even if only how not to select reading material," he wrote.

Philip K. Wrigley, head of the chewing gum empire, wrote in a curt reply that he "(couldn't) remember ever having had a favorite book because in the last half century I have just about all I can do to wade through the correspondence which has left me no time at all for reading books."

Louis Szathmari of the Chicago family restaurant The Bakery, said his favorite reading is "Food of the Western World" by Theodora Fitzgibbon and his own new book "The Chef's New Secret Cook Book." His signature is distinctive, complete with chef's hat drawn atop two letters.

Elk Grove Village trustee Michael A. Tosto likes best Alistair Cooke's "America." Edward W. Kenna likes most of Allen Drury's works including "Advise and Consent," "A Shade of Difference," "Capable of Honor" and "Preserve and Protect." Trustee Nanci Vanderweel likes "Fear Strikes Out," the story of baseball player Jim Piersall who suffered a nervous breakdown.

THE FAVORITE OF Jan Erickson, president of the Elk Grove Village Newcomers Club, is Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind." Donald M. Fyfe, assistant principal of Elk Grove High School, likes Herman Melville's "Moby Dick," and Marilyn Ruben, president of the Poplar Creek unit of the National Council of Jewish Women, chose "My Name is Asher Lev," by Chaim Potok, the story of a young Jew and his struggle to be an artist without destroying his religious parents.

Dist. 211 wrapup

Howard appointed principal at Fremd

Thomas G. Howard, associate principal of Fremd High School, has been named principal by the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education.

Howard will replace present principal Stanley Smith, who earlier this month was appointed director of noninstructional services.

Howard, a resident of Palatine, was appointed Schaumburg High School's director of pupil personnel services in 1970 and in 1972 became associate principal at the school. In 1974 he transferred to Fremd as associate principal.

Howard's appointment leaves an associate principal vacancy at Fremd. A sabbatical leave was granted by the board to William Patterson, assistant principal of Palatine High School, so a vacancy also will exist at Palatine, though only for a one-year period.

Bridge program to continue

The board voted to approve the continuation of the district's off-campus learning resource program at the Bridge in Palatine for one more year. The Bridge program offers an alternative education to students who are not able to function in the regular classroom setting. The program has served 20 students so far this year. Total cost of the program for next year is estimated at $39,600.

Free summer school OK'd

In spite of uncertainty about summer school state funding, the board voted to continue offering free summer school courses to district students.

Gerald Chapman, assistant to the superintendent, said students would have to pay about $60 per course if a tuition-based summer school were approved.

Chapman said about 4,000 students were enrolled in summer school last year. The program will cost about $200,000 this year which the district's budget could cover if the state does not follow through on reimbursement, he said.

Suburbs seek extension

Revenue sharing near end

by KURT BAER

Like sand running through the hour glass, federal revenue-sharing is slowly but surely running out for suburban communities.

Revenue sharing is part of the taxes the federal government collects but which Washington gives back to state, city, county and township governments.

Federal revenue-sharing checks have been arriving four times a year since 1972. But unless Uncle Sam steps up to turn the hour glass over, the program will expire at the end of December.

CRITICISM OF the program comes from two sides. On the one hand, opponents like U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane R-12th, say the system is inefficient, that too much money is wasted in the transfer of tax dollars.

Nationwide, the program is expensive, costing $5 billion a year. There would be more money to use locally if Washington never collected

it in the first place, Crane says.

Others are against the program because they say to pursue national goals in fields such as education, health and welfare, the federal government should give money to localities only for specific programs, not to use any way they want.

President Ford has asked Congress to extend revenue sharing for 5% years, with $150 million added each year for inflation.

U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House government operations committee in charge of a possible extension of revenue sharing, says the program is fundamentally wrong.

A GOVERNMENT operations subcommittee chaired by U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., is not expected to report to the full committee before Easter.

Although Brooks disagrees with the program, he has said he will not obstruct an extension of revenue sharing, leading some experts to predict the measure will pass before the November election.

Most of the debate centers on proposals to revise the program. The government operations subcommittee currently is looking at 14 proposed amendments.

Some proposals call for:

- Changing distribution formulas to give more money to cities and poor rural areas that have the greatest need.

- Strengthening requirements that funds be used in compliance with civil rights regulations.

- Giving local citizens' groups a greater right to be heard when local governments are deciding how to spend the money.

- Requiring that Congress appropriate revenue sharing one year at a time to exercise closer control.

Northwest suburban governments are virtually unanimous in their support of an extension of revenue sharing. Some village boards have passed resolutions calling for reenactment. And last December, local officials met personally with Crane to try to persuade him to back an extension bill.

THE AMOUNT OF money each town receives is based on a complex formula that includes population, average income and an evaluation of local tax effort. Ironically, communities with high taxes generally receive less money than those with low or no taxes, which frustrates some suburban leaders.

At the December meeting with Crane, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said that municipal leader have become "junkies" over revenue sharing.

While some of her local government colleagues disagreed with Hayter's characterization, no one disputed the fact the federal checks have become an important part of municipal finance.

Hoffman gives tentative OK to new trash plan

A one-day garbage pickup service has been given preliminary approval by the Hoffman Estates Public Health and Safety Committee.

Paper pickup service set for trial run

A newspaper pickup service will be conducted on a three-month trial basis in Hoffman Estates, according to a recommendation of the public health and safety committee.

The service, to collect newspapers for recycling, was provided two years ago and was successful until the price for recycled paper dropped, Public Health Director James Demos said.

The committee is considering reviving the service because it would cut down on garbage loads and increase the amount of recyclable paper.

DEMOS SAID THE program at one time made $38 per ton of paper collected, but the price recently fell to $15 a ton.

He added the price is now stabilized at $25 per ton and promises to remain at least at that level through summer.

"It (paper pickup) was becoming very well received by the public before it was canceled," Demos said. "When we had the program, the amount of paper was gradually increasing all the time."

He said the program began with 47,500 pounds of paper collected and (Continued on Page 5)

Volunteers sought for health survey

More volunteers are needed to work on a health survey for Hoffman Estates.

The survey, to determine the health and medical needs of village residents, should be completed by fall, Public Health Director James Demos said.

"We should have enough volunteers to complete part one and part three of the health survey," he said. "As soon as all three parts have been completely finished and turned into our department, we will sit down and analyze the statistics and make them available."

Interested persons should call the health department at 852-9106.

The Browning-Ferris scavenger firm, which holds the village garbage contract, collects five to six times a week in the village with specific sections of town covered each day.

Health Director James Demos said in a report to the committee Thursday night the current collection process "poses an aesthetic eyesore in the community since there is garbage on the ground every day of the week."

Blowing garbage, and the threat of attraction of animals, rodents and flies also exists, he added.

Demos has recommended Thursdays be designated pick-up days for all homes having curb-side and back-door garbage pickup.

Demos recommended Thursday pick-up for nine months of the year, with Monday and Thursday designated as pick-up days during June, July and August.

Trustee William Palmer said he would support the one-day pick-up service, adding the switch would be best implemented after fall.

Demos said the proposal would not increase garbage costs or change the existing contract with the Browning-Ferris scavenger company.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said the matter should be sent to the board of health for study.

The matter will be studied by the village board April 5.

Nicholson, Pacino wait Oscar's call

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Nicholson and Al Pacino, who failed to win in nine previous tries, come down to the wire as favorites in the tight race for best actor in the 48th annual Academy Awards ceremonies tonight.

Nicholson won this year's nomination for his performance as an asylum inmate in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." Pacino was nominated for playing the wildly inept bank robber in "Dog Day Afternoon."

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" topped all other films in 1975 with nine nominations and may be the first film in 42 years to capture the three top Oscars, best picture, best actor and best actress (Louise Fletcher).

THE LAST MOVIE to make the grand slam was "It Happened One Night" which won for best picture of 1934, and Oscars for its stars, Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.

Other pictures in the running this year are "Dog Day Afternoon," "Barry Lyndon," "Jaws" and "Nashville."

Vying with Nicholson and Pacino for best actor of the year are Maximilian Schell ("The Man in the Glass Booth"), Walter Matthau

Actresses competing with Miss Fletcher for the movies' highest award are Isabelle Adjani ("The Story of Adele H."), Ann-Margret ("Tommy"), Glenda Jackson ("Hedda"), and Carol Kane ("Hester Street").

The film academy show will present awards in 21 categories on a live telecast (Channel 7, 9 p.m. CST) from the Los Angeles Music Center.

THE TWO-HOUR special will feature Gene Kelly, Walter Matthau, George Segal, Robert Shaw and Goldie Hawn as masters of ceremonies. More than 40 film stars will participate as presenters, performers or merely sitting nervously in the audience awaiting the opening of sealed envelopes.

Among such new faces as Marisa Berenson, Stockard Channing and Margaux Hemingway, will be familiar oldtimers Charlton Heston, Elizabeth Taylor, Audrey Hepburn, Ray Bolger and Charles Bronson.

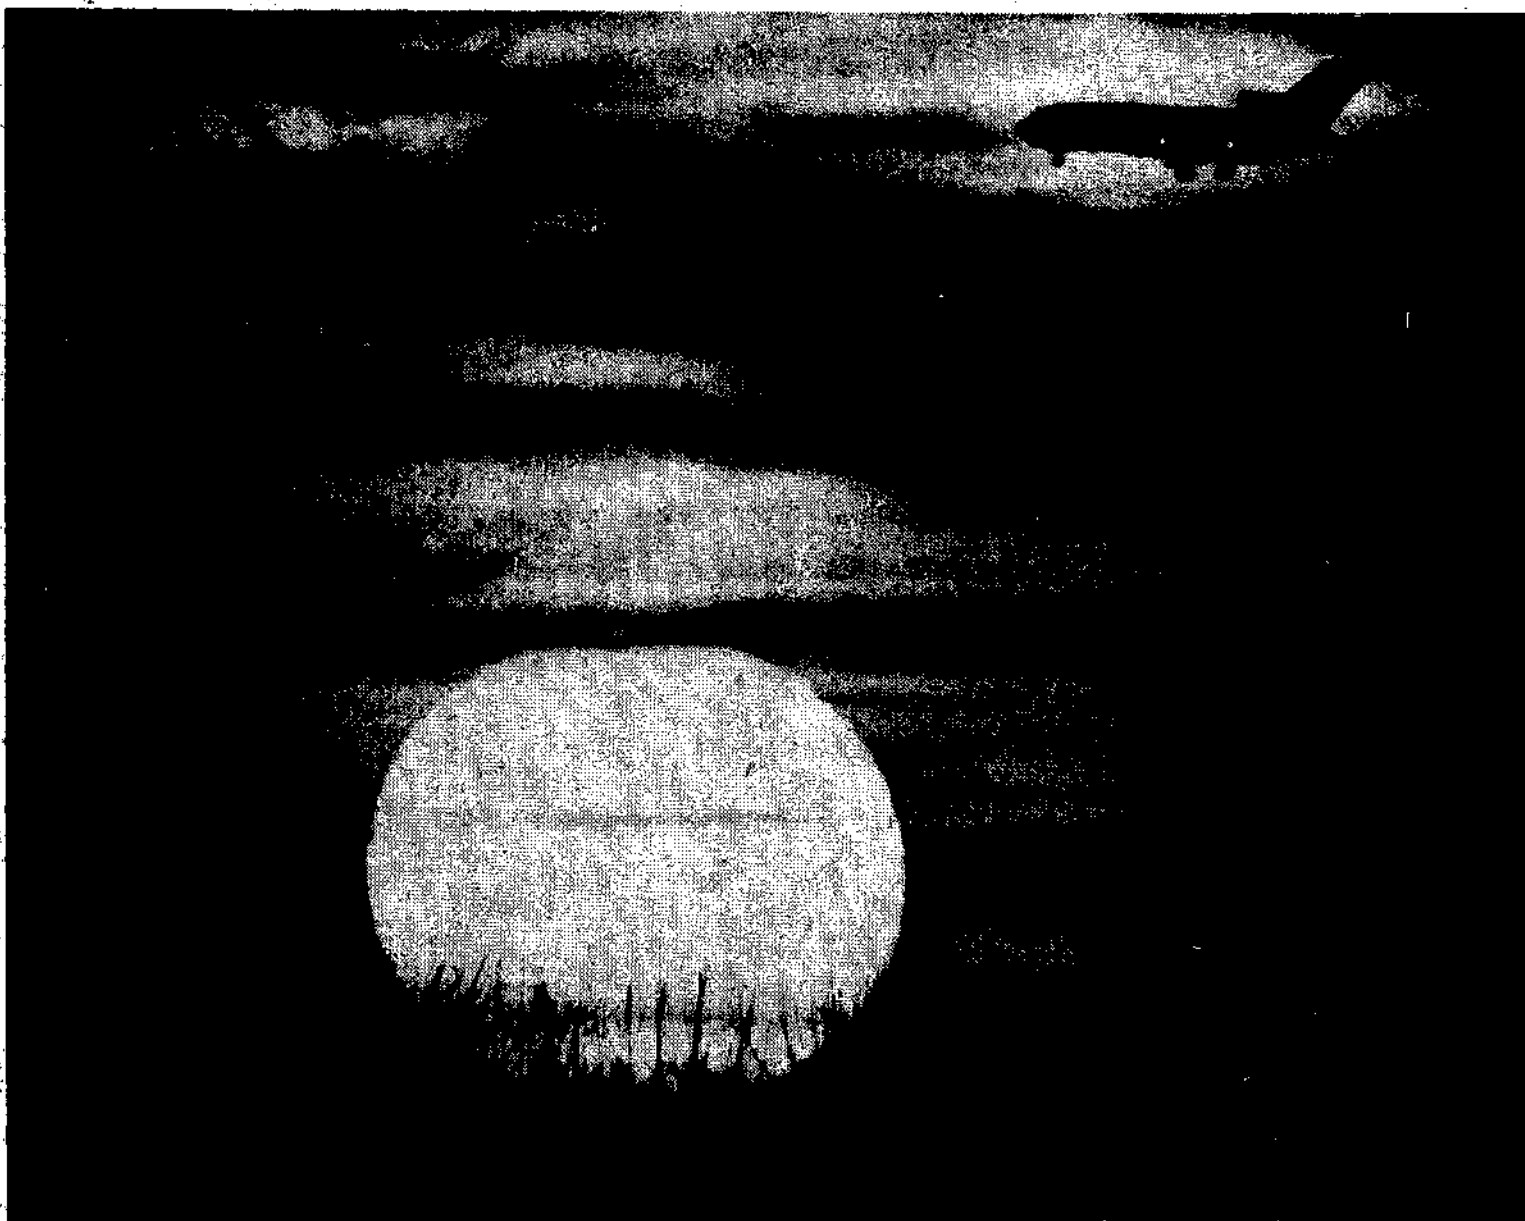

Highlight of the ceremonies will be a filmed appearance by Mary Pickford accepting a special Oscar for her contributions to the motion picture industry. She won the second Academy Award ever given — for best actress of 1928 in "Coquette." Janet Gaynor in "Seventh Heaven" in 1927 was first actress to win the award.

After move here, life's not shaky

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Jose Nicholas Astacio gets excited when he talks. Like when he discusses the earthquakes of his former home, the tiny Central American country of El Salvador.

"The ground start to shake, man," and Jose flutters his hands, making a noise like the rapid rustling of bird wings with his lips, "Brrrrrrrr. All the buildings shake."

"Then it stops for a little while and starts again. Brrrrrrrr. None of the buildings in Salvador are over three, four flats. They don't have the high rises like in America. They all fall down if they did."

"When that brrrrrrrr starts, it's scary, man."

The Jose Nicholas Astacio laughs.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

A three-day book fair is being sponsored by the Hunting Ridge School PTA. Students may view the book display today during school hours and purchase books Tuesday and Wednesday. The display will be in a bookmobile parked on the school grounds, 1105 W. Illinois Ave., Palatine. Parents are invited to visit the bookmobile any day during school hours.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54

A book fair will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Lind School. The fair will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the school gymnasium, 900 W. Glenn Tr., Elk Grove Village. Books range in price from 35 cents to $5.95.

Winners in a book fair poster contest each received a certificate good towards the purchase of books at the fair. Winners were Bill Kulgeberg, second grade and Mary Bey, fifth grade.

High School Dist. 214

College Night is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows, and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Arlington High School, 502 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

Junior level students, and interested seniors and sophomores, and their parents are invited to attend either session. The Rolling Meadows High School session is planned for persons from Rolling Meadows, Forest View, Elk Grove and Prospect high schools. The Arlington High School evening is for students and parents from Arlington, Hersey, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

More than 150 colleges from throughout the country will be represented each evening. Many of the representatives will give half-hour presentations about their school, followed by a question and answer session. All college representatives will be available to parents and students to answer any questions and distribute college literature.

Woodfield Jewish Day School

The Board of Jewish Education Early Childhood Center at Beth Tikvah in Hoffman Estates continues its discussion series today on the transition from nursery school to kindergarten.

The series is intended to enable parents to better understand how to help their children cope with the change from nursery school to kindergarten.

The discussions will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. today and April 5 at the Early Childhood Center. Dr. Richard Makler, BJE staff psychologist, will conduct the series. While the series is for parents of four-year-olds, all parents are welcome to attend.

Enrollment applications for the center are now being accepted for September. Morning or afternoon sessions are available as well as a choice of five-day or three-day programs. Parents who want to be assured of first choice are urged to register as soon as possible. Enrollment for the five-week summer session July 6 to Aug. 6 is now open to the community.

For further information, call Marvell Ginsburg, BJE Early Childhood consultant, at HA7-5570. Information is also available at the school, 885-1600.

In general . . .

The 81st annual meeting of the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Schools will be held today through Wednesday at the Palmer House, Chicago.

Speaking at the conference will be David Williams, dean of transfer programs at Harper College, Palatine. His topic will be "New Directions in Honors Programs: The Two-Year College." Bruce H. Altergott, associate superintendent of High School Dist. 211, will speak on "Evaluating the Principal: Some Ideas, Some Ideals."

About 4,000 representatives of accredited elementary schools, high schools, colleges and universities are expected to attend the conference to discuss current challenges to education.

The major presentations are open to educators free of charge. Registration information and programs are available from NCA, 5454 S. Shore Blvd., Chicago, Ill., 60615.

The North Suburban Assn. of Educational Secretaries will hold a fashion show dinner at the Lancer Steak House restaurant, 50 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, Friday, April 9. Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Women's fashions will be modeled by members of the organization and men's fashions by several male administrators from the north suburban area schools.

All proceeds will go toward scholarships for selected high school students to further their education in the field of business services.

Tickets are $8 per person and may be obtained by calling Florence Atherton, 537-8270, before Tuesday.

PROPER CARE and feeding of house plants was the order of the day for those in attendance at Schaumburg Park District's first plant lecture and demonstration. Instructors discussed the finer points of potting and lighting to enhance the health of greenery.

'Watch' vs. 'warning'

Tornado tests to start May 4

Schaumburg will hold a tornado warning test at 10:30 a.m. the first Tuesday of each month beginning May 4.

"We are now starting the tornado season in this area, as evidenced by the recent damaging weather conditions," said Robert Ciner, village Civil Defense coordinator.

Ciner advises residents to learn the difference between a tornado "watch" and "warning" as issued by the U.S. Weather Service.

Ciner said a "watch" is issued when conditions exist that could form funnel clouds. "During a 'watch' awareness and caution should be exercised, but if a tornado 'warning' is issued, residents should take precautions and remain indoors," he said.

A tornado warning means a funnel cloud has been sighted.

THE LOWEST PART of the house, inner hallways or any area away from glass and windows will provide the best protection, Ciner said, cautioning persons in open country to move away from the tornado's path at a right angle or lie flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine.

Schools and places of business usually have their own established tornado safety procedures, Ciner added.

He said U.S. Weather Service warnings are issued for one-hour durations unless extended by the service, and an "all-clear" signal is not given.

Ciner said sirens are sounded in 3-to 5-minute steady blasts when tornadoes are imminent.

"If a siren is heard, a real danger to the town exists and residents should seek immediate protection," he added, suggesting keeping a small portable radio available to provide weather and other bulletins in the event of power failure.

Newspaper pickup service slated

ended with a monthly total of $6,500 pounds.

VILLAGE PRES. Virginia Hayter told the committee she felt the program was worth continuing even when the village was losing money.

She said she would consider a subsidy of up to $1,000 a year to preserve the pickup program.

Demos said he did not think a subsidy would be necessary for the curbside service.

Demos will work with Browning-Ferris, the village scavenger service, on a proposal to initiate the program, possibly as early as June.

Girl, 17, raped; attacker sought

A 17-year-old Des Plaines girl was raped early Sunday by a man who forced her into some bushes near her home, assaulted her, then fled.

Police said the girl was walking near 2510 Dempster St., about 1:30 a.m. when she was attacked.

The man was described as 5 feet 9 inches tall, in his 20s, weighing 140 pounds and having a light complexion with short brown hair.

He wore black trousers and a white dress shirt. He ran northbound from the scene, police said.

Update needed of workers pay scales: Weber

by JERRY THOMAS

Rolling Meadows Ald. Daniel Weber, 4th, has called for a professional study of city employee job classifications and salary scales.

"It has been five years since this city established certain job classifications and accepted consulting firm's opinion on what we should pay employees," he said.

"It's time we upgraded or updated our present job descriptions," Weber said.

WEBER SAID HE believes some salaries for jobs in city departments "are way out."

Weber declined comment on whether he thought employees were underpaid or overpaid.

"In some departments there are inequities," he said. "As an example, in some cases a worker who has been with the city several years earns almost as much as supervisory personnel," Weber said.

Another study area, Weber said, is the salary classifications in the police and fire departments.

Fire department lieutenants and police department sergeants are in the same salary category, said Weber.

"I'M NOT NECESSARILY saying one is higher or lower than the other, but I think it's time we had a professional re-evaluation done, especially when it comes to the salary span between administration and staff," Weber said.

He has asked the city finance committee to propose such a study.

Weber said he does not want the finance committee or city staff to conduct the study but to recommend a firm for the job.

"The staff report would be questioned by the council. How can employees be completely impartial?" Weber said.

"A FINANCE committee report might be criticized by some on the council who might ask what qualifications its members have to conduct such a study," Weber said.

"That's why I am urging a professional outside study," Weber said.

The council is in the midst of reviewing the 1976-77 city budget and has given its preliminary approval to 5 per cent raises for all city employees effective in May.

Fall date seen for funding of sewage system

Federal funding could be available by fall for a planned $200,000 sewage system for the northeast portion of Rolling Meadows.

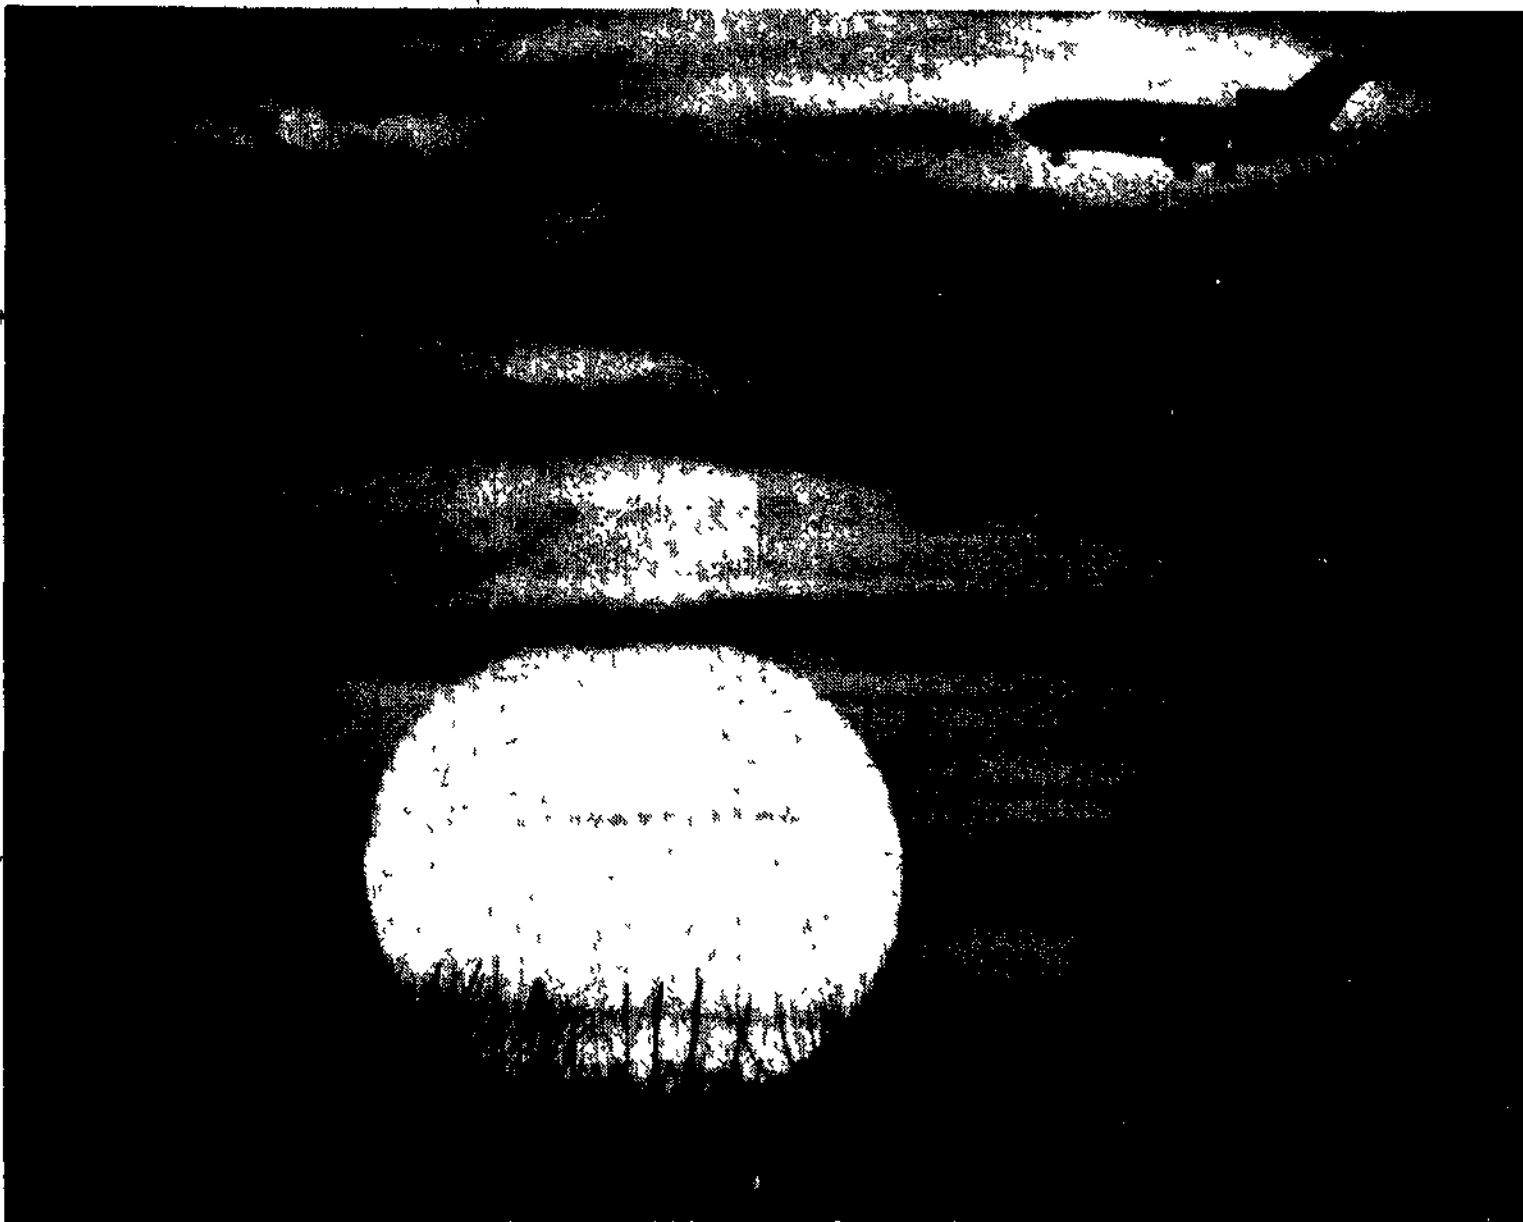

City Engineer James Muldowney said the city has approved $10,000 in emergency repairs to the South Street sewage lift station. "However, we must, within the next year, either rebuild the station or construct a gravity flow sewage system instead of the lift station system which now pumps sewage uphill," he said.

Muldowney said he understands there is now a bill before Congress that will provide federal funding for major city public works projects if they will provide long-term benefits. Another qualification is that the work on the project must start approximately 60 days after application for funding is approved, Muldowney said.

MULDOWNEY SAID the city has been concerned about the South Street sewage lift station for several years. It was constructed 19 years ago and the deep shaft is no longer waterproof. Electrical equipment that runs the below-ground pumps is threatened every time it rains, Muldowney said.

The lift station is overburdened and old, and needs to be rebuilt, he said. Muldowney said he recommends constructing a gravity flow system instead of rebuilding the lift station. Rebuilding the station would cost between $80,000 and $100,000, he said.

"And in about 20 years the station would again have to be rebuilt. During that time, the city also would have to pay utility and maintenance costs," he added.

Nicholson, Pacino wait Oscar's call

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Nicholson and Al Pacino, who failed to win in nine previous tries, come down to the wire as favorites in the tight race for best actor in the 48th annual Academy Awards ceremonies tonight.

Nicholson won this year's nomination for his performance as an asylum inmate in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." Pacino was nominated for playing the wildly inept bank robber in "Dog Day Afternoon."

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" topped all other films in 1975 with nine nominations and may be the first film in 42 years to capture the three top Oscars, best picture, best actor and best actress (Louise Fletcher).

THE LAST MOVIE to make the grand slam was "It Happened One Night" which won for best picture of 1934, and Oscars for its stars, Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.

Other pictures in the running this year are "Dog Day Afternoon," "Barry Lyndon," "Jaws" and "Nashville." Vying with Nicholson and Pacino for best actor of the year are Maximilian Schell ("The Man in the Glass Booth"), Walter Matthau

("The Sunshine Boys") and James Whitmore ("Give 'em Hell Harry!").

Actresses competing with Miss Fletcher for the movies' highest award are Isabelle Adjani ("The Story of Adele H."), Ann-Margret ("Tommy"), Glenda Jackson ("Hedda"), and Carol Kane ("Hester Street").

The film academy show will present awards in 21 categories on a live telecast (Channel 7, 9 p.m. CST) from the Los Angeles Music Center.

THE TWO-HOUR special will feature Gene Kelly, Walter Matthau, George Segal, Robert Shaw and Gokle Hawn as masters of ceremonies. More than 40 film stars will participate as presenters, performers or merely sitting nervously in the audience awaiting the opening of sealed envelopes.

Among such new faces as Marisa Berenson, Stockard Channing and Margaux Hemingway, will be familiar oldtimers Charlton Heston, Elizabeth Taylor, Audrey Hepburn, Ray Bolger and Charles Bronson.

Highlight of the ceremonies will be a filmed appearance by Mary Pickford accepting a special Oscar for her contributions to the motion picture industry. She won the second Academy Award ever given — for best actress of 1928 in "Coquette." Janet Gaynor in "Seventh Heaven" in 1927 was first actress to win the award.

Jose Nicholas Astacio gets excited when he talks. Like when he discusses the earthquakes of his former home, the tiny Central American country of El Salvador.

"The ground start to shake, man," and Jose flutters his hands, making a noise like the rapid rustling of bird wings with his lips. "Brrrrrrrr. All the buildings shake."

"Then it stops for a little while and starts again. Brrrrrrrr. None of the buildings in Salvador are over three, four flats. They don't have the high rises like in America. They all fall down if they did."

"When that brrrrrrrr starts, it's scary, man."

The Jose Nicholas Astacio laughs.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

A three-day book fair is being sponsored by the Hunting Ridge School PTA. Students may view the book display today during school hours and purchase books Tuesday and Wednesday. The display will be in a bookmobile parked on the school grounds, 1105 W. Illinois Ave., Palatine. Parents are invited to visit the bookmobile any day during school hours.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54

A book fair will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Liak School. The fair will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the school gymnasium, 900 W. Glenn Tr., Elk Grove Village. Books range in price from 35 cents to $5.95.

High School Dist. 214

College Night is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows, and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Arlington High School, 502 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

Junior level students, and interested seniors and sophomores, and their parents are invited to attend either session. The Rolling Meadows High School session is planned for persons from Rolling Meadows, Forest View, Elk Grove and Prospect high schools. The Arlington High School evening is for students and parents from Arlington, Hersey, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

More than 150 colleges from throughout the country will be represented each evening. Many of the representatives will give half-hour presentations about their school, followed by a question and answer session. All college representatives will be available to parents and students to answer any questions and distribute college literature.

Woodfield Jewish Day School

The Board of Jewish Education Early Childhood Center at Beth Tikvah in Hoffman Estates continues its discussion series today on the transition from nursery school to kindergarten.

The series is intended to enable parents to better understand how to help their children cope with the change from nursery school to kindergarten.

The discussions will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. today and April 5 at the Early Childhood Center. Dr. Richard Malter, BJE staff psychologist, will conduct the series. While the series is for parents of four-year-olds, all parents are welcome to attend.

Enrollment applications for the center are now being accepted for September. Morning or afternoon sessions are available as well as a choice of five-day or three-day programs. Parents who want to be assured of first choice are urged to register as soon as possible. Enrollment for the five-week summer session July 6 to Aug. 6 is now open to the community.

For further information, call Marvell Ginsburg, BJE Early Childhood consultant, at HA7-5570. Information is also available at the school, 885-1600.

In general . . .

The 81st annual meeting of the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Schools will be held today through Wednesday at the Palmer House, Chicago.

Speaking at the conference will be David Williams, dean of transfer programs at Harper College, Palatine. His topic will be "New Directions in Honors Programs: The Two-Year College." Bruce H. Altergott, associate superintendent of High School Dist. 211, will speak on "Evaluating the Principal: Some Ideas, Some Ideals."

About 4,000 representatives of accredited elementary schools, high schools, colleges and universities are expected to attend the conference to discuss current challenges to education.

The major presentations are open to educators free of charge. Registration information and programs are available from NCA, 5454 S. Shore Blvd., Chicago, Ill., 60615.

The North Suburban Assn. of Educational Secretaries will hold a fashion show dinner at the Lancer Steak House restaurant, 50 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, Friday, April 9. Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Women's fashions will be modeled by members of the organization and men's fashions by several male administrators from the north suburban area schools.

All proceeds will go toward scholarships for selected high school students to further their education in the field of business services.

Tickets are $8 per person and may be obtained by calling Florence Atherton, 537-8270, before Tuesday.

What does multimillionaire read?

by JUDIE BLACK

Maybe you can't tell a book by its cover, but you surely can tell a lot about people by the books they read.

Test yourself. What prominent Illinois resident would pick as his favorite book "Think and Grow Rich" by Napoleon Hill? Who might choose Adam Smith's "The Wealth of Nations," first published in 1776? And who would select "The Hockey Handbook" by Lloyd Percival?

If you answered (in order) multimillionaire W. Clement Stone, economist Milton Friedman and Chicago Black Hawk defenseman Keith Magnuson, you were right. And if you're interested in knowing what other well-known Illinois residents are reading, head for the Elk Grove Village Public Library and see the results of a most fascinating survey.

THE LIBRARY STAFF spent three weeks compiling a list of 234 prominent Illinois residents and Elk Grove residents, including politicians, professional athletes, media personalities, religious leaders and successful businessmen.

Librarian Janet Steiner then mailed letters asking the personalities to list their all-time favorite book or one they're enjoying now. Their responses, some scrawled in the corner or on the back of the original letter, and others on carefully typed pages, will be displayed at the library during April, in honor of National Library Week April 4-10.

The replies were as varied as the respondents, and ranged from childhood memories to promotions for their own books.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan wrote he was particularly fond of libraries because he worked his way through school as a library assistant. His favorite book is Carl Sandburg's "Abraham Lincoln: Prairie Years and War Years."

W. CLEMENT STONE wrote that his favorite books are those he had authored, but also admitted enjoying "Think and Grow Rich" (he sent along three copies to the library), and the Bible.

Cardinal Cody admitted he liked the Bible best, too.

Jim Hill, WMAQ Channel 5 weatherman, wrote his favorite book is Lincoln Barnett's "The Universe and Dr. Einstein." (And added "Here's to more books and less TV!")

Stu Collins, WIND radio disc jockey from 2 to 6 p.m., wrote his favorite is "Write When You Get Work" by Bob Elliot and Ray Goulding ("It's about radio, natch!")

Bob Sirott, WLS disc jockey, said his No. 1 book is the dictionary because "all the other books are in it." And Larry Lujack of WCFL said his favorite book is "Superjock" by Larry Lujack.

JOE WEISMAN, WTTW Channel 11 political reporter, chose Timothy Crouse's "Boys on the Bus," an inside glimpse at reporting a presidential campaign.

Frazier Thomas, WGN Channel 9 host of "Family Classics," wrote that as a child growing up in a small Indiana town some of his best friends were "the librarians." His favorite book is James Herriot's "All Creatures Great and Small."

"Hamilton Fish: Inner History of the Grant Administration" is the favorite of Chicago Library Board president Ralph G. Newman, who was fined $10,000 for falsifying documents which helped former President Richard Nixon claim tax deductions on his presidential papers. Fish was one of the more corrupt presidential administrators.

In a barely legible scrawl across the bottom right corner of his letter, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., wrote his favorite is "The Adams Chronicle," edited by Jack Shepherd. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., has not replied to Ms. Steiner's letter.

BILL VEECK, owner the Chicago White Sox, wrote his favorite reading had matured from Mark Twain to Shakespeare to contemporary writers. "I never started a book I didn't finish and never read one from which I didn't learn, even if only how not to select reading material," he wrote.

Philip K. Wrigley, head of the chewing gum empire, wrote in a curt reply that he "(couldn't) remember ever having had a favorite book because in the last half century I have just about all I can do to wade through the correspondence which has left me no time at all for reading books."

Louis Szathmari of the Chicago family restaurant The Bakery, said his favorite reading is "Food of the Western World" by Theodora Fitzgibbon and his own new book "The Chef's New Secret Cook Book." His signature is distinctive, complete with chef's hat drawn atop two letters.

Elk Grove Village trustee Michael A. Tosto likes best Alistair Cooke's "America," Edward W. Kenna likes most of Allen Drury's works including

"Advise and Consent," "A Shade of Difference," "Capable of Honor" and "Preserve and Protect." Trustee Nanci Vanderweel likes "Fear Strikes Out," the story of baseball player Jim Piersall who suffered a nervous breakdown.

artist without destroying his religious parents.

Some of the most widely known Illinois residents have not answered Ms. Steiner's letter. She should be hearing soon from Mayor Richard Daley, author Saul Bellow, cartoonist Bill Mauldin, reporter Len O'Connor, conductor Sir George Solti, Chicago Police Chief James Rochford, columnist Irv Kupcinet, Blackhawk restaurateur Don Roth, Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Gov. Dan Walker.

The library will display many of the replies, although not all the favorite books mentioned may be available. Ms. Steiner also plans to set aside a place for library patrons to list their favorite books and authors.

Des Plaines zeroes in on pigeons

Des Plaines apparently will wage one more attack against the messy pigeons on the city's south side before calling in an outside expert.

Joseph Schwab, commissioner of public works, said he will recommend the city council authorize him to spend between $1,200 and $1,400 for Roost-No-More, a chemical that will encourage the unwanted birds to go elsewhere.

He said he met with officials from National Bird Control Laboratories, Skokie, but has decided the city should try the chemical before paying the firm $3,000 to rid the 1000 and 1700 blocks of Lunt and Greenleaf avenues of the pigeons.

"I would imagine the city council and the mayor would want us to try the cheaper way first," he said. "It should work because it's the same stuff they (National Bird Laboratories) would use."

THE PASTE-LIKE chemical is applied to the surfaces on which the pigeons roost, he said. It is non-toxic and is approved by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

City officials last October said the large flocks of pigeons that roost on a bridge in the area pose a health hazard, and ordered steps to remove them "humanely."

Since the city council ordered the removal of the pigeons the public works department has captured about 50 of the birds in cages, or at night with nets. They also have used another chemical in an attempt to rid the area of the birds.

Despite the city's efforts, as many as 150 pigeons can be found at the location at certain times each day, Schwab said. He said city efforts have been ineffective because some residents continue to feed the pigeons.

Pigeons captured by the city are being kept in cages behind the city's public works garage, 1111 Campground Rd. Schwab said as soon as the city captures 100 pigeons they will be turned over to the Lincoln Park Zoo, Chicago.

Girl, 17, raped; attacker sought

A 17-year-old Des Plaines girl was raped early Sunday by a man who forced her into some bushes near her home, assaulted her, then fled.

Police said the girl was walking near 2510 Dempster St., about 1:30 a.m. when she was attacked.

The man was described as 5 feet 9 inches tall, in his 20s, weighing 140 pounds and having a light complexion with short brown hair.

He wore black trousers and a white dress shirt. He ran northbound from the scene, police said.

Dancer showcase this weekend

The High School Dist. 214 Dance Teachers Assn. will present the district's top dancers and dance selections this weekend in the district-wide show "Two One Four Dance Festival '76."

The festival will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

The festival features the two best dancers from each of the district's eight high school orchestras shows, a new modern dance number choreographed and performed by dancers from each school and a specialty too dance with ballet performers.

A jazz dance choreographed by Vicki Jacobs of Hersey High School will be performed by district dance teachers. The show will offer modern jazz and classical numbers.

The goal of the dance teachers is to achieve consistently high standards in dance technique and performance, while furthering dance as an art form in the district.

Ticket information is available through Sue Nelson, Prospect High School, 255-9700, ext. 242.

Suburbs seek extension

Revenue sharing near end

by KURT BAER

Like sand running through the hour glass, federal revenue-sharing is slowly but surely running out for suburban communities.

Revenue sharing is part of the taxes the federal government collects but which Washington gives back to state, city, county and township governments.

Federal revenue-sharing checks have been arriving four times a year since 1972. But unless Uncle Sam steps up to turn the hour glass over, the program will expire at the end of December.

CRITICISM OF the program comes from two sides. On the one hand, opponents like U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane R-Ill., say the system is inefficient, that too much money is wasted in the transfer of tax dollars.

Nationwide, the program is expensive, costing $5 billion a year. There would be more money to use locally if Washington never collected

it in the first place, Crane says.

Others are against the program because they say to pursue national goals in fields such as education, health and welfare, the federal government should give money to localities only for specific programs, not to use any way they want.

President Ford has asked Congress to extend revenue sharing for 5 1/2 years, with $150 million added each year for inflation.

U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House government operations committee in charge of a possible extension of revenue sharing, says the program is fundamentally wrong.

A GOVERNMENT operations subcommittee chaired by U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., is not expected to report to the full committee before Easter.

Although Brooks disagrees with the program, he has said he will not obstruct an extension of revenue sharing, leading some experts to predict the measure will pass before the November election.

Most of the debate centers on proposals to revise the program. The government operations subcommittee currently is looking at 14 proposed amendments.

Some proposals call for:

- Changing distribution formulas to give more money to cities and poor rural areas that have the greatest need.

- Strengthening requirements that funds be used in compliance with civil rights regulations.

- Giving local citizens' groups a greater right to be heard when local governments are deciding how to spend the money.

- Requiring that Congress appropriate revenue sharing one year at a time to exercise closer control.

Northwest suburban governments are virtually unanimous in their support of an extension of revenue sharing. Some village boards have passed resolutions calling for reenactment. And last December, local officials met personally with Crane to try to persuade him to back an extension bill.

THE AMOUNT OF money each town receives is based on a complex formula that includes population, average income and an evaluation of local tax effort. Ironically, communities with high taxes generally receive less money than those with low or no taxes, which frustrates some suburban leaders.

At the December meeting with Crane, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said that municipal leaders have become "junkies" over revenue sharing.

While some of her local government colleagues disagreed with Hayter's characterization, no one disputed the fact the federal checks have become an important part of municipal finance.

Right-of-way planting project begins this week

Planting along the Chicago and North Western Ry. right-of-way from Hicks Road to Rohlfing Road will begin this week, pending approval from the Illinois Division of Traffic.

The $3,000 project planned by the Palatine Beautification Committee will include the planting of various types of vegetation on the railroad right-of-way along Northwest Highway.

Robert Miller, public works director, said the railroad has given its okay for the project, but approval also must come from the state. Miller said he expects to have the state's approval by today.

The project is part of master plan for village-wide beautification proposed to the village board by the committee. Although the committee had hoped to initiate more of its program this year, funds will be available this year for only the Northwest Highway plantings.

MILLER SAID the $3,000 will cover the cost of purchasing the vegetation and the public works department will do the planting.

Miller said the department also has sent letters to homeowners who last year asked to take part in the village's tree replacement program. The program calls for homeowners to pay two-thirds of the cost for a parkway tree, while the village will pay the remaining one-third. The village will plant the trees.

The board last week received bids for trees from seven nurseries. The board is scheduled to make a decision on choosing from among the seven bidders next month.

Miller said homeowners have been notified that the tree replacement program will begin next month and they should be ready to submit payment soon.

MILLER SAID the trees will be 2 1/2 inches in diameter and stand between 12 and 14 feet. Residents will have several varieties of trees from which to choose.

Miller said residents who would like a parkway tree but who have not yet put in a request to the village still can do so. He said the village will send a representative to check the area to determine whether a tree is warranted.

Fire department manpower need review tonight

The hiring of 12 new firemen and a fire inspector will be considered by the Palatine Village Board tonight when it reviews the proposed 1976-77 fire department budget.

The proposed budget calls for expenditures of $793,609. The fire department had requested an additional $15,000 for the purchase of tape recording equipment, but the item was cut by the administration.

The budget session is the second of three scheduled to review the proposed 1976-77 budget, which totals a record $7.89 million. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 54 S. Broadway St.

AT ITS FIRST budget session last week the board approved with only minor changes, the proposals for three departments including administration, finance and health.

A review of the police department budget will be held at a budget session April 11, when the public works department proposal also will be studied. The police department has requested the hiring of three additional community services aides, but the board tentatively agreed to hire only one at a $7,500 salary if money becomes available through other cuts.

Officials have said the budget, which represents an approximate 9 per cent increase over last year's budget, will not necessitate a tax increase because revenues are expected to be enough to meet expenses. An anticipated jump in sales tax receipts is expected to provide the main source of increased village revenue.

A three-day book fair is being sponsored by the Hunting Ridge School PTA. Students may view the book display today during school hours and purchase books Tuesday and Wednesday. The display will be in a bookmobile parked on the school grounds, 1105 W. Illinois Ave., Palatine. Parents are invited to visit the bookmobile any day during school hours.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54

A book fair will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Link School. The fair will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the school gymnasium, 900 W. Glenn Tr., Elk Grove Village. Books range in price from 35 cents to $5.95.

High School Dist. 214

College Night is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at Rolling Meadows High School, 2001 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows, and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Arlington High School, 502 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

Junior level students, and interested seniors and sophomores, and their parents are invited to attend either session. The Rolling Meadows High School session is planned for persons from Rolling Meadows, Forest View, Elk Grove and Prospect high schools. The Arlington High School evening is for students and parents from Arlington, Hersey, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

More than 150 colleges from throughout the country will be represented each evening. Many of the representatives will give half-hour presentations about their school, followed by a question and answer session. All college representatives will be available to parents and students to answer any questions and distribute college literature.

Woodfield Jewish Day School

The Board of Jewish Education Early Childhood Center at Beth Tikvah in Hoffman Estates continues its discussion series today on the transition from nursery school to kindergarten.

The series is intended to enable parents to better understand how to help their children cope with the change from nursery school to kindergarten.

The discussions will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. today and April 5 at the Early Childhood Center. Dr. Richard Malter, BJE staff psychologist, will conduct the series. While the series is for parents of four-year-olds, all parents are welcome to attend.

Enrollment applications for the center are now being accepted for September. Morning or afternoon sessions are available as well as a choice of five-day or three-day programs. Parents who want to be assured of first choice are urged to register as soon as possible. Enrollment for the five-week summer session July 6 to Aug. 6 is now open to the community.

For further information, call Marvell Ginsburg, BJE Early Childhood consultant, at HA7-5570. Information is also available at the school, 885-1600.

In general...

The 81st annual meeting of the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Schools will be held today through Wednesday at the Palmer House, Chicago.

Speaking at the conference will be David Williams, dean of transfer programs at Harper College, Palatine. His topic will be "New Directions in Honors Programs: The Two-Year College." Bruce H. Altergott, associate superintendent of High School Dist. 211, will speak on "Evaluating the Principal: Some Ideas, Some Ideals."

About 4,000 representatives of accredited elementary schools, high schools, colleges and universities are expected to attend the conference to discuss current challenges to education.

The major presentations are open to educators free of charge. Registration information and programs are available from NCA, 5454 S. Shore Blvd., Chicago, Ill., 60615.

The North Suburban Assn. of Educational Secretaries will hold a fashion show dinner at the Lancer Steak House restaurant, 50 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, Friday, April 9. Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Women's fashions will be modeled by members of the organization and men's fashions by several male administrators from the north suburban area schools.

All proceeds will go toward scholarships for selected high school students to further their education in the field of business services.

Tickets are $8 per person and may be obtained by calling Florence Atherton, 537-8270, before Tuesday.

Registration taken for bridge classes

Registration is being accepted for spring sessions of the Palatine Park District's bridge classes.

Instruction will be offered in intermediate and duplicate bridge.

Intermediate classes will begin April 6 at Maple Park and duplicate classes will begin April 21 at Community Park.

For more information, call the park district office at 359-0333.

What does multimillionaire read?

by JUDIE BLACK

Maybe you can't tell a book by its cover, but you surely can tell a lot about people by the books they read.

Test yourself. What prominent Illinois resident would pick as his favorite book "Think and Grow Rich" by Napoleon Hill? Who might choose Adam Smith's "The Wealth of Nations," first published in 1776? And who would select "The Hockey Handbook" by Lloyd Percival?

If you answered (in order) multimillionaire W. Clement Stone, economist Milton Friedman and Chicago Black Hawk defenseman Keith Magnuson, you were right. And if you're interested in knowing what other well-known Illinois residents are reading, head for the Elk Grove Village Public Library and see the results of a most fascinating survey.

THE LIBRARY STAFF spent three weeks compiling a list of 234 prominent Illinois residents and Elk Grove residents, including politicians, professional athletes, media personalities, religious leaders and successful businessmen.

Librarian Janet Steiner then mailed letters asking the personalities to list their all-time favorite book or one they're enjoying now. Their responses, some scrawled in the corner or on the back of the original letter, and others on carefully typed pages, will be displayed at the library during April, in honor of National Library Week April 4-10.

The replies were as varied as the respondents, and ranged from childhood memories to promotions for their own books.

Li. Gov. Neil Hartigan wrote he was particularly fond of libraries because he worked his way through school as a library assistant. His favorite book is Carl Sandburg's "Abraham Lincoln: Prairie Years and War Years."

W. CLEMENT STONE wrote that his favorite books are those he had authored, but also admitted enjoying "Think and Grow Rich" (he sent along three copies to the library), and the Bible.

Cardinal Cody admitted he liked the Bible best, too.

Jim Hill, WMAQ Channel 5 weatherman, wrote his favorite book is Lincoln Barnett's "The Universe and Dr. Einstein." (And added "Here's to more books and less TV!")

Stu Collins, WIND radio disc jockey from 2 to 6 p.m., wrote his favorite is "Write When You Get Work" by Bob Elliot and Ray Goulding ("It's about radio, natch!").

Bob Sirott, WLS disc jockey, said his No. 1 book is the dictionary because "all the other books are in it!" And Larry Lujack of WCFL said his favorite book is "Superjock" by Larry Lujack.

JOE WEISMAN, WTTW Channel 11 political reporter, chose Timothy Crouse's "Boys on the Bus," an inside glimpse at reporting a presidential campaign.

Frazier Thomas, WGN Channel 9 host of "Family Classics," wrote that as a child growing up in a small Indiana town some of his best friends were "the librarians." His favorite book is James Herriot's "All Creatures Great and Small."

"Hamilton Fish: Inner History of the Grant Administration" is the favorite of Chicago Library Board president Ralph G. Newman, who was fined $10,000 for falsifying documents which helped former President Richard Nixon claim tax deductions on his presidential papers. Fish was one of the more corrupt presidential administrators.

In a barely legible scrawl across the bottom right corner of his letter, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., wrote his favorite is "The Adams Chronicle," edited by Jack Shepherd. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., has not replied to Ms. Steiner's letter.

BILL VEECK, owner the Chicago White Sox, wrote his favorite reading had matured from Mark Twain to Shakespeare to contemporary writers. "I never started a book I didn't finish and never read one from which I didn't learn, even if only how not to select reading material," he wrote.

Philip K. Wrigley, head of the chewing gum empire, wrote in a curt reply that he "(couldn't) remember ever having had a favorite book because in the last half century I have just about all I can do to wade through the correspondence which has left me no time at all for reading books."

Road budget hearing slated for Tuesday

The Palatine Township Board of Auditors will hold its public hearing on the 1976-77 township road budget at 8 p.m. Tuesday at town hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

The $624,000 budget was published last month and has been posted on the township hall bulletin board. State law requires budgets be published 30 days before public hearings.

Following the road budget hearing, the auditors will hold a special meeting to work on the township budget.

The local scene

Racquetball clinics set

Two free racquetball clinics will be offered next month by the Salt Creek Park District and the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, 545 S. Consumer Dr., Palatine.

The clinic will meet from 9 to 10:30 a.m. April 7 and 9 and will be held at the club. Call the park district, 259-6890, to register.

Resale shop needs goods

The Little City Foundation Resale Shop is seeking donations of clothing, furniture and household items to restock its inventory.

The center, 5318 N. Clark St., Chicago, is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Pick up service is available by calling 271-7115.

Little City is a nonprofit research and rehabilitation center for the mentally handicapped.

Crafts demonstration given

A craft and tube painting demonstration was recently given by Darlene Lobjko and Carol Hoffman at the Palatine Public Library.

The demonstration was part of an eight-week crafts program developed by the Palatine Park District. For more information about the program call 398-4880 or 253-1118.

Louis Szathmary of the Chicago family restaurant The Bakery, said his favorite reading is "Food of the Western World" by Theodora Fitzgibbon and his own new book "The Chef's New Secret Cook Book." His signature is distinctive, complete with chef's hat drawn atop two letters.

Elk Grove Village trustee Michael A. Tosto likes best Alistair Cooke's "America;" Edward W. Kenna likes most of Allen Drury's works including "Advice and Consent," "A Shade of Difference," "Capable of Honor" and "Preserve and Protect." Trustee Nanci Vanderweel likes "Fear Strikes Out," the story of baseball player Jim Piersall who suffered a nervous breakdown.

THE FAVORITE OF Jan Erickson, president of the Elk Grove Village Newcomers Club, is Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind." Donald M. Fyfe, assistant principal of Elk Grove High School, likes Herman Melville's "Moby Dick," and Marilyn Ruben, president of the Poplar Creek unit of the National Council of Jewish Women, chose "My Name is Asher Lev," by Chaim Potok, the story of a young Jew and his struggle to be an artist without destroying his religious parents.

Some of the most widely known Illinois residents have not answered Ms. Steiner's letter. She should be hearing soon from Mayor Richard Daley, author Saul Bellow, cartoonist Bill Mauldin, reporter Len O'Connor, conductor Sir George Solti, Chicago Police Chief James Rochford, columnist Irv Kupernet, Blackhawk restaurateur Don Roth, Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Gov. Dan Walker.

The library will display many of the replies, although not all the favorite books mentioned may be available. Ms. Steiner also plans to set aside a place for library patrons to list their favorite books and authors.

City readies another try to get 'drop' on pigeons

Des Plaines apparently will wage one more attack against the messy pigeons on the city's south side before calling in an outside expert.

Joseph Schwab, commissioner of public works, said he will recommend the city council authorize him to spend between $1,200 and $1,400 for Roost-No-More, a chemical that will encourage the unwanted birds to go elsewhere.

He said he met with officials from National Bird Control Laboratories, Skokie, but has decided the city should try the chemical before paying the firm $3,800 to rid the 1600 and 1700 blocks of Lunt and Greenleaf avenues of the pigeons.

"I would imagine the city council and the mayor would want us to try the cheaper way first," he said. "It should work because it's the same stuff they (National Bird Laboratories) would use."

THE PASTE-LIKE chemical is applied to the surfaces on which the pigeons roost, he said. It is non-toxic and is approved by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

City officials last October said the large flocks of pigeons that roost on a bridge in the area pose a health hazard, and ordered steps to remove them "humanely."

Since the city council ordered the removal of the pigeons the public works department has captured about 50 of the birds in cages, or at night with nets. They also have used another chemical in an attempt to rid the area of the birds.

Despite the city's efforts, as many as 150 pigeons can be found at the location at certain times each day, Schwab said. He said city efforts have been ineffective because some residents continue to feed the pigeons.

Pigeons captured by the city are being kept in cages behind the city's public works garage, 1111 Campground Rd. Schwab said as soon as the city captures 100 pigeons they will be turned over the Lincoln Park Zoo, Chicago.

Girl, 17, raped; attacker sought

A 17-year-old Des Plaines girl was raped early Sunday by a man who forced her into some bushes near her home, assaulted her, then fled.

Police said the girl was walking near 2510 Dempster St., about 1:30 a.m. when she was attacked.

The man was described as 5 feet 9 inches tall, in his 20s, weighing 140 pounds and having a light complexion with short brown hair.

He wore black trousers and a white dress shirt. He ran northbound from the scene, police said.

Suburbs seek extension

Revenue sharing near end

by KURT BAER

Like sand running through the hour glass, federal revenue-sharing is slowly but surely running out for suburban communities.

Revenue sharing is part of the taxes the federal government collects but which Washington gives back to state, city, county and township governments.

Federal revenue-sharing checks have been arriving four times a year since 1972. But unless Uncle Sam steps up to turn the hour glass over, the program will expire at the end of December.

CRITICISM OF the program comes from two sides. On the one hand, opponents like U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane R-Ill., say the system is inefficient, that too much money is wasted in the transfer of tax dollars.

Nationwide, the program is expensive, costing $5 billion a year. There would be more money to use locally if Washington never collected

it in the first place, Crane says.

Others are against the program because they say to pursue national goals in fields such as education, health and welfare, the federal government should give money to localities only for specific programs, not to use any way they want.

President Ford has asked Congress to extend revenue sharing for 5 1/2 years, with $150 million added each year for inflation.

U.S. Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House government operations committee in charge of a possible extension of revenue sharing, says the program is fundamentally wrong.

A GOVERNMENT operations subcommittee chaired by U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., is not expected to report to the full committee before Easter.

Although Brooks disagrees with the program, he has said he will not obstruct an extension of revenue sharing, leading some experts to predict the measure will pass before the November election.

Most of the debate centers on proposals to revise the program. The government operations subcommittee currently is looking at 14 proposed amendments.

Some proposals call for:

- Changing distribution formulas to give more money to cities and poor rural areas that have the greatest need.

- Strengthening requirements that funds be used in compliance with civil rights regulations.

- Giving local citizens' groups a greater right to be heard when local governments are deciding how to spend the money.

- Requiring that Congress appropriate revenue sharing one year at a time to exercise closer control.

Northwest suburban governments are virtually unanimous in their support of an extension of revenue sharing. Some village boards have passed resolutions calling for reenactment. And last December, local officials met personally with Crane to try to persuade him to back an extension bill.

THE AMOUNT OF money each town receives is based on a complex formula that includes population, average income and an evaluation of local tax effort. Ironically, communities with high taxes generally receive less money than those with low or no taxes, which frustrates some suburban leaders.

At the December meeting with Crane, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said that municipal leaders have become "junkies" over revenue sharing.

While some of her local government colleagues disagreed with Hayter's characterization, no one disputed the fact the federal checks have become an important part of municipal finance.

Officials, police huddle today in 1st salary talks

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

Mount Prospect village officials and representatives of the Combined Counties Police Assn. will meet behind closed doors at 2 p.m. today in the first police salary negotiation session this year.

Jack Gniot, president of the local union chapter and head of the four-man police negotiating team, said the police had not "firmed up a figure" in requesting a salary increase from the village board.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said the village negotiating team, headed by Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann, could offer police a 3 to 6 per cent salary hike for 1976-77, based on recommendations prepared by consultants.

NEITHER SIDE has disclosed specific police demands. During the first, and reportedly last, public session between the village and firefighters last week, however, board members said they would consider a 6 per cent wage increase for firefighters. The firefighters have asked for a 9 per cent increase. A firefighter now earns a starting annual salary of $11,946.

Village officials have said, in view of the approximate 4.77 per cent cost-of-living increase in Chicago during 1975-76, a 5 per cent wage increase might be substantial for the police. A police officer now earns a starting annual salary of $10,960.

Last year, police received an 8 per cent wage increase after asking for 15 per cent.

Gniot said, "Public meetings just don't go as well as they can when both sides have to be so careful about what they say. The public doesn't always understand the problems and they (the negotiators) aren't able to explain themselves properly."

HE SAID ONE misinterpreted word can turn everything in the wrong direction. "It would be as bad a mistake as dotting a 't' or crossing an 'i,'" he said.

Other members of the four-man police negotiating team include Tom Jacobi, first vice president of the local union chapter; Dick Pascoe, second vice president of the local union chapter and Ted Gorski, secretary of the local union chapter.

Zimmermann, who could not be reached for comment, will be joined on the village's side of the bargaining table by Personnel Director Ed Geick and Police Chief Ralph J. Doney. The meeting will be at the village hall, 100 S. Emerson St.

Drilling started for $35 million tunnel project

Excavation and drilling is under way on two air shafts in Mount Prospect which are part of the $35 million deep tunnel project designed for storing sewer and storm water.

Bernard H.R. Hemminger, director of Mount Prospect's Dept. of Engineering, has said one shaft, at the northwest corner of Elmhurst Road and Weller Lane, will serve as an access shaft for inspection purposes.

"The access shaft is approximately five feet in diameter and will extend 160 feet into the ground," Hemminger said.

A second shaft, at the southeast corner of Elmhurst Road and Weller Lane, is approximately 12 inches in diameter and will extend to the bedrock. "It is my assumption this shaft will be used for monitoring ground water down into the tunnel," Hemminger said.

HEMMETER SAID both shafts will have locked covers to eliminate the danger of persons falling into the holes. Traffic at the drilling site will not be affected by the construction, he said.

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jack Nicholson and Al Pacino, who failed to win in nine previous tries, come down to the wire as favorites in the tight race for best actor in the 48th annual Academy Awards ceremonies tonight.

Nicholson won this year's nomination for his performance as an asylum inmate in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." Pacino was nominated for playing the wildly inept bank robber in "Dog Day Afternoon."

"One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" topped all other films in 1975 with nine nominations and may be the first film in 42 years to capture the three top Oscars, best picture, best actor and best actress (Louise Fletcher).

THE LAST MOVIE to make the grand slam was "It Happened One Night" which won for best picture of 1934, and Oscars for its stars, Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.

Other pictures in the running this year are "Dog Day Afternoon," "Barry Lyndon," "Jaws" and "Nashville."

Vying with Nicholson and Pacino for best actor of the year are Maximilian Schell ("The Man in the Glass Booth"), Walter Matthau

Actresses competing with Miss Fletcher for the movies' highest award are Isabelle Adjani ("The Story of Adele H."), Ann-Margret ("Tommy"), Glenda Jackson ("Hedda"), and Carol Kane ("Hester Street").

The film academy show will present awards in 21 categories on a live telecast (Channel 7, 9 p.m. CST) from the Los Angeles Music Center.

THE TWO-HOUR special will feature Gene Kelly, Walter Matthau, George Segal, Robert Shaw and Goldie Hawn as masters of ceremonies. More than 40 film stars will participate as presenters, performers or merely sitting nervously in the audience awaiting the opening of sealed envelopes.

Among such new faces as Marisa Berenson, Stockard Channing and Margaux Hemingway, will be familiar oldtimers Charlton Heston, Elizabeth Taylor, Audrey Hepburn, Ray Bolger and Charles Bronson.

Highlight of the ceremonies will be a filmed appearance by Mary Pickford accepting a special Oscar for her contributions to the motion picture industry. She won the second Academy Award ever given — for best actress of 1928 in "Coquette." Janet Gaynor in "Seventh Heaven" in 1927 was first actress to win the award.

After move here, life's not shaky

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Jose Nicholas Astacio gets excited when he talks. Like when he discusses the earthquakes of his former home, the tiny Central American country of El Salvador.

"The ground start to shake, man," and Jose flutters his hands, making a noise like the rapid rustling of bird wings with his lips, "Brrrrrrr. All the buildings shake."

"Then it stops for a little while and starts again. Brrrrrrr. None of the buildings in Salvador are over three, four flats. They don't have the high rises like in America. They all fall down if they did."

"When that brrrrrr starts, it's scary, man."

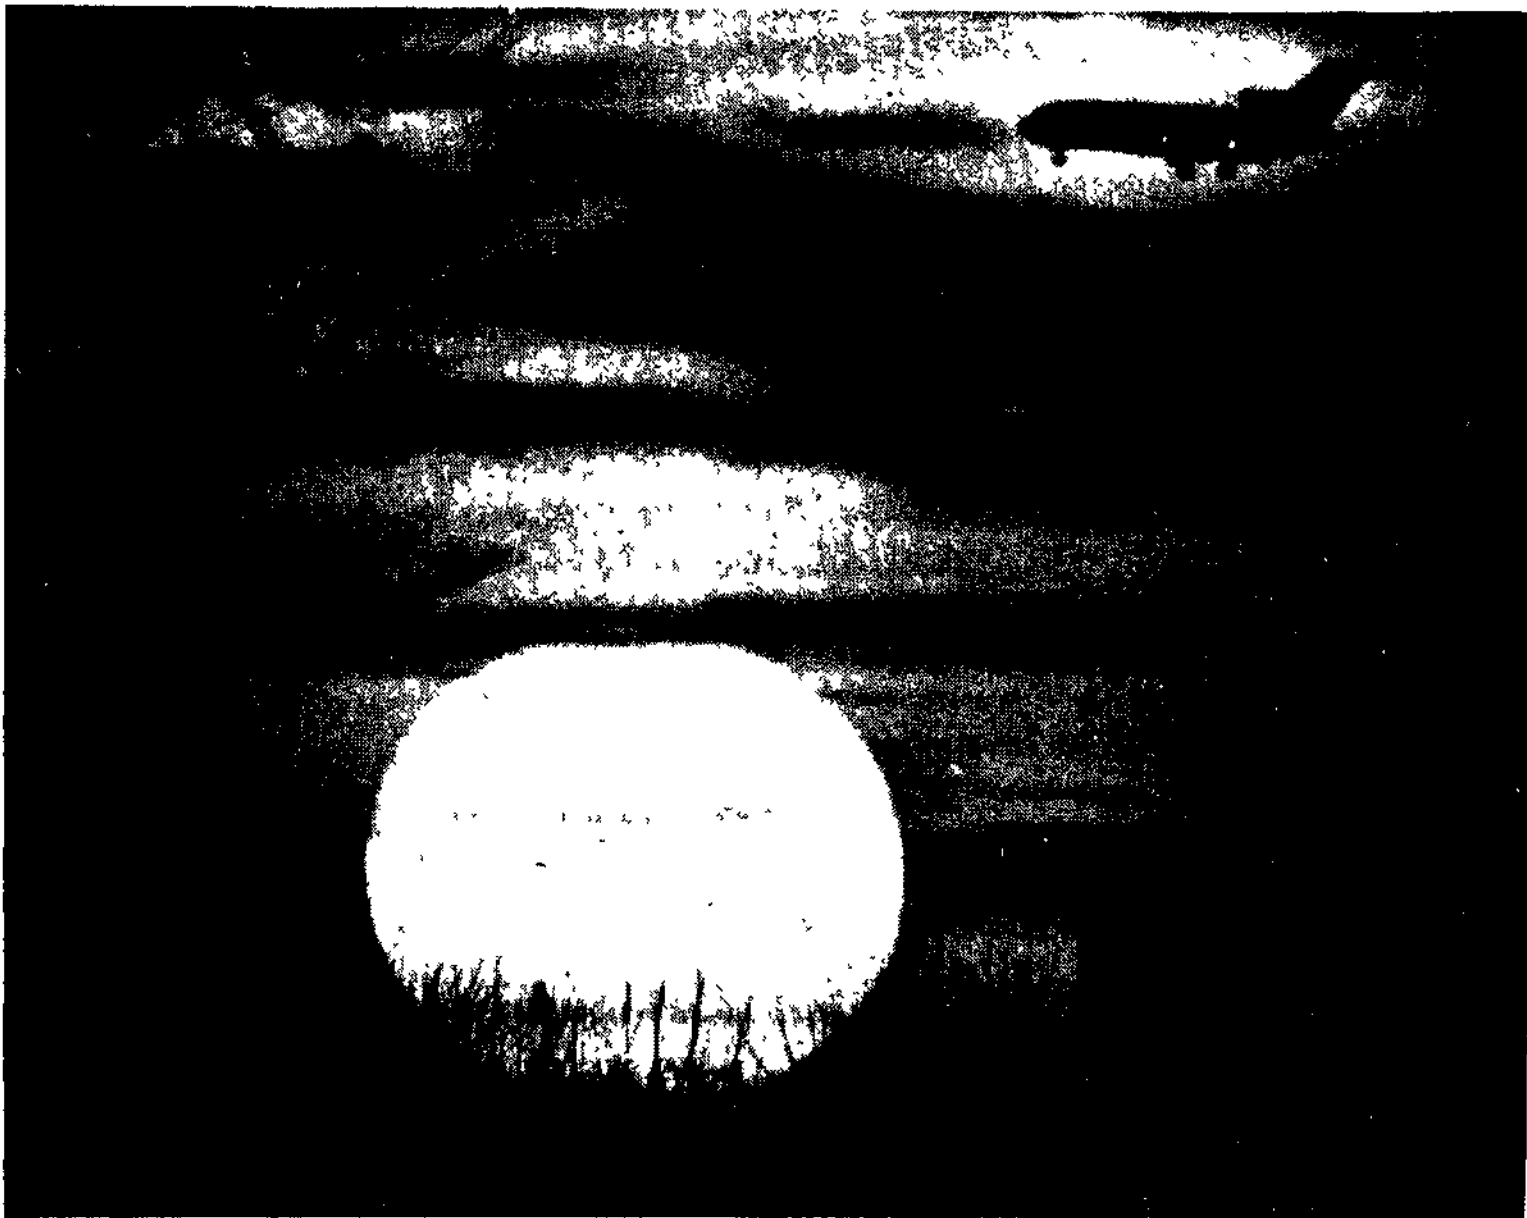

The Jose Nicholas Astacio laughs.

Today

(Mike Klein is on vacation)

He laughs because all around him, everywhere he goes, he sees things that make him happy. And he laughs because he is in the United States, "the greatest country in the world," Jose says. And the ground never shakes in Des Plaines, Ill.

Former school chief still active

Helen Becker, 119 N. Emerson St., recently returned from Lake Havasu, Ariz. where she visited former Mount Prospect Dist. 57 Supt. L.R. Murphy and his wife Marie. Murphy served as head of the local school system for 17 years, from 1948 to 1965. Following that, he directed the Long Grove schools for three years and retired to Arizona seven years ago.

"Mr. Murphy is just as active in Lake Havasu as he was in Mount Prospect," Helen reports. "He has been a member of the school board there and was instrumental in building a new hospital in the town. Marie is also involved. She is in charge of the hospital volunteers."

"Murphy, now 70 years old, hasn't changed one bit," Mrs. Becker said. "He doesn't look a day older than when he left Mount Prospect. He plays golf often and both he and Marie really enjoy a boat which they use constantly."

MOUNT PROSPECT'S Fanchon Gibson, 132 S. Waverly, will present a book review at the Grace Lutheran Church Women meeting Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. "Two From Galilee" by Marjorie Holmes, the love story of Mary and Joseph, will be presented.

Prospect Hts. candidates night slated for April 9

There will be candidates' night April 9 for Prospect Heights residents to meet 31 candidates running in the city's first municipal election.

The candidates' night will be 7:30 to 10 p.m. at Eisenhower Elementary School, Schoenbeck and Camp McDonald roads, Prospect Heights.

Candidates for mayor, treasurer, clerk and the city council in the May 22 election have been notified of the meeting, and a drawing will be held to determine the order in which the 31 candidates speak, said Joe Lesniak, coordinator of the evening.

Each of the candidates will present his qualifications and reasons for running in a five-minute speech. Questions from the audience will not be allowed during the presentations, although an informal coffee will be conducted after the meeting so that residents can talk to the candidates, he said.

Edward Bryant, aldermanic candidate, said he and mayoral candidate Richard E. Wolf originally planned the event and are paying postage costs to have the meeting announcements sent to each candidate. "We just wanted to have all of the candidates join together to introduce themselves to the public," he said. There are three candidates for mayor, two for clerk, two for treasurer, and 24 for eight council seats in the election.

PHIA plans meet on new council setup

The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. tonight will conduct a special board meeting to determine the format in which recommendations will be presented to the new city council, to be elected May 22.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at St. Alphonsus School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights.

PHIA has formed 10 citizens committees to study services the new city must provide. Recommendations will be presented to the city council based on the studies.

One of the committees, which includes residents who are not PHIA members, is studying alternatives to PHIA proposals. Some members are candidates in the election.

Several members of the alternatives committee last week said they do not want their recommendations to be overshadowed by PHIA proposals, and asked how the recommendations will be presented to the city council for review.

Richard Wolf, PHIA president, said the matter is a "policy decision" which the association board must make. He said he wants to avoid a "rift" between candidates who belong to PHIA and those who do not by "resolving the issue as fairly as we can."

$35 million tunnel project under way

(Continued from Page 1) meter said the deep tunnel project will take from three to five years to complete.

Hemmeter said the purpose of the deep tunnel project, which began in February, is to collect and store storm and sewage water and to eventually pump it into the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant in Des Plaines. "The Metropolitan Sanitary District rejected the first set of bids for the retreatment plant," Hemmeter said. "But it is my understanding they will go out for new bids sometime this spring."

THE PROJECT is being funded by the MSD with the aid of state and federal funds.

When completed, the main tunnel in the village will extend from the intersection of Elmhurst Road and the Northwest Tollway, north along Elmhurst Road to Weller Creek, through the Mount Prospect Country Club golf course to Central Road.

Hemmeter said the tunnel will end in an empty lot on the northside of Central Road and Weller Creek.
